

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

THE LIBRARY

In token of Friendship,
To

John Fiske

By

Neil McEachren

Goldenwill 1867

MASTER'S CARPET.

Jeremy L. Cross

CROSS' MASONIC CHART:

REVISED:

Containing the Degrees of the Ancient Work Rite

AS WORKED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA;

ARRANGED

According to the Ancient Mode of Work and Lectures.

TOGETHER WITH

A HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE ORIGIN AND PROGRESS

OF

Free Masonry,

AND A

COLLECTION OF MASONIC SONGS, FUNERAL SERVICE, ETC.

BY

WILL. M. CUNNINGHAM, M. A.

K. T., S. G. I. G. 33d.

SECOND EDITION REVISED.

PHILADELPHIA:

MOSS & CO., 430 MARKET STREET.

1865.

Entered, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by MOSS & CO.
in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

ELECTROTYPED BY L. JOHNSON & CO.
PHILADELPHIA.

366.1
C884m

TO THE
GENERAL GRAND CHAPTER
OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

This Volume IS RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED

BY THE AUTHOR.

1*

5

APR 6 1899

1250343

OFFICERS
OF THE
GENERAL GRAND CHAPTER
OF THE
United States of America,

ELECTED AT CHICAGO (ILL.), SEPTEMBER 13, 1860,
AND YEAR OF R. A. M. 2389.

- M. E. C. ALBERT G. MACKEY,
OF CHARLESTON, S. C., G. GRAND HIGH PRIEST.
- M. E. C. JOHN L. LEWIS, JR.,
PENN YAN, N. Y., D. G. G. H. P.
- M. E. C. IRA A. W. BUCK,
AURORA, ILL., G. G. KING.
- M. E. C. GILES M. HILLYER,
NATCHEZ, MISS., G. G. SCRIBE.
- M. E. C. JOHN D. CALDWELL,
CINCINNATI, O., G. G. SECRETARY.
- M. E. C. JAMES PENN,
MEMPHIS, TENN., G. G. TREASURER.
- M. E. C. JOHN McCLELLAN,
BOSTON, MASS., G. G. C. OF HOST.

PREFACE TO REVISED EDITION.

IN presenting to the Masonic Fraternity a revised edition of the "True Masonic Chart, or Hieroglyphic Monitor," the editor would again desire to disclaim any intention of adding to the already too numerous list of "Monitors of the York Rite;" his only object being to render more worthy of favor a work that has already been so well received by the craft,—it having now reached its eighteenth edition. The Masonic editor has a more difficult task in pruning "Monitors" of interpolations, inaccurate statements, and the too frequent use of the esoteric part of Free-Masonry, rather than in the presentation of new ideas. The loose ideas of the French Masonry of the seventeenth century having of late prevailed to an alarming extent in our monitorial works, may have caused the editor to have been too particular in discriminating between Esoteric and Exoteric Masonry in the revision of this work; but should this prove to be the only case in which he has erred, he feels well assured that the craft will not complain at his respect for his Masonic VOWS.

W. M. C.

NEWARK, O., 1865.

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
ON OPENING AND CLOSING LODGES.....	11
ENTERED APPRENTICE'S DEGREE.....	15
FELLOW-CRAFT'S DEGREE.....	34
MASTER MASON'S DEGREE.....	54
MARK MASTER'S DEGREE.....	73
PAST MASTER'S DEGREE.....	83
MASONIC FUNERAL SERVICE.....	115
MOST EXCELLENT MASTER'S DEGREE.....	131
ROYAL ARCH DEGREE.....	142
ROYAL MASTER'S DEGREE.....	166
SELECT MASTER'S DEGREE.....	170
ORDER OF HIGH PRIESTHOOD.....	179
CONSTITUTION OF THE GENERAL GRAND CHAPTER OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.....	205
HISTORY OF FREE MASONRY.....	213
LIST OF GRAND LODGES AND GRAND CHAPTERS IN THE UNITED STATES.....	272

MASONIC SONGS.

ENTERED APPRENTICE'S SONG.....	279
FELLOW-CRAFT'S SONG.....	281

	PAGE
MASTER'S SONG.....	283
MASTER'S SONG	285
THE MASON'S ADIEU	287
ODE FOR GRAND VISITATION	289
HYMN FOR CONSECRATION	292
ODE FOR DEDICATION	294
GLEE (HAIL, MYSTERIOUS, GLORIOUS SCIENCE).....	297
CHARITY	301
MASONIC HYMN	304
FUNERAL HYMN.....	306
MOST EXCELLENT MASTER'S ODE.....	308
ROYAL ARCH SONGS.....	310, 311, 314
SELECT MASTER'S SONG.....	316
SELECT MASTER'S ANTHEM	318
SONG: "AH, WHY SHOULD THE HEART BE DEPRESSED?"	318
MASONIC ODE.....	320
EPILOGUE.....	320

INTRODUCTION.

ON OPENING AND CLOSING LODGES.

THE ceremony of opening and closing a Lodge with solemnity and decorum is universally admitted among Masons; and although the mode in some Lodges may vary, and in every degree must, in some particulars, still a uniformity prevails in every Lodge, and the variations, if any, are only occasioned by want of method, which a little application might easily remove. To conduct this ceremony with propriety ought to be the study of every Mason, but more especially those who are called to officiate as officers of the Lodge. To those of our Brethren who are thus honored, every eye is naturally directed for propriety of conduct and behavior; and from them our Brethren who are less informed will expect an example worthy of imitation. From a share in this ceremony no Mason can be exempted: it is a general concern, in which all must assist,—the first notice of which is given by the W. M., with a request of the attention and assistance of his Brethren. No sooner has it been signified, than every officer repairs to his station, and the Brethren rank according to their degrees. The next object is to detect impostors among ourselves; and for this purpose recourse is had to our peculiar rites as Masons. This object being accomplished, our next care is directed to the external avenues of the Lodge; and the proper officers, whose province it is to discharge that duty, execute their trust with fidelity, and by certain mystic forms, of no recent date, intimate that we may safely proceed.

At opening the Lodge, two purposes are wisely effected: the Master is reminded of the dignity of character which he is to maintain from the elevation of his office, and the Brethren of the reverence and respect due from them in their respective stations. These are not the only advantages resulting from a due observance of this ceremony: the mind is drawn with reverential awe to the Supreme Architect of the Universe, and the eye fixed on HIM who is the only author of life and immortality. Here we are taught to worship and adore the supreme ЖЕHOVAH, and to supplicate his protection and assistance in all our well-meant endeavors. After the customary salutations, the Master pronounces the Lodge to be opened in due and ancient form, and assumes the government, and under him his Wardens; the Brethren with one accord unite in duty and respect, and the business of the meeting is conducted with order and harmony.

At the closing of a Lodge a similar ceremony takes place as at opening:—the avenues of the Lodge are guarded; a recapitulation of the duties of the officers is rehearsed; a proper tribute of gratitude is offered up to the Great Author of our existence, and his blessing invoked and extended to the whole fraternity.

If it should be deemed necessary that the Lodge be opened in the several degrees, for despatch of business, when that in the first degree shall have been finished, the W. Master, after due inquiry of the Wardens and Brethren, will proclaim it to be his will and pleasure that the Entered Apprentices' degree be dispensed with for the purpose of opening on the Fellow-Craft degree, and all who are not Fellow-Crafts are requested to retire. When the necessary precautions are taken that none remain but those who are entitled to this privilege, the sentinel is again reminded of his duty, and the Fellow-Craft's degree opened in due form. When the business in this degree shall have been finished, the Lodge is dispensed with, as in the first degree, and a Master's Lodge opened in due form. After the business in the Master's degree is finished, the Lodge is closed and the labors of the Fellow-Crafts resumed. If nothing should offer in this degree, the Lodge is closed and the labors of the Entered Apprentices resumed. Should nothing further offer in this degree, (the records of the evening having been read and approved,) the Lodge is closed in due and ancient form.

These are but faint outlines of the ceremonies which prevail among Masons in every country, and distinguish all their meetings.

FORMS OF PRAYERS, CHARGES, ETC.

“Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so also upon the earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.”

A PRAYER SOMETIMES USED ON OPENING A LODGE.

Most holy and glorious Lord God, the great Architect of the universe, the Giver of all good gifts and graces : Thou hast promised that "where two or three are gathered together in thy name, thou wilt be in the midst of them, and bless them." In thy name we assemble, most humbly beseeching thee to bless us in all our undertakings, that we may know and serve thee aright, and that all our actions may tend to thy glory, and to our advancement in knowledge and virtue. And we beseech thee, O Lord God, to bless our present assembling, and to illuminate our minds, that we may walk in the light of thy countenance, and, when the trials of our probationary state are over, be admitted into THE TEMPLE "not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

So mote it be. Amen.

PRAYER AT CLOSING.

Supreme Architect of the Universe, accept our humble praises for the many mercies and blessings which thy bounty has conferred on us, and especially for this friendly and social intercourse. Pardon, we beseech thee, whatever thou hast seen amiss in us since we have been together ; and continue to us thy presence, protection, and blessing. Make us sensible of the renewed obligations we are under to love thee supremely, and to be friendly to each other. May all our irregular passions be subdued, and may we daily increase in Faith, Hope, and Charity ; but more especially in that Charity which is the bond of peace and the perfection of every virtue. May we so practise thy precepts that we may finally obtain thy promises, and find an entrance through the gates into the temple and city of our God.

So mote it be. Amen.

INVOCATION AT CLOSING.

May the blessing of Heaven rest upon us and all regular Masons ! May brotherly love prevail, and every moral and social virtue cement us !

So mote it be. Amen.

CHARGE AT CLOSING.

BRETHREN :—

We are now about to quit this sacred retreat of friendship and virtue, to mix again with the world. Amidst its concerns and employments, forget not the duties which you have heard so frequently inculcated and so forcibly recommended in this Lodge.

Be diligent, prudent, temperate, discreet. Remember that around this altar you have promised to befriend and relieve every Brother who shall need your assistance. You have promised in the most friendly manner to remind him of his errors and aid a reformation. These generous principles are to extend farther. Every human being has a claim upon your kind offices. Do good unto all. Recommend it more "especially to the household of the faithful." Finally, brethren, be ye all of one mind; live in peace; and may the God of love and peace delight to dwell with and bless you!

FORM OF A PETITION TO BE SIGNED BY A CANDIDATE FOR INITIATION.

To the W. Master, Wardens, and Brethren of ——— Lodge, No. —, of Free and Accepted Masons.

The petition of the subscriber respectfully represents that, entertaining a favorable opinion of your Ancient Institution, he is desirous of being admitted a member thereof, if found worthy.

His place of residence is ———; his age, —; his occupation, —.

Recommended by C. D.

Avouched for by E. F.

(Signed) A. B.

DECLARATION TO BE ASSENTED TO BY A CANDIDATE, IN AN ADJOINING APARTMENT, PREVIOUS TO INITIATION.

* * * * *

"Do you solemnly declare, upon your honor, that, unbiassed by friends and uninfluenced by mercenary motives, you freely and voluntarily offer yourself a candidate for the mysteries of Masonry?"

Ans.—"I do."

"Do you solemnly declare, upon your honor, that you are prompted to solicit the privileges of Masonry by a favorable opinion conceived of the Institution, a desire of knowledge, and a sincere wish of being serviceable to your fellow-creatures?"

Ans.—"I do."

"Do you solemnly declare, upon your honor, that you will cheerfully conform to all the ancient established usages and customs of the Fraternity?"

Ans.—"I do."

"Do you solemnly declare, upon your honor, that you have never petitioned any other Lodge for initiation and been rejected?"

Ans.—"I do."

After the above declarations are made, reported to the Master, and by him made known to the Lodge, if there are then no objections, the Candidate is introduced in due form.

Entered Apprentice's Degree.

SECTION FIRST

SECTION SECOND.

SECTION THIRD

MOVABLE

IMMOVABLE.

ENTERED APPRENTICE'S DEGREE.

SECTION FIRST.

THE first section consists of general heads; which, though short and simple, carry weight with them, and qualify us to try and examine the rights of others to our privileges, while they prove ourselves. It also accurately elucidates the mode of initiating a candidate into our ancient order.

Clothing.

Apron,—white lamb-skin, with no ornament, device, or edging, fifteen inches wide by fourteen inches deep, square at the bottom, with a triangular fall at the top five inches deep. The Brethren should all wear white gloves and black or dark-colored clothes.

Opening.

* * * * *

CHARGE AT OPENING.

“Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!

“It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron’s beard; that went down to the skirts of his garments:

“As the dew of Hermon, that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.”

Reception.

* * * * *

PRAYER USED AT THE INITIATION OF A CANDIDATE.

Vouchsafe thine aid, Almighty Father of the universe, to this our present convention; and grant that this candidate for Masonry may dedicate and devote his life to thy service, and become a true and faithful Brother among us! Endue him with a competency of thy Divine Wisdom, that by the secrets of our art he may be better enabled to display the Beauties of Holiness, to the honor of thy holy name! So mote it be. Amen.

* * * * *

The following passage of Scripture is either rehearsed or may be chanted during the ceremony:—

CHANT.

HAYWARD.

1. Behold, how good and how | pleas-ant it | is
For brethren to dwell to|geth-er in | uni|ty!
2. It is like the pre-cious ointment up | on the | head,
That ran | down up|on the | beard,
3. Even | Aaron's | beard,
That went down to the | skirts | of his | garments.
4. It is like the | dew of | Hermon,
That descended up|on the | moun-tains of | Zion: .
5. For there the Lord com-mand-ed the | blessing,
Even | life for | ever|more. Ps. cxxxiii.

* * * * *

Towards the close of the section is explained that peculiar ensign of Masonry, the lamb-skin, or white leather apron.

The lamb-skin, or white leather apron, is an emblem of innocence, and the badge of a Mason; more ancient than the Golden Fleece or Roman Eagle; more honorable than the Star and Garter, or any other order that could be conferred upon you at this or any future period, by king, prince, potentate, or any other person, except he be a Mason; and which every one should wear with pleasure to himself, and honor to the fraternity.

This section closes with an explanation of the working tools, which are the twenty-four inch gauge and the common gavel.

The twenty-four inch gauge is an instrument used by operative masons to measure and lay out their work; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons, are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of dividing our time. Its being divided into twenty-four equal parts, is emblematic of the twenty-four hours of the day, which we are taught to divide into three equal parts; whereby are found eight hours for the service of God, and a distressed worthy brother; eight for our usual avocations; and eight for refreshment and sleep.

The common gavel is an instrument made use of by operative masons to break off the superfluous corners of rough stones, the better to fit them for the builder's use; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons, are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of divesting our hearts and consciences of all the vices and superfluities of life; thereby fitting our minds as living stones for that spiritual building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

SECTION SECOND.

The second section rationally accounts for the ceremony of initiating a candidate into our ancient institution.

* * * * *

THE BADGE OF A MASON.

Every candidate, at his initiation, is presented with a lamb-skin, or white leather apron.

The lamb has in all ages been deemed an emblem of innocence: the lamb-skin is, therefore, to remind him of that purity of life and conduct which is so essentially necessary to his gaining admission into the Celestial Lodge above, where the Supreme Architect of the universe presides.

SECTION THIRD.

The third section explains the nature and principles of our Constitution. Here also we receive instructions relative to the form, supports, covering, furniture, ornaments, lights, and jewels of the Lodge, how it should be situated, and to whom dedicated.

From East to West, and between North and South, Free-Masonry extends; and in every clime are Masons to be found.

Our institution is said to be supported by Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty; because it is necessary that there should be wisdom to contrive, strength to support, and beauty to adorn, all great and important undertakings.

Its covering is no less than a clouded canopy, or a starry-decked Heaven, where all good Masons hope at last to arrive, by the aid of the theological ladder, which Jacob, in his vision, saw ascending from earth to heaven; the three principal rounds of which are denominated Faith, Hope, and Charity; and which admonish us to have faith in God, hope in immortality, and charity to all mankind.

The greatest of these is Charity; for Faith may be lost in sight; Hope ends in fruition; but Charity extends beyond the grave, through the boundless realms of eternity.

Every well-governed Lodge is furnished with the Holy Bible, the Square, and the Compasses.

The Holy Bible is dedicated to God; the Square, to the Master; and the Compasses, to the Craft.

The Bible is dedicated to God, because it is the inestimable gift of God to man; * * * the Square to the Master, because it is the proper Masonic emblem of his office; and the compasses to the craft, because, by a due attention to their use, they are taught to circumscribe their desires, and keep their passions within due bounds.

The Ornaments of a Lodge are the Mosaic pavement, the indented tessellated border, and the blazing star. The Mosaic pavement is a representation of the ground-floor of King Solomon's temple; the indented tessellated border, that beautiful tessellated border, or skirting, with which it was surrounded; and the blazing Star in the centre, the S. S., or Holy of Holies.

The Mosaic pavement is emblematic of human life, checkered with good and evil; the beautiful border which surrounds it, those manifold blessings and comforts which surround us, and which we hope to enjoy by a faithful reliance on Divine Providence, which is hieroglyphically represented by the blazing star in the centre.

The movable and immovable Jewels also claim our attention in this section.

The rough ashler is a stone as taken from the quarry in its rude and natural state.

The perfect ashler is a stone made ready by the hands of the workmen, to be adjusted by the working tools of the Fellow-Craft. The trestle-board is for the master workman to draw his designs upon.

By the rough ashler, we are reminded of our rude and imperfect state by nature; by the perfect ashler, that state of perfection at which we hope to arrive by a virtuous education, our own endeavors, and the blessing of God; and by the trestle-board, we are also reminded, that as the operative workman erects his temporal building agreeably to the rules and designs laid down by the master on his trestle-board, so should we, both operative and speculative, endeavor to erect our spiritual building agreeably to the rules and designs laid down by the Supreme Architect of the universe in the great Books of nature and revelation, which is our spiritual, moral, and Masonic trestle-board.

Lodges were anciently dedicated to King Solomon, as it is said he was the first Most Excellent Grand Master. Yet Masons professing Christianity dedicate theirs to St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist, who were two eminent Christian patrons of Masonry; and since their time there is represented, in every regular and well-governed Lodge, a certain point within the circle,* embordered by two perpendicular parallel lines, representing St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist; and upon the top rests the Holy Scriptures. In going round this circle, we necessarily touch upon these two lines, as well as the Holy Scriptures; and while a Mason keeps himself circumscribed within their precepts, it is impossible that he should materially err.†

OF BROTHERLY LOVE.

By the exercise of brotherly love, we are taught to regard the whole human species as one family, the high and low, the rich and poor, who, as created by one Al-

* The point represents an individual brother, the circle the boundary-line beyond which he is never to suffer his prejudices or passions to betray him.

† This symbol is one of the oldest known in Masonry, and identical with the Lingam of the Indian Mysteries and the Phallus and Cteis of the ancient Egyptians. Originally it was used to symbolize the Creative Power of the Almighty,—a Being without beginning of years or end of days.

mighty Parent, and inhabitants of the same planet, are to aid, support, and protect each other. On this principle, Masonry unites men of every country, sect, and opinion, and conciliates true friendship among those who might otherwise have remained at a perpetual distance.

OF RELIEF.

To relieve the distressed, is a duty incumbent on all men, but particularly on Masons, who are linked together by an indissoluble chain of sincere affection. To soothe the unhappy, to sympathize with their misfortunes, to compassionate their miseries, and to restore peace to their troubled minds, is the great aim we have in view. On this basis we form our friendships and establish our connections.

OF TRUTH.

Truth is a divine attribute, and the foundation of every virtue. To be good and true, is the first lesson we are taught in Masonry. On this theme we contemplate, and by its dictates endeavor to regulate our conduct; hence, while influenced by this principle, hypocrisy and deceit are unknown among us; sincerity and plain-dealing distinguish us; and the heart and tongue join in promoting each other's welfare and rejoicing in each other's prosperity.

AN EXPLANATION OF THE FOUR CARDINAL VIRTUES; WHICH ARE TEMPERANCE, FORTITUDE, PRUDENCE, AND JUSTICE.

OF TEMPERANCE.

Temperance is that due restraint upon our affections and passions, which renders the body tame and governable and frees the mind from the allurements of vice. This virtue should be the constant practice of every Mason; as he is thereby taught to avoid excess, or contracting any licentious or vicious habit, the indulgence of which might lead him to disclose some of those valuable secrets, which he has promised to conceal and never reveal, and which would consequently subject him to the contempt and detestation of all good Masons. * * * * *

OF FORTITUDE.

Fortitude is that noble and steady purpose of the mind, whereby we are enabled to undergo any pain, peril, or danger, when prudentially deemed expedient. This virtue is equally distant from rashness and cowardice; and, like the former, should be deeply impressed upon the mind of every Mason, as a safeguard or security against any illegal attack that may be made by force or otherwise, to extort from him any of those valuable secrets with which he has been so solemnly intrusted, and which were emblematically represented upon his first admission into the Lodge. * * * * *

OF PRUDENCE.

Prudence teaches us to regulate our lives and actions agreeably to the dictates of reason, and is that habit by which we wisely judge, and prudentially determine, on all things relative to our present as well as to our future happiness. This virtue should be the peculiar characteristic of every Mason, not only for the government of his conduct while in the Lodge, but also when abroad in the world. It should be particularly attended to, in all strange and mixed companies, never to let fall the least sign, token, or word, whereby the secrets of Masonry might be unlawfully obtained. * * * * *

OF JUSTICE.

Justice is that standard, or boundary of right, which enables us to render to every man his just due, without distinction. This virtue is not only consistent with divine and human laws, but is the very cement and support of civil society; and as justice in a great measure constitutes the real good man, so should it be the invariable practice of every Mason never to deviate from the minutest principles thereof. * * * * *

The illustration of these virtues is accompanied with some general observations peculiar to Masons. Due veneration is also paid to our ancient patrons.

CHARGE AT INITIATION INTO THE FIRST DEGREE.

BROTHER :—

As you are now introduced into the first principles of Masonry, I congratulate you on being accepted into this ancient and honorable order :—ancient, as having subsisted from time immemorial, and honorable, as tending, in every particular, so to render all men who will be conformable to its precepts. No institution was ever raised on a better principle, or more solid foundation ; nor were ever more excellent rules and useful maxims laid down, than are inculcated in the several Masonic lectures. The greatest and best of men, in all ages, have been encouragers and promoters of the art, and have never deemed it derogatory to their dignity to level themselves with the fraternity, extend their privileges, and patronize their assemblies. There are three great duties which, as a Mason, you are charged to inculcate,—to God, your neighbor, and yourself. To God, in never mentioning his name but with that reverential awe which is due from a creature to his Creator ; to implore his aid in all your laudable undertakings, and to esteem him as the chief good :—to your neighbor, in acting upon the square, and doing unto him as you wish he should do unto you :—and to yourself, in avoiding all irregularity and intemperance, which may impair your faculties, or debase the dignity of your profession. A zealous attachment to these duties will insure public and private esteem.

In the State, you are to be a quiet and peaceful subject, true to your government, and just to your country; you are not to countenance disloyalty or rebellion, but patiently submit to legal authority, and conform with cheerfulness to the government of the country in which you live. In your outward demeanor, be particularly careful to avoid censure and reproach.

Although your frequent appearance at our regular meetings is earnestly solicited, yet it is not meant that Masonry should interfere with your necessary avocations; for these are on no account to be neglected; neither are you to suffer your zeal for the institution to lead you into argument with those who, through ignorance, may ridicule it.

At your leisure hours, that you may improve in Masonic knowledge, you are to converse with well-informed Brethren, who will be always as ready to give, as you will be ready to receive, instruction.

Finally, keep sacred and inviolable the mysteries of the order; as these are to distinguish you from the rest of the community, and mark your consequence among Masons. If, in the circle of your acquaintance, you find a person desirous of being initiated into Masonry, be particularly attentive not to recommend him, unless you are convinced he will conform to our rules; that the honor, glory, and reputation of the institution may be firmly established, and the world at large convinced of its good effects.

Fellow-Craft's Degree.

SECTION FIRST.

SECTION SECOND.

FELLOW-CRAFT'S DEGREE.

SECTION FIRST.

THE first section recapitulates important ceremonies, and instructs the diligent craftsman how to proceed in the proper arrangement of the several ceremonies used on the occasion. It should, therefore, be well understood by every officer and member of the Lodge.

Clothing.

Apron,—white lamb-skin, same size and shape as that of the preceding degree, lined with white and edged with a binding of white watered silk one-fourth of an inch wide; upon the apron two light-blue rosettes, one in each lower corner. Gloves, white; clothes, dark or black.

Opening.

. * * * * *

CHARGE AT OPENING.

“Search us, O God, and know our hearts; try us, and know our thoughts; and see if there be any wicked way in us, and lead us in the way everlasting.”

Reception.

* * * * *

AMOS vii. 7, 8.

“Thus he shewed me; and behold the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumb-line, with a plumb-line in his hand. And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumb-line. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumb-line in the midst of my people Israel: I will not again pass by them any more."

* * * * *

The working tools of a fellow-craft are here introduced and explained; which are the plumb, square, and level.

The plumb is an instrument made use of by operative masons to raise perpendiculars; the square, to square the work; and the level, to lay horizontals; but we, as free and accepted Masons, are taught to make use of them for more noble and glorious purposes. The plumb admonishes us to walk uprightly in our several stations before God and man, squaring our actions by the square of virtue, and remembering that we are travelling upon the level of time to "that undiscovered country, from whose bourn no traveller returns."

SECTION SECOND.

The second section of this degree refers to the origin of the institution, and views Masonry under two denominations, operative and speculative. The period stipulated for rewarding merit is here fixed, and the inimitable moral to which that circumstance alludes is explained. The celestial and terrestrial globes are considered; and here the accomplished Mason may display his talents to advantage, in elucidating the Orders of Architecture, the Senses of human nature, and the liberal Arts and Sciences, which are severally classed in a regular arrangement.

Masonry is considered under two denominations; operative and speculative.

OPERATIVE MASONRY.

By operative masonry, we allude to a proper application of the useful rules of architecture, whence a structure will derive figure, strength, and beauty, and whence will result a due proportion and a just correspondence in all its parts. It furnishes us with dwellings, and convenient shelters from the vicissitudes and inclemencies of seasons : and while it displays the effects of human wisdom, as well in the choice, as in the arrangement, of the sundry materials of which an edifice is composed, it demonstrates that a fund of science and industry is implanted in man, for the best, most salutary and beneficent purposes.

SPECULATIVE MASONRY.

By speculative Masonry, we learn to subdue the passions, act upon the square, keep a tongue of good report, maintain secrecy, and practise charity. It is so far interwoven with religion as to lay us under obligation to pay that rational homage to the Deity which at once constitutes our duty and our happiness. It leads the contemplative to view with reverence and admiration the glorious works of creation, and inspires him with the most exalted ideas of the perfections of his divine Creator.

In six days God created the heavens and the earth, and rested upon the seventh day : the seventh, therefore, our ancient brethren consecrated as a day of rest from their labors ; thereby enjoying frequent opportunities to contemplate the glorious works of creation, and to adore their great Creator. * * * * *

Peace, Unity, Plenty, and the doctrine of the Spheres, are here introduced and explained.

OF THE GLOBES.

The Globes are two artificial and spherical bodies, on the convex surface of which are represented the countries, seas, and various parts of the earth, the face of the heavens, the planetary revolutions, and other particulars.

THE USE OF THE GLOBES.

Their principal use, besides serving as maps to distinguish the outward parts of the earth and the situation of the fixed stars, is to illustrate and explain the phenomena arising from the annual revolution and the diurnal rotation of the earth round its own axis. They are the noblest instruments for improving the mind, and giving it the most distinct idea of any problem or proposition, as well as enabling it to solve the same. Contemplating these bodies, we are inspired with a due reverence for the Deity and his works, and are induced to encourage the studies of astronomy, geography, and navigation, and the arts dependent on them, by which society has been so much benefited.

As the five Orders of Architecture are considered in this section, a brief description of them may not be improper.

OF ORDER IN ARCHITECTURE.

By order in architecture is meant a system of all the members, proportions, and ornaments of columns and pilasters; or it is a regular arrangement of the projecting parts of a building, which, united with those of a column, form a beautiful, perfect, and complete whole.

OF ITS ANTIQUITY.

From the first formation of society, order in architecture may be traced. When the rigor of seasons obliged men to contrive shelter from the inclemency of the weather, we learn that they first planted trees on end, and then laid others across, to support a covering. The bands which connected those trees at top and bottom are said to have given rise to the idea of the base and capital of pillars; and from this simple hint originally proceeded the more improved art of architecture.

The five orders are thus classed:—the Tuscan, Doric, Ionic, Corinthian, and Composite.

THE TUSCAN

Is the most simple and solid of the five orders. It was invented in Tuscany, whence it derives its name. The simplicity of the construction of this column renders it eligible where ornament would be superfluous.

THE DORIC,

Which is plain and natural, is the most ancient, and was invented by the Greeks. Its column is eight diameters high, and has seldom any ornaments on base or capital, except mouldings; though the frieze is distinguished by triglyphs and metopes, and triglyphs compose the ornaments of the frieze.

The Doric is the best proportioned of all the orders. The several parts of which it is composed are founded on the natural position of solid bodies. In its first invention it was more simple than in its present state. In after-times, when it began to be adorned, it gained the name of Doric; for when it was constructed in its primitive and simple form the name of Tuscan was conferred on it. Hence the Tuscan precedes the Doric in rank, on account of its resemblance to that pillar in its original state.

THE IONIC

Bears a kind of mean proportion between the more solid and delicate orders. Its column is nine diameters high; its capital is adorned with volutes, and its cornice has dentals. There is both delicacy and ingenuity displayed in this pillar; the invention of which is attributed to the Ionians, as the famous temple of Diana at Ephesus was of this order. It is said to have been formed after the model of an agreeable young woman, of an elegant shape, dressed in her hair,—as a contrast to the Doric order, which was formed after that of a strong, robust man.

THE CORINTHIAN,

The richest of the five orders, is deemed a masterpiece of art. Its column is ten diameters high, and its capital is adorned with two rows of leaves, and eight volutes, which sustain the abacus. The frieze is ornamented with curious devices, the cornice with dentals and modillions. This order is used in stately and superb structures.

OF THE INVENTION OF THIS ORDER.

It is said to have been invented at Corinth, by Callimachus, who is said to have taken the hint of the capital of this pillar from the following remarkable circumstance. Accidentally passing by the tomb of a young lady, he perceived a basket of toys covered with tile, placed over an acanthus-root, having been left there by her nurse. As the branches grew up, they encompassed the basket, till, arriving at the tile, they met with an obstruction, and bent downwards. Callimachus, struck with the object, set about imitating the figure: the base of the capital he made to represent the basket; the abacus the tile; and the volutes the bending leaves.

THE COMPOSITE

Is compounded of the other orders, and was contrived by the Romans. Its capital has the two rows of leaves of the Corinthian, and the volutes of the Ionic. Its column has quarter-rounds, as the Tuscan and Doric order; is ten diameters high; and its cornice has dentals, or simple modillions. This pillar is generally found in buildings where strength, elegance, and beauty are displayed.

OF THE INVENTION OF ORDER IN ARCHITECTURE.

The ancient and original orders of architecture revered by Masons are no more than three,—the Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian, which were invented by the Greeks. To these the Romans have added two,—the Tuscan, which they made plainer than the Doric, and the Composite, which was more ornamental, if not more beautiful, than the Corinthian. The first three orders alone, however, show invention and particular character, and essentially differ from each other; the two others have nothing but what is borrowed, and differ only accidentally; the Tuscan is the Doric in its earliest state; and the Composite is the Corinthian enriched with the Ionic. To the Greeks, therefore, and not to the Romans, are we indebted for what is great, judicious, and distinct in architecture.

OF THE FIVE SENSES OF HUMAN NATURE, WHICH ARE—HEARING, SEEING, FEELING,* SMELLING, AND TASTING.

HEARING

Is that sense by which we distinguish sounds, and are capable of enjoying all the agreeable charms of music. By it we are enabled to enjoy the pleasures of society, and reciprocally to communicate to each other our thoughts and intentions, our purposes and desires; while thus our reason is capable of exerting its utmost power and energy.

The wise and beneficent Author of Nature intended, by the formation of this sense, that we should be social creatures, and receive the greatest and most important part of our knowledge by the information of others. For these purposes, we are endowed with hearing, that by a proper exertion of our rational powers our happiness may be complete.

SEEING

Is that sense by which we distinguish objects, and in an instant of time, without change of place or situation, view armies in battle-array, figures of the most stately structures, and all the agreeable variety displayed in the landscape of nature. By this sense, we find our way on the pathless ocean, traverse the globe of the earth, determine its figure and dimensions, and delineate any region or quarter of it. By it we measure the planetary orbs, and make new discoveries in the sphere of the fixed stars. Nay, more: by it we perceive the tempers and dispositions, the passions and affections, of our fellow-creatures, when they wish most to conceal them; so that, though the tongue may be taught to lie and dissemble, the countenance would display the hypocrisy to the discerning eye. In fine, the rays of light, which administer to this sense, are the most astonishing part of the animated creation, and render the eye a peculiar object of admiration.

Of all the faculties, sight is the noblest. The structure of the eye, and its appurtenances, evince the admirable contrivance of nature for performing all its various external and internal motions; while the variety displayed in the eyes of different animals, suited to their several ways of life, clearly demonstrates this organ to be the masterpiece of Nature's work.

FEELING

Is that sense by which we distinguish the different qualities of bodies, such as heat and cold, hardness and softness, roughness and smoothness, figure, solidity, motion, and extension.

These three senses, Hearing, Seeing, and Feeling, are most revered among Masons.

SMELLING

Is that sense by which we distinguish odors, the various kinds of which convey different impressions to the mind. Animal and vegetable bodies, and indeed most other bodies, while exposed to the air, continually send forth effluvia of vast subtilty, as well in the state of life and growth as in the state of fermentation and putrefaction. These effluvia, being drawn into the nostrils along with the air, are the means by which all bodies are smelled. Hence it is evident that there is a manifest appearance of design in the great Creator's having planted the organ of smell in the inside of that canal, through which the air continually passes in respiration.

TASTING

Enables us to make a proper distinction in the choice of our food. The organ of this sense guards the entrance of the alimentary canal, as that of smelling guards the entrance of the canal for respiration. From the situation of both these organs, it is plain that they were intended by nature to distinguish wholesome food from that which is nauseous. Every thing that enters into the stomach must undergo the scrutiny of tasting; and by it we are capable of discerning the changes which the same body undergoes in the different compositions of art, cookery, chemistry, pharmacy, etc.

Smelling and tasting are inseparably connected; and it is by the unnatural kind of life men commonly lead in society, that these senses are rendered less fit to perform their natural offices.

OF THE SEVEN LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES, WHICH ARE—GRAMMAR, RHETORIC, LOGIC, ARITHMETIC, GEOMETRY, MUSIC, AND ASTRONOMY.

GRAMMAR

Teaches the proper arrangement of words, according to the idiom or dialect of any particular people, and that excellency of pronunciation which enables us to speak or write a language with accuracy, agreeably to reason and correct usage.

RHETORIC

Teaches us to speak copiously and fluently on any subject, not merely with propriety alone, but with all the advantages of force and elegance, wisely contriving to captivate the hearer by strength of argument and beauty of expression, whether it be to entreat or exhort, to admonish or applaud.

LOGIC

Teaches us to guide our reason discretionally in the general knowledge of things, and directs our inquiries after truth. It consists of a regular train of argument, whence we infer, deduce, and conclude, according to certain premises laid down, admitted, or granted; and in it are employed the faculties of conceiving, judging, reasoning, and disposing; all of which are naturally led on from one gradation to another, till the point in question is finally determined.

ARITHMETIC

Teaches the powers and properties of numbers, which is variously effected, by letters, tables, figures, and instruments. By this art, reasons and demonstrations are given for finding out any certain number whose relation or affinity to another is already known or discovered.

GEOMETRY.

Geometry treats of the powers and properties of magnitudes in general, where length, breadth, and thickness are considered, from a point to a line, from a line to a superficies, and from a superficies to a solid.

A point is a dimensionless figure, or an indivisible part of a space.

A line is a point continued, and a figure of one capacity, namely, length.

A superficies is a figure of two dimensions, namely, length and breadth.

A solid is a figure of three dimensions, namely, length, breadth, and thickness.

OF THE ADVANTAGES OF GEOMETRY.

By this science, the architect is enabled to construct his plans, and execute his designs; the general to arrange his soldiers; the geographer to give us the dimensions of the world, and all things therein contained, to delineate the extent of seas, and specify the divisions of empires, kingdoms, and provinces. By it, also, the astronomer is enabled to make his observations, and to fix the duration of time and seasons, years and cycles.

In fine, geometry is the foundation of architecture, and the root of the mathematics.

MUSIC

Teaches the art of forming concords, so as to compose delightful harmony, by a mathematical and proportional arrangement of acute, grave, and mixed sounds. This art, by a series of experiments, is reduced to a demonstrative science, with respect to tones and the intervals of sound. It inquires into the nature of concords and discords, and enables us to find out the proportion between them by numbers.

ASTRONOMY

Is that divine art by which we are taught to read the wisdom, strength, and beauty of the Almighty Creator in those sacred pages, the celestial hemisphere.

Assisted by astronomy, we can observe the magnitudes and calculate the periods and eclipses of the heavenly bodies. By it we learn the use of the globes, the system of the world, and the preliminary law of nature. While we are employed in the study of this science, we must perceive unparalleled instances of wisdom and goodness, and, through the whole creation, trace the glorious Author by his works.

* * * * *

OF THE MORAL ADVANTAGES OF GEOMETRY.

Geometry, the first and noblest of sciences, is the basis on which the superstructure of Masonry is erected. By geometry we may curiously trace Nature through her various windings to her most concealed recesses. By it we may discover the power, the wisdom, and the goodness of the Grand Artificer of the universe, and view with delight the proportions which connect this vast machine.

By it we may discover how the planets move in their different orbits, and demonstrate their various revolutions. By it we account for the return of seasons, and the variety of scenes which each season displays to the discerning eye. Numberless worlds are around us, all framed by the same Divine Artist, which roll through the vast expanse, and are all conducted by the same unerring law of nature.

A survey of Nature, and the observation of her beautiful proportions, first determined man to imitate the divine plan, and study symmetry and order. This gave rise to societies, and birth to every useful art. The architect began to design; and the plans which he laid down, being improved by experience and time, have produced works which are the admiration of every age.

The lapse of time, the ruthless hand of ignorance, and the devastations of war, have laid waste and destroyed many valuable monuments of antiquity, on which the utmost exertions of human genius have been employed. Even the temple of Solomon, so spacious and magnificent, and constructed by so many celebrated artists, escaped not the unsparing ravages of barbarous force. Free-Masonry, notwithstanding, has still survived. The attentive Ear receives the sound from the instructive Tongue; and the mysteries of Free-Masonry are safely lodged in the repository of faithful Breasts. Tools and instruments of architecture, and symbolic emblems, most expressive, are selected by the fraternity, to imprint on the mind wise and serious truths; and thus, through a succession of ages, are transmitted, unimpaired, the most excellent tenets of our institution.

* * * * * * *

CHARGE AT PASSING TO THE DEGREE OF FELLOW-CRAFT.

BROTHER:—

Being passed to the second degree of Masonry, we congratulate you on your preferment. The internal and not the external qualifications of a man are what Masonry regards. As you increase in knowledge, you will improve in social intercourse.

It is unnecessary to recapitulate the duties which, as a Mason, you are bound to discharge, or to enlarge on the necessity of a strict adherence to them, as your own experience must have established their value. Our laws and regulations you are strenuously to support, and be always ready to assist in seeing them duly executed. You are not to palliate or aggravate the offences of your Brethren; but in the decision of every trespass against our rules, you are to judge with candor, admonish with friendship, and reprehend with justice.

The study of the liberal arts, that valuable branch of education, which tends so effectually to polish and adorn the mind, is earnestly recommended to your consideration; especially the science of geometry, which is established as the basis of our art. Geometry, or Masonry, originally synonymous terms, being of a divine and moral nature, is enriched with the most useful knowledge: while it proves the wonderful properties of nature, it demonstrates the more important truths of morality.

Your past behavior and regular deportment have merited the honor which we have now conferred; and in your new character it is expected that you will conform to the principles of the order, by steadily persevering in the practice of every commendable virtue. Such is the nature of your engagement as a fellow-craft, and to these duties you are bound by the most sacred ties.

5*

Master Mason's Degree.

SECTION FIRST

SECTION SECOND.

SECTION THIRD.

1,453. Columns.

2,906. Pilasters.

3. Grand Masters.

3,300. Overséers.

80,000. Fellow Crafts.

70,000. Entered Apprentices.

$$7 \left\{ \frac{1}{6} \right.$$

$$5 \left\{ \frac{2}{3} \right.$$

8

MASTER MASON'S DEGREE.

SECTION FIRST.

THE ceremony of raising to the sublime degree of Master Mason is particularly specified, and other useful instructions are here given.

Officers.

W.: M.:, S.: W.:, J.: W.:, Treasurer, Secretary, S.: D.:, J.: D.:, two Stewards, and a Tyler.

Clothing.

Apron,—white lamb-skin, of the same size and shape as that of the preceding degrees, lined with white and edged with a binding of sky-blue watered silk three-fourths of an inch in width, with two sky-blue rosettes on the bottom and one on the flap of the apron. Dark or black clothes and white gloves should be worn by Officers and Brethren.

Official Clothing.

W.: M.: Collar,—blue silk velvet or watered silk three and one-half inches in width, edged with silver lace one-half of an inch wide;* upon the collar there should be seven embroidered silver stars one and a half inches in diameter, three upon each side and one in front immediately above the jewel. Jewel,—a silver square, worn suspended to the collar.

Apron,—same as that worn by the Brethren, but with a triple-tau cross  in each lower corner and upon the flap, instead of rosettes.†

* Custom has sanctioned the use of fringes to official collars in American and French Lodges. When worn, they should only be added to the collars of the W.: M.:, S.: W.:, and J.: W.:, and should be of silver, from one to two inches in width.

† As this is the emblem of the Royal Arch Degree, the forty-seventh prob-

S.: W.: Collar,—the same as that worn by the W.: M.:, with this exception,—it should have upon it but five stars (instead of seven), two upon each side and one immediately above the jewel. Jewel,—a silver level, worn suspended to the collar. Apron,—same as that worn by the Brethren.*

J.: W.: Collar,—the same as that worn by the S.: W.:, except that it should have but three stars upon it (instead of five), one upon each side and one immediately above the jewel. Jewel,—a silver plumb, worn suspended to the collar.

The collars of the other officers are the same as those above mentioned, but without stars or device. The official jewel of each officer is worn suspended to the collar, and are as follows:—

Treasurer, silver crossed keys;

Secretary, silver crossed pens;

Senior Deacon, silver compasses and square, with a sun in the centre;

Junior Deacon, silver compasses and square, with a moon in the centre;†

Stewards, silver cornucopia;

Tyler, crossed swords.

Opening.

* * * * *

CHARGE AT OPENING.

(Ps. xxix. 1, 2, 4, 11.)

Give unto the Lord, O ye mighty, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; worship the Lord in the beauty of Holiness.

lem of Euclid, or the square, upon the centre and an All-Seeing Eye upon the flap of the apron, would be more in accordance with the "American York Rite." Should either of the above devices be adopted, the rosettes should be left upon the lower corners.

* Should the device of the square, or forty-seventh problem of Euclid, be adopted upon the apron of the W.: M.:, then the level should be painted or embroidered upon the apron of the S.: W.:, and the plumb upon that of the J.: W.:.

† This is an innovation that should never have been tolerated. The jewel of the Deacon is a silver dove.

"The duties attached to the office of a Deacon are, 'to convey messages, to obey commands, and to assist at initiations, and in the general practice of the rites and ceremonies of the Order.' The jewel of their office is a dove, as an emblem of peace and characteristic of their duties."—OLLIVER, Dictionary of Symbolical Masonry, p. 61.

The voice of the Lord is powerful; the voice of the Lord is full of majesty. The Lord will give strength unto his people; the Lord will bless his people with peace.

Reception.

* * * * *

(Eccl. xii. 1-7.)

“Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them; while the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain; in the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened; and the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low; and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of music shall be brought low. Also, when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way, and the almond-tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail; because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets: or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern. Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it.”

* * * * *

The working tools of a Master Mason are all the implements of Masonry indiscriminately, but more especially the trowel.

The Trowel is an instrument made use of by operative masons to spread the cement which unites a building into one common mass; but we, as Free and Accepted Masons, are taught to make use of it for the more noble and glorious purpose of spreading the cement of Brotherly Love and affection; that cement which unites us into one sacred band, or society of friends and brothers, among whom no contention should ever exist but that noble contention, or rather emulation, of who can best work, or best agree.

SECTION SECOND.

This section recites the historical traditions of the order, and presents to view a finished picture of the utmost consequence to the fraternity. It exemplifies an instance of virtue, fortitude, and integrity seldom equalled in the history of man.

* * * * *

PLEYEL'S HYMN.

So - lemn strikes the fu - neral chime, Notes of our de-part - ed time, As we jour - ney

Mortals, now indulge a tear;
For mortality is here!
See how wide her trophies wave
O'er the slumbers of the grave.

Here another guest we bring:
Seraph of celestial wing,
To our funeral altar come;
Waft this friend and brother home.

There, enlarged, his soul shall see
What was veil'd in mystery;
Heavenly glories of the place
Show his Maker face to face.

* * * * *

PRAYER AT RAISING A BROTHER TO THE SUBLIME DEGREE OF MASTER MASON.

Thou, O God! knowest our down-sitting and our uprising, and understandest our thoughts afar off. Shield and defend us from the evil intentions of our enemies, and support us under the trials and afflictions we are destined to endure while travelling through this vale of tears. Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth as a flower, and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not.
Seeing his days are determined, the number of his months are with thee, thou hast appointed his bounds that he cannot pass; turn from him that he may rest, till he shall accomplish his day. For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease. But man dieth and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up, so man lieth down, and riseth not up till the heavens shall be no more. Yet, O Lord! have compassion on the children of thy creation; administer them comfort in time of trouble, and save them with an everlasting salvation.

So mote it be. Amen.

* * * * *

SECTION THIRD.

The third section illustrates certain hieroglyphical emblems, and inculcates many useful lessons, to extend knowledge and promote virtue. In this branch of the lecture, many particulars relative to King Solomon's Temple are noticed.

This famous fabric was supported by fourteen hundred and fifty-three columns, and two thousand nine hundred and six pilasters, all hewn from the finest Parian marble. There were employed in its building three Grand Masters, three thousand three hundred overseers of the work, eighty thousand Fellow-Crafts; and seventy thousand Entered Apprentices, or bearers of burdens.

* * * * *

THE THREE STEPS

Usually delineated upon the Master's carpet, are emblematic of the three principal stages of human life, viz.: youth, manhood, and age. In youth, as Entered Apprentices, we ought industriously to occupy our minds in the attainment of useful knowledge; in manhood, as Fellow-Crafts, we should apply our knowledge to the discharge of our respective duties to God, our neighbors, and ourselves; that so in age as Master Masons, we may enjoy the happy reflections consequent on a well-spent life, and die in the hope of a glorious immortality.

THE POT OF INCENSE

Is an emblem of a pure heart, which is always an acceptable sacrifice to the Deity; and, as this glows with fervent heat, so should our hearts continually glow with gratitude to the great beneficent Author of our existence, for the manifold blessings and comforts we enjoy.

THE BEE-HIVE

Is an emblem of industry, and recommends the practice of that virtue to all created beings, from the highest seraph in heaven to the lowest reptile of the dust. It teaches us that, as we came into the world rational and intelligent beings, so we should ever be industrious ones, never sitting down contented while our fellow-creatures around us are in want, when it is in our power to relieve them without inconvenience to ourselves.

THE BOOK OF CONSTITUTIONS, GUARDED BY THE TYLER'S SWORD,

Reminds us that we should be ever watchful and guarded in our words and actions, particularly when before the enemies of Masonry; ever bearing in remembrance those truly Masonic virtues, silence and circumspection.

THE SWORD, POINTING TO A NAKED HEART,

Demonstrates that justice will sooner or later overtake us; and although our thoughts, words, and actions may be hidden from the eyes of men, yet that whom the SUN, MOON, and STARS obey, and under whose watchful care even COMETS perform their stupendous revolutions, pervades the inmost recesses of the human HEART, and will reward us according to our merits.

ALL-SEEING EYE,

THE ANCHOR AND ARK

Are emblems of a well-grounded hope and a well-spent life. They are emblematical of that divine Ark which safely wafts us over this tempestuous sea of troubles, and that Anchor which shall safely moor us in a peaceful harbor, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary shall find rest.

THE FORTY-SEVENTH PROBLEM OF EUCLID.

This was an invention of our ancient friend and Brother the great Pythagoras, who, in his travels through Asia, Africa, and Europe, was initiated into several orders of priesthood, and raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. This wise philosopher enriched his mind abundantly in a general knowledge of things, and more especially in geometry, or masonry. On this subject he drew out many problems and theorems; and among the most distinguished he erected this, which, in the joy of his heart, he called Ευρηκα (Eureka) in the Grecian language, signifying, I have found it; and upon the discovery of which he is said to have sacrificed a hecatomb. It teaches Masons to be general lovers of the arts and sciences.

THE HOUR-GLASS

Is an emblem of human life. Behold how swiftly the sands run, and how rapidly our lives are drawing to a close! We cannot without astonishment behold the little particles which are contained in this machine,—how they pass away almost imperceptibly, and yet, to our surprise, in the short space of an hour they are all exhausted. Thus wastes man! To-day he puts forth the tender leaves of hope; to-morrow, blossoms, and bears his blushing honors thick upon him; the next day comes a frost, which nips the shoot; and when he thinks his greatness is still aspiring, he falls, like autumn leaves, to enrich our mother earth.

THE SCYTHE

Is an emblem of time, which cuts the brittle thread of life and launches us into eternity. Behold what havoc the scythe of time makes among the human race! If by chance we should escape the numerous evils incident to childhood and youth, and with health and vigor arrive to the years of manhood, yet, withal, we must soon be cut down by the all-devouring scythe of time, and be gathered into the land where our fathers have gone before us.

* * * * *

CHARGE AT RAISING TO THE SUBLIME DEGREE OF MASTER MASON.

BROTHER:—

Your zeal for the institution of Masonry, the progress you have made in the mystery, and your conformity to our regulations have pointed you out as a proper object of our favor and esteem. You are now bound by duty, honor, and gratitude to be faithful to your trust, to support the dignity of your character on every occasion, and to enforce, by precept and example, obedience to the tenets of the order.

In the character of a Master Mason, you are authorized to correct the errors and irregularities of your uninformed Brethren, and to guard them against a breach of fidelity. To preserve the reputation of the fraternity unsullied must be your constant care; and for this purpose it is your province to recommend to your inferiors obedience and submission, to your equals courtesy and affability, to your superiors kindness and condescension. Universal benevolence you are always to inculcate, and by the regularity of your own behavior afford the best example for the conduct of others less informed. The ancient landmarks of the order, intrusted to your care, you are carefully to preserve, and never suffer them to be infringed, or countenance a deviation from the established usages and customs of the fraternity.

Your virtue, honor, and reputation are concerned in supporting with dignity the character you now bear. Let no motive, therefore, make you swerve from your duty, violate your vows, or betray your trust ; but be true and faithful, and imitate the example of that celebrated artist whom you this evening represent. Thus you will render yourself deserving of the honor which we have conferred, and merit the confidence that we have reposed.

Mark Master's Degree.

SECTION FIRST.

SECTION SECOND.

II. CHRONICLES, II.-XVI.

MARK MASTER'S DEGREE.

By the influence of this degree, each operative mason at the erection of King Solomon's temple was known and distinguished by the Senior Grand Warden. If defects were found, the overseers were enabled without difficulty to ascertain who was the faulty workman, so that deficiencies might be remedied without injuring the credit or diminishing the reward of the industrious and faithful of the craft.

SECTION FIRST.

The first section explains the manner of opening a Mark Master's Lodge, and recapitulates the mystic ceremony of the preparatory circumstance of introducing a candidate. The number of artists employed in building the Temple is specified; and the progress they made in architecture is remarked; and it ends with a beautiful display of the manner in which one of the principal events originated which characterizes this degree.

Officers.

R.: W.: M.:, S.: W.:, J.: W.:, T.:, S.:, S.: D.:, J.: D.:, M.: O.:, S.: O.:, J.: O.:, M.: of C.:, and Tyler.

Opening.

CHARGE TO BE READ AT OPENING.

(ISA. xxviii. 16, 17, 25.)

Give ye ear, and hear my voice; hearken, and hear my speech.

Thus saith the LORD GOD, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner-stone, a sure foundation : he that believeth shall not make haste.

Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet. And the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding-place.

SECTION SECOND.

In the second section is recited the mode of advancing a candidate to this degree, by which the Mark Master is instructed in the origin and history of the degree, and in the indispensable obligations he is under to stretch forth an assisting hand for the relief of an indigent and worthy Brother. We are here taught to ascribe praise to the meritorious and to dispense rewards to the diligent and industrious.

Reception.

* * * * *

“The stone which the builders refused is become the headstone of the corner.”—Ps. cxviii. 22.

“Did ye never read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner?”—MATT. xxi. 42.

“And have you not read the Scripture, The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner?”—MARK xii. 10.

“What is this, then, that is written, The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner?”—LUKE xx. 17.

* * * * *

“This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner."—ACTS iv. 11.

"To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna; and I will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving him that receiveth it."—REV. ii. 17.

* * * * *

"He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear."—REV. iii. 13. * * *

"And we will cut wood out of Lebanon, as much as thou shalt need; and we will bring it to thee in floats by sea to Joppa, and thou shalt carry it up to Jerusalem."—2 CHRON. ii. 16. * * *

"Then he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary, which looketh towards the east, and it was shut. And the Lord said unto me, Son of man, mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, all that I say unto thee, concerning all the ordinances of the house of the Lord, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary."—EZEK. xliv. 1, 5.

* * * * *

The working tools of a Mark Master are the chisel and mallet.

THE CHISEL

Morally demonstrates the advantages of discipline and education. The mind, like the diamond in its original state, is rude and unpolished; but as the effect of the chisel on the external coat soon presents to view the latent beauties of the diamond, so education discovers the latent virtues of the mind, and draws them forth to range the large field of matter and space, to display the summit of human knowledge, our duty to God and to man.

THE MALLET

Morally teaches to correct irregularities, and reduce man to a proper level; so that, by quiet deportment, he may, in the school of discipline, learn to be content. What the mallet is to the workman, enlightened reason is to the passions: it curbs ambition, it depresses envy, it moderates anger, and it encourages good dispositions; whence arises among good Masons that comely order, “Which nothing earthly gives, or can destroy,—

The soul’s calm sunshine, and the heart-felt joy.”

* * * * *

MARK MASTER’S SONG.

Mark Mas - ters, all ap - pear; Be - fore the

Mark Mas - ters, all ap - pear; Be - fore the

The musical notation for the first system consists of three staves. The top staff is in treble clef, the middle in treble clef, and the bottom in bass clef. All three staves are in 3/4 time and have a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The melody is written on the top staff, with the lyrics 'Mark Mas - ters, all ap - pear; Be - fore the' underneath. The middle and bottom staves provide harmonic accompaniment.

Chief O'erseer In con - cert move: Let him your

Chief O'erseer In con - cert move: Let him your

The musical notation for the second system consists of three staves. The top staff is in treble clef, the middle in treble clef, and the bottom in bass clef. All three staves are in 3/4 time and have a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The melody is written on the top staff, with the lyrics 'Chief O'erseer In con - cert move: Let him your' underneath. The middle and bottom staves provide harmonic accompaniment. The system ends with a double bar line and repeat dots.

You who have passed the square,
For your rewards prepare,
Join heart and hand;
Each with his mark in view,
March with the just and true:
Wages to you are due,
At your command.

Hiram, the widow's son,
Sent unto Solomon
Our great key-stone;
On it appears the name
Which raises high the fame
Of all to whom the same
Is truly known.

Now to the westward move,
Where, full of strength and love,
Hiram doth stand;
But if impostors are
Mix'd with the worthy there,
Caution them to beware
Of the right hand.

Now to the praise of those
Who triumph'd o'er the foes
Of Masons' art,—
To the praiseworthy three
Who founded this degree:
May all their virtues be Deep in our hearts.

Previous to closing, the following Parable is recited.

(MATT. xx. 1-16.)*

"For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard. And when he had agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market-place, and said unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right, I will give you. And they went their way. And again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour he went out and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle? They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive. So, when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the laborers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first. And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny. But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny. And when they had received it, they murmured against the good man of the house, saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day. But he answered one of them and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a penny? Take that thine is, and go thy way: I will give unto this last, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good? So the last shall be first, and the first last: for many be called, but few chosen."

CHARGE TO BE READ WHEN A CANDIDATE IS ADVANCED TO THE DEGREE OF MARK MASTER.

BROTHER:—

I congratulate you on having been thought worthy of being advanced to this honorable degree of Masonry. Permit me to impress it on your mind that your assiduity should ever be commensurate with your duties, which become more and more extensive as you advance in Masonry. In the honorable character of Mark Master Mason, it is more particularly your duty to endeavor to let your conduct in the Lodge and among your Brethren be such as may stand the test of the Grand Overseer's square, that you may not, like the unfinished and imperfect work of the negligent and unfaithful of former times, be rejected and thrown aside, as unfit for that spiritual building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

* The introduction of this parable and the use of quotations from the New Testament Scriptures in working the degree of "Mark Mason," are "Americanisms,"—too long sanctioned by custom, however, to admit of change other than by order of the General Grand Chapter of the United States.

While such is your conduct, should misfortunes assail you, should friends forsake you, should envy traduce your good name, and malice persecute you; yet may you have confidence that among Mark Master Masons you will find friends who will administer relief to your distresses, and comfort to your afflictions; ever bearing in mind, as a consolation under all the frowns of fortune, and as an encouragement to hope for better prospects, that the stone which the builders rejected [possessing merits to them unknown], became the chief stone of the corner.

The following selection may be read at Closing.

Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; not one of the stakes thereof shall ever be removed, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken. But there the glorious Lord will be unto us a place of broad rivers and streams; wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby. For the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he will save us.—

ISAIAH xxxiii. 20, 21, 22.

Past Master's Degree.

PRESENT OR PAST MASTER'S DEGREE.

THIS degree treats of the government of our society; the disposition of our rulers; and illustrates their requisite qualifications. It includes the ceremony of opening and closing Lodges in the several preceding degrees: it comprehends the ceremonies and forms of installations, consecrations, laying the foundation-stones of public buildings, and also at dedications and at funerals, by a variety of particulars explanatory of those ceremonies.

SECTION FIRST.

This section explains the manner of opening and closing a Lodge of Past Masters, and illustrates the ceremonies of the Reception of a Candidate.

Officers.

R.: W.: M.:, S.: W.:, J.: W.:, T.:, S.:, S.: D.:, J.: D.:, and Tiler.

Clothing.

The apron is of white lamb-skin, edged with purple, with the jewel of the degree inscribed upon it. The collar is of purple, edged with gold. The jewel is a pair of golden compasses extended to sixty degrees, resting on the fourth of a circle, with a flaming sun between the extended legs of the compasses.

Opening.

* * * * *

CHARGE ON OPENING A LODGE OF PAST MASTERS.

“Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. The ungodly are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish.”—Ps. i.

Reception.

* * * * *

Previous to the investiture of the Candidate, he is required to signify his assent to the following charges:—

BROTHER:—

Previous to your investiture, it is necessary that you should signify your assent to those ancient charges and regulations which point out the duty of the Master of a Lodge.

I. You agree to be a good man and true, and strictly to obey the moral law.

II. You agree to be a peaceable citizen, and cheerfully to conform to the laws of the country in which you reside.

III. You promise not to be concerned in plots and conspiracies against government, but patiently to submit to the decisions of the supreme legislature.

IV. You agree to pay a proper respect to the civil magistrates, to work diligently, live creditably, and act honorably by all men.

V. You agree to hold in veneration the original rules and patrons of the order of Masonry, and their regular successors, supreme and subordinate, according to their stations; and to submit to the awards and resolutions of your Brethren, when convened, in every case consistent with the constitutions of the order.

VI. You agree to avoid private piques and quarrels, and to guard against intemperance and excess.

VII. You agree to be cautious in carriage and behavior, courteous to your Brethren, and faithful to your Lodge.

VIII. You promise to respect genuine Brethren, and to discountenance impostors, and all dissenters from the original plan of Masonry.

IX. You agree to promote the general good of society, to cultivate the social virtues, and to propagate the knowledge of the art.

X. You promise to pay homage to the Grand Master for the time-being, and to his officers when duly installed, and strictly to conform to every edict of the Grand Lodge, or general assembly of Masons, that is not subversive of the principles and groundwork of Masonry.

XI. You admit that it is not in the power of any man, or body of men, to make innovations in the body of Masonry.

XII. You promise a regular attendance on the committees and communications of the Grand Lodge, on receiving proper notice, and to pay attention to all the duties of Masonry, on convenient occasions.

XIII. You admit that no new Lodge shall be formed without permission of the Grand Lodge; and that no countenance be given to an irregular Lodge, or to any person clandestinely initiated therein, being contrary to the ancient charges of the order.

XIV. You admit that no person can be regularly made a Mason in, or admitted a member of, any regular Lodge, without previous notice, and due inquiry into his character.

XV. You agree that no visitors shall be received into your Lodge without due examination, and producing proper vouchers of their having been initiated into a regular Lodge.

These are the regulations of Free and Accepted Masons.

Do you submit to these charges, and promise to support these regulations, as Masters have done in all ages before you?

After his investiture, the implements of a Past Master are presented to the Candidate, and their uses explained.

The Book of the Law—that great light in Masonry—will guide you to all truth; it will direct your path to the temple of happiness, and point out to you the whole duty of man.

The Square teaches us to regulate our actions by rule and line, and to harmonize our conduct by the principles of morality and virtue.

The Compasses teach us to limit our desires in every station, that, rising to eminence by merit, we may live respected and die regretted.

The Rule directs that we should punctually observe our duty, press forward in the path of virtue, and, neither inclining to the right nor to the left, in all our actions have eternity in view.

The Line teaches the criterion of moral rectitude, to avoid dissimulation in conversation and action, and to direct our steps to the path which leads to a glorious immortality.

The Book of Constitutions you are to search at all times. Cause it to be read in your Lodge, that none may pretend ignorance of the excellent precepts it enjoins.

You now receive in charge the Charter, by the authority of which this Lodge is held. You are carefully to preserve and duly transmit it to your successor in office.

You will also receive in charge the By-Laws of your Lodge, which you are to see carefully and punctually executed.

CHARGE TO BE READ TO THE CANDIDATE UPON PASSING THE CHAIR.

BROTHER :—

Having been temporarily appointed Master of this Lodge to qualify you for passing the Chair, that you might thereby be entitled to advance to the Holy Royal Arch, you cannot be insensible to the obligations devolving upon you.

For a pattern of imitation, consider the great luminary of nature, which, rising in the East, regularly diffuses light and lustre to all within its circle. In like manner, it is your province to spread and communicate light and instruction to your Brethren. Forcibly impress upon them the dignity and high importance of Masonry; and seriously admonish them never to disgrace it. Charge them to practise out of the Lodge those duties which are taught in it, and, by amiable, discreet, and virtuous conduct, to convince mankind of the goodness of the Institution: so that, when any one is said to be a member of it, the world may know that he is one to whom the burdened heart may pour out its sorrows, to whom distress may prefer its suit; whose hand is guided by justice, and whose heart is expanded by benevolence. In short, by a diligent observance of the by-laws of your Lodge, the Constitutions of Masonry, and, above all, the Holy Scriptures, which are given as a rule and guide to your faith, you will be enabled to acquit yourself with honor and reputation, and lay up a crown of rejoicing which shall continue when time shall be no more.

PRAYER ON CLOSING A LODGE OF PAST MASTERS.

“Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; and deliver us, and purge away our sins, for thy name’s sake.”—Ps. lxxix. 9.

SECTION SECOND.

This section contains the form of a petition for letters of dispensation, or a warrant of constitution for a Lodge, empowering them to work. The ceremonies of Constitution and Consecration are considered, with the form of a Grand Procession.

FORM OF PETITION FOR A CHARTER OR WARRANT TO ESTABLISH A NEW LODGE.

To the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of the State of _____, the petitioners humbly show, that they are ancient free and accepted Master Masons. Having the prosperity of the Fraternity at heart, they are willing to exert their best endeavors to promote and diffuse the genuine principles of Masonry.

For the convenience of their respective dwellings, and for other good reasons, they are desirous of forming a new Lodge in the town of ———, to be named ———. In consequence of this desire, and for the good of the craft, they pray for a Charter, or Warrant, to empower them to assemble as a legal Lodge, to discharge the duties of Masonry, in the several degrees of Entered Apprentice, Fellow-Craft, and Master Mason, in a regular and constitutional manner, according to the ancient form of the fraternity, and the laws and regulations of the Grand Lodge. That they have nominated and do recommend A. B. to be the first Master, C. D. to be the first Senior Warden, and E. F. to be the first Junior Warden of said Lodge; that, if the prayer of the petition should be granted, they promise a strict conformity to all the constitutional laws, rules, and regulations of the Grand Lodge.

This petition must be signed by at least seven regular Masons, and recommended by some Lodge contiguous to the place where the new Lodge is to be held. It must be delivered to the Grand Secretary, whose duty it is to lay it before the Grand Lodge.

After a charter is granted by the Grand Lodge, the Grand Master appoints a day and hour for constituting and consecrating the new Lodge, and for installing the Master, Wardens, and other officers. The Grand Master has power to appoint some worthy Past Master, with full power to consecrate, constitute, and install the petitioners.

CEREMONY OF CONSTITUTION AND CONSECRATION.

On the day and hour appointed, the Grand Master and his officers meet in a convenient room near to the Lodge to be constituted, and open in the third degree. After the officers in the new lodge are examined, they send a messenger to the Grand Master, with the following message, viz. :—

MOST WORSHIPFUL :—

The officers and brethren of ——— Lodge, who are now assembled at ———, have instructed me to inform you that the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge was pleased to grant them a Charter, authorizing them to form and open a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in the town of ———. They are now desirous that their Lodge should be consecrated, and their officers installed in due and ancient form; for which purpose they are now met, and await the pleasure of the Most Worshipful Grand Master.

*When notice is given, the Grand Lodge walk in procession to the hall of the new Lodge. When the Grand Master enters, the grand honors are given by the new Lodge, the officers of which resign their seats to the Grand Officers, and take their several stations on the left.

The necessary cautions are given, and all, excepting PRESENT or PAST MASTERS of Lodges, are requested to retire until the Master of the new Lodge is inducted into the Oriental Chair of Solomon. He is then bound to the faithful performance of his trust, and invested with the characteristics of the chair.

Upon due notice, the Grand Marshal reconducts the Brethren into the hall; and all take their places, except the members of the new Lodge, who form a procession on one side of the hall. As they advance, the Grand Master addresses them:

“Brethren, behold your Master!”

“Master, behold your Lodge!”

The Brethren make the proper salutations as they pass the east. A grand procession is then formed, in the following order, viz.:—

Marshals.

Tiler with a drawn Sword;
Two Stewards with white Rods;
Entered Apprentices;*
Fellow-Crafts;
Master Masons;
Stewards;
Junior Deacons;
Senior Deacons;
Secretaries;
Treasurers;

* The Entered Apprentices and Fellow-Crafts take their places in the procession outside of the Lodge.

MASONIC CHART.

Past Wardens;
 Junior Wardens;
 Senior Wardens;
 Past Masters;
 Mark Masters;
 Royal Arch Masons;
 Select Masters;
 Knights Templar;
 Masters of Lodges.

The New Lodge.

Tiler with a drawn Sword;
 Stewards with white Rods;
 Entered Apprentices;
 Fellow-Crafts;
 Master Masons;
 Junior and Senior Deacons;
 Secretary and Treasurer;
 Two Brethren, carrying the Lodge;*
 Junior and Senior Wardens;
 The Holy Writings, carried by the oldest or some suitable member, not in office;
 The W. Master;
 Music;

The Grand Lodge.

Grand Tiler with drawn Sword;
 Grand Stewards with white Rods;
 A Brother carrying a Golden Vessel of Corn;†
 Two Brethren, carrying the Silver Vessels, one of Wine, the other of Oil;
 Grand Secretaries;
 Grand Treasurers;
 A burning Taper,‡ borne by a Past Master;

* Carpet.

‡ This Taper should be of blue wax.

† Wheat.

A Past Master bearing the Holy Writings, Square and Compasses, supported by two Stewards with white Rods ;

Two burning Tapers, borne by two Past Masters ;*

The Tuscan and Composite Orders ;

The Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian Orders ;

Past Grand Wardens ;

Marshal ; Past Deputy Grand Masters ;

Past Grand Masters ;

The Globes ;

Clergy and Orator ;

R. W. Junior and Senior Grand Wardens ;

R. W. Deputy Grand Master ;

The Master of the oldest Lodge, carrying the Book of Constitutions ;

The M W. Grand Master ;

The Grand Deacons, on a line seven feet apart,

on the right and left of the Grand Master,

with black Rods ;

Grand Sword Bearer, with a drawn Sword ;

Two Stewards with white Rods.

The Marshals conduct the procession to the church or hall where the services are to be performed. When the front of the procession arrives at the door they halt, open to the right and left, and face inward, while the Grand Master and others, in succession, pass through and enter the house.

A platform is erected in front of the pulpit, and provided with seats for the accommodation of the Grand Officers.

The Holy Bible, Square and Compasses, and Book of Constitutions, are placed upon a table in front of the Grand Master : the flooring is then spread in the centre, upon the platform, covered with white satin or linen, and encompassed by the three tapers, and the vessels of corn, wine, and oil.

SERVICES.

1. A piece of Music.
2. Prayer.

* The Taper upon the right should be of white, and the one upon the left of red, wax.

3. An Oration.

4. A piece of Music.

5. The Grand Marshal forms the officers and members of the new Lodge in front of the Grand Master. The Deputy Grand Master addresses the Grand Master as follows :

MOST WORSHIPFUL :—

A number of Brethren, duly instructed in the mysteries of Masonry, having assembled together at stated periods, by virtue of a dispensation granted them for that purpose, do now desire to be constituted into a regular Lodge, agreeably to the ancient usages and customs of the fraternity.

The dispensation and records are presented to the Grand Master, who examines the records, and, if found correct, proclaims :—

The records appear to be correct, and are approved. Upon due deliberation, the Grand Lodge have granted the Brethren of this new Lodge a charter, establishing and confirming them in the rights and privileges of a regular constituted Lodge ; which the Grand Secretary will now read.

After the charter is read, the Grand Master then says :—

We shall now proceed, according to ancient usage, to constitute these Brethren into a regular Lodge.

Whereupon the several officers of the new Lodge deliver up their jewels and badges to their Master, who presents them, with his own, to the Deputy Grand Master, and he to the Grand Master.

The Deputy Grand Master presents the Master Elect to the Grand Master, saying :—

MOST WORSHIPFUL :—

I present you Brother ———, whom the members of the Lodge, now to be constituted, have chosen for their Master.

The Grand Master asks them if they remain satisfied with their choice. [They bow in token of assent.]

The Master Elect then presents, severally, his Wardens and other officers, naming them and their respective offices. The Grand Master asks the Brethren if they remain satisfied with each and all of them. [They bow as before.]

The officers and members of the new Lodge form in front of the Grand Master, and the business of Consecration commences with solemn music.

6. Ceremony of Consecration.

The Grand Master, attended by the Grand Officers and the Grand Chaplain, form themselves in order round the Lodge,—all devoutly kneeling.

7. A piece of solemn music is performed while the Lodge is uncovered.

After which, the first clause of the Consecration Prayer is rehearsed, which is as follows :—

“Great Architect of the universe! Maker and Ruler of all worlds! Deign, from thy celestial temple, from realms of light and glory, to bless us in all the purposes of our present assembly! We humbly invoke thee to give us, at this and at all times, wisdom in all our doings, strength of mind in all our difficulties, and the beauty of harmony in all our communications! Permit us, O thou Author of light and life, great Source of love and happiness, to erect this Lodge, and now solemnly to consecrate it to the honor of thy holy name!

“Glory be to God on high.”

[Response by the Brethren.]

“As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be; world without end. Amen.”

The Deputy Grand Master takes the Golden Vessel of Corn, and the Senior and Junior Grand Wardens take the Silver Vessels of Wine and Oil, and sprinkle the elements of consecration upon the Lodge.

The Grand Chaplain then continues:

“Grant, O Lord our God, that those who are now about to be invested with the government of this Lodge may be endued with wisdom to instruct their Brethren in all their duties. May brotherly love, relief, and truth always prevail among the members of this Lodge; and may this bond of union continue to strengthen the Lodges throughout the world!

"Bless all our Brethren, wherever dispersed; and grant speedy relief to all who are either oppressed or distressed.

"We affectionately commend to thee all the members of thy whole family. May they increase in grace, in the knowledge of thee, and in the love of each other.

"Finally: may we finish all our work here below with thy approbation; and then have our transition from this earthly abode to thy heavenly temple above, there to enjoy light, glory, and bliss, ineffable and eternal!

"Glory be to God on high."

[Response by the Brethren.]

"As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be. So mote it be. Amen."

8. A piece of solemn music is performed while the Lodge is covered.

9. The Grand Chaplain then dedicates the Lodge in the following terms:—

"To the memory of the HOLY ST. JOHNS, we dedicate this Lodge. May every brother revere their character, and imitate their virtues!

"Glory be to God on high."

[Response.]

"As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end.

"So mote it be. Amen."

10. A piece of music is performed, while the Brethren of the new Lodge advance in procession to salute the Grand Lodge, with their hands crossed upon their breasts, and bowing as they pass. They then take their places as they were.

11. The Grand Master then rises, and constitutes the new Lodge in the form following:—

“In the name of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge, I now constitute and form you, my beloved Brethren, into a regular Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. From henceforth I empower you to meet as a regular Lodge, constituted in conformity to the rites of our order, and the charges of our ancient and honorable Fraternity; and may the Supreme Architect of the Universe prosper, direct, and counsel you in all your doings!

[Response.]

“So mote it be. Amen.”

SECTION SECOND.

CEREMONY OF INSTALLATION.

The Grand Master, or presiding officer, addresses the Master Elect in the words following, viz.:—

BROTHER:—

Previous to your investiture, it is necessary that you should signify your assent to those ancient charges and regulations which point out the duty of a Master of a Lodge.

I. You agree to be a good man and true, and strictly to obey the moral law.

II. You agree to be a peaceable subject, and cheerfully to conform to the laws of the country in which you reside.

III. You promise not to be concerned in plots and conspiracies against government, but patiently to submit to the decisions of the supreme legislature.

IV. You agree to pay a proper respect to the civil magistrates, to work diligently, live creditably, and act honorably by all men.

V. You agree to hold in veneration the original rules and patrons of the order of Masonry, and their regular successors, supreme and subordinate, according to their stations, and to submit to the awards and resolutions of your Brethren, when convened, in every case consistent with the constitutions of the order.

VI. You agree to avoid private piques and quarrels, and to guard against intemperance and excess.

VII. You agree to be cautious in carriage and behavior, courteous to your Brethren, and faithful to your Lodge.

VIII. You promise to respect genuine Brethren, and to discountenance impostors, and all dissenters from the original plan of Masonry.

IX. You agree to promote the general good of society, to cultivate the social virtues, and to propagate the knowledge of the art.

X. You promise to pay homage to the Grand Master for the time-being, and to his officers when duly installed; and strictly to conform to every edict of the Grand Lodge, or general assembly of Masons, that is not subversive of the principles and groundwork of Masonry.

XI. You admit that it is not in the power of any man, or body of men, to make innovations in the body of Masonry.

XII. You promise a regular attendance on the committees and communications of the Grand Lodge, on receiving proper notice, and to pay attention to all the duties of Masonry, on convenient occasions.

XIII. You admit that no new Lodge shall be formed without permission of the Grand Lodge; and that no countenance be given to an irregular Lodge, or to any person clandestinely initiated therein, being contrary to the ancient charges of the order.

XIV. You admit that no person can be regularly made a Mason in, or admitted a member of, any regular Lodge, without previous notice, and due inquiry into his character.

XV. You agree that no visitors shall be received into your Lodge, without due examination, and producing proper vouchers of their having been initiated into a regular Lodge.

These are the regulations of Free and Accepted Masons.

Do you submit to these charges, and promise to support these regulations, as Masters have done in all ages before you?

The Master is to answer, I do.

The presiding officer then addresses him:—

BROTHER A. B.:—

In consequence of your cheerful conformity to the charges and regulations of the order, you are now to be installed Master of this* Lodge, in full confidence of your care, skill, and capacity to govern the same.

The new Master is then regularly invested with the insignia of his office, and the furniture and implements of his Lodge.

The various implements of the profession are emblematic of our conduct in life, and upon this occasion are carefully enumerated.

The Holy Writings, that great light in Masonry, will guide you to all truth: it will direct your path to the temple of happiness, and point out to you the whole duty of man.

The Square teaches us to regulate our actions by rule and line, and harmonize our conduct by the principles of morality and virtue.

The Compasses teach us to limit our desires in every station; that, rising to eminence by merit, we may live respected and die regretted.

The Rule directs that we should punctually observe our duty, press forward in the path of virtue, and, neither

* If the Lodge is installed for the first time, it is called "this new Lodge." inclining to the right nor to the left, in all our actions have eternity in view.

The Line teaches the criterion of moral rectitude, to avoid dissimulation in conversation and action, and to direct our steps to the path which leads to a glorious immortality.

The Book of Constitutions you are to search at all times. Cause it to be read in your Lodge, that none may pretend ignorance of the excellent precepts it enjoins.

You will also receive in charge the By-Laws of your Lodge, which you are to see carefully and punctually executed.

CHARGE UPON THE INSTALLATION OF THE MASTER OF A LODGE.

WORSHIPFUL MASTER:—

Being appointed Master of this Lodge, you cannot be insensible of the obligations which devolve on you, as their head; nor of your responsibility for the faithful discharge of the important duties annexed to your appointment.

The honor, reputation, and usefulness of your Lodge will materially depend on the skill and assiduity with which you manage its concerns; while the happiness of its members will be generally promoted in proportion to the zeal and ability with which you propagate the genuine principles of our institution.

For a pattern of imitation, consider the great luminary of nature, which, rising in the East, regularly diffuses light and lustre to all within its circle. In like manner, it is your province to spread and communicate light and instruction to the Brethren of your Lodge. Forcibly impress upon them the dignity and high importance of Masonry, and seriously admonish them never to disgrace it. Charge them to practise out of the Lodge those duties which are taught in it; and by amiable, discreet, and vir-tuous conduct, to convince mankind of the goodness of the institution: so that, when any one is said to be a member of it, the world may know that he is one to whom the burdened heart may pour out its sorrows, to whom distress may prefer its suit; whose hand is guided by justice, and his heart expanded by benevolence. In short, by a diligent observance of the by-laws of your Lodge, the Constitutions of Masonry, and, above all, the Holy Scriptures, which are given as a rule and guide to your faith, you will be enabled to acquit yourself with honor and reputation, and lay up a crown of rejoicing, which shall continue when time shall be no more.

The symbolic colors of your station are white, and are emblematic of Innocence, of Peace, and of Wisdom.

In its application to humanity the color white denotes purity, good reputation, and happiness. In its Sacred Language it signifies the regeneration of the soul, and in Divine Language it is the symbol of the Divine Wisdom of the Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe.

“Wisdom,” says Solomon, “is the glorious emanation of the All-Powerful Divine, the purity of eternal light, the spotless mirror of the operations of God, and the image of his goodness; it is a one, yet is capable of becoming a plurality. The Prophets saw the Divinity clothed in a garment white as snow, and his hair white, like unto wool.” “God created the universe from his love, and he sustains it by his wisdom. In every system of Cosmogony the Divine wisdom, the Eternal light, dissipates the primitive darkness, and fashions the world in the womb of Chaos.”* This symbol is also represented by a white taper, which at the opening of the Lodge you are (presumed) to light at the altar, thereby reminding you that before entering upon the important duties of your station you should first seek to be enlightened by that Divine wisdom which can only be obtained by diligently searching the revealed word of Him "who is without beginning of days or end of years."

* Book of Wisdom vii. 25; Rich's Portal, p. 17.

The subordinate officers are then severally invested by the presiding officer, who delivers each of them a short charge, as follows, viz. :—

THE SENIOR WARDEN.

BROTHER C. D. :—

You are appointed Senior Warden of this Lodge, and are now invested with the ensign of your office.

The Level demonstrates that we are descended from the same stock, partake of the same nature, and share the same hope; and though distinctions among men are necessary to preserve subordination, yet no eminence of station should make us forget that we are Brethren; for he who is placed on the lowest spoke of fortune's wheel may be entitled to our regard; because a time will come, and the wisest knows not how soon, when all distinction but that of goodness shall cease, and death, the grand leveller of human greatness, reduce us to the same state.

Your regular attendance on our stated meetings is essentially necessary. In the absence of the Master, you are to govern this Lodge; in his presence, you are to assist him in the government of it. I firmly rely on your knowledge of Masonry and attachment to the Lodge for the faithful discharge of the duties of this important trust. Your station in the west denotes the affection of, or the love of, truth. The symbolic colors of your station are red, which is emblematic of Strength, of Zeal, of Virtue, and of Love. This symbol is represented by the red taper, which at the opening of the Lodge you are (presumed) to light at the altar, thereby reminding you that before entering upon the duties of your station you should first seek an endowment of that strength and Divine love which is requisite for the faithful discharge of the duties of your office.—Look well to the West!

THE JUNIOR WARDEN.

BROTHER E. F.:—

You are appointed Junior Warden of this Lodge, and are now invested with the badge of your office.

The Plumb admonishes us to walk uprightly in our several stations; to hold the scales of justice in equal poise; to observe the just medium between intemperance and pleasure; and to make our passions and prejudices coincide with the line of our duty.

To you is committed the superintendence of the craft during the hours of refreshment. It is therefore indispensably necessary that you should not only be temperate and discreet in the indulgence of your own inclinations, but carefully observe that none of the craft be suffered to convert the purposes of refreshment into intemperance and excess.

Your regular and punctual attendance is particularly requested; and I have no doubt that you will faithfully execute the duty which you owe to your present appointment. Your station in the south signifies truth in light. The symbolic colors of your station are blue, and denote Beauty, Fidelity, Eternity, Friendship, and Divine Truth. This symbol is also represented by a blue taper, which at the opening of the Lodge you are (presumed) to light at the altar, thereby reminding you that as it is your province to first direct the minds of the uninformed in their search after truth, so should you seek to be endowed with that Divine truth which is so essential to the faithful discharge of the duties of your station.—Look well to the South!

THE TREASURER.

BROTHER G. H. :—

You are appointed Treasurer of this Lodge. It is your duty to receive all moneys from the hands of the Secretary, make due entries of the same, and pay them out by order of the Worshipful Master and the consent of the Lodge.

I trust your regard for the Fraternity will prompt you to the faithful discharge of the duties of your office.

THE SECRETARY.

BROTHER J. K. :—

You are appointed Secretary of this Lodge. It is your duty to observe all the proceedings of the Lodge; make a fair record of all things proper to be written; to receive all moneys due the Lodge, and pay them over to the Treasurer, and take his receipt for the same.

Your good inclination to Masonry and this Lodge, I hope, will induce you to discharge your office with fidelity; and, by so doing, you will merit the esteem and applause of your Brethren.

SENIOR AND JUNIOR DEACONS.

BROTHERS L. M. AND N. O. :—

You are appointed Deacons of this Lodge. To you, with such assistance as may be necessary, is intrusted the examination of visitors. It is also your province to attend on the Master and Wardens, and to act as their proxies in the active duties of the Lodge, such as in the reception of candidates into the different degrees of Masonry, and in the immediate practice of our rites. The Square and Compasses, as badges of your office, I trust to your care, not doubting your vigilance and attention.

THE STEWARDS.

BROTHERS P. Q. AND R. S. :—

You are appointed Stewards of this Lodge. The duties of your office are, to assist in the collection of dues and subscriptions; to keep an account of the Lodge expenses; to see that the tables are properly furnished at refreshment, and that every Brother is suitably provided for; and generally to assist the Deacons and other officers in performing their duties.

Your regular and early attendance will afford the best proof of your zeal and attachment to the Lodge.

THE TILER.

BROTHER :—

You are appointed Tiler of this Lodge, and I invest you with the implement of your office. As the sword is placed in the hands of the Tiler to enable him effectually to guard against the approach of cowans and eavesdroppers, and suffer none to pass or repass but such as are duly qualified, so it should morally serve as a constant admonition to us to set a guard at the entrance of our thoughts, to place a watch at the door of our lips, to post a sentinel at the avenue of our actions,—thereby excluding every unqualified and unworthy thought, word, and deed, and preserving consciences void of offence towards God and towards man.

Your early and punctual attendance will afford the best proof of your zeal for the institution.

CHARGE TO THE BRETHREN OF THE LODGE.

Such is the nature of our constitution that, as some must of necessity rule and teach, so others must of course learn to submit and obey. Humility in both is an essential duty. The officers who are appointed to govern your Lodge are sufficiently conversant with the rules of propriety and the laws of the institution to avoid exceeding the powers with which they are intrusted; and you are of too generous dispositions to envy their preferment. I therefore trust that you will have but one aim,—to please each other, and unite in the grand design of being happy and communicating happiness.

Finally, my Brethren, as this association has been formed and perfected with so much unanimity and concord, in which we greatly rejoice, so may it long continue! May you long enjoy every satisfaction and delight which disinterested friendship can afford! May kindness and brotherly love distinguish your conduct as men and as Masons! Within your peaceful walls, may your children's children celebrate with joy and gratitude the transactions of this auspicious solemnity! And may the tenets of our profession be transmitted through your Lodge, pure and unimpaired, from generation to generation!

The Grand Marshal then proclaims the New Lodge in the following manner, viz. :—

In the name of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of the State of ———, I proclaim this new Lodge, by the name of ——— Lodge, No. —, to be legally constituted, consecrated, and the officers thereof duly installed.

13. A piece of music is then performed.

14. Benediction.

The procession is then formed, and returns in due form to the hall whence it set out.

The W. Master, having been previously inducted into the Oriental Chair of Solomon, all but Master Masons are caused to retire.

A procession is then formed, and passes three times round the hall, and, upon passing the Master, pays him due homage by the usual honors, in the different degrees.

During the procession passing round, the following song is sung :—

Hail, Masonry divine!
Glory of ages shine;
Long mayst thou reign!

Where'er thy Lodges stand,
 May they have great command,
 And always grace the land,—
 Thou Art divine.

Great fabrics still arise,
 And grace the azure skies:
 Great are thy schemes!
 Thy noble orders are Matchless, beyond compare:
 No art with thee can share,—
 Thou Art divine.

Hiram, the architect, Did all the craft direct How they should build: Sol'mon, Great Israel's king, Did mighty blessings bring, And left us room to sing, Hail, royal Art!	} CHORUS, three times.
--	------------------------------

The Grand Master then directs the Grand Marshal to form the procession,—when the Grand Lodge walk to their own hall, and both Lodges are closed in due form.

SECTION THIRD.

This section contains the ceremony observed on laying the foundation-stones of Public Structures.

This ceremony is conducted by the M. W. Grand Master and his officers, assisted by such officers and members of subordinate Lodges as can conveniently attend. The chief magistrate and other civil officers of the place where the building is to be erected, also generally attend on the occasion.

At the time appointed, the Grand Lodge is convened in some suitable place. A band of martial music is provided, and the Brethren appear in the insignia of the order.

The Lodge is then opened by the Grand Master, and the rules for regulating the procession are read by the Grand Secretary. The Lodge is then adjourned, after which the procession sets out in due form, in the following order:—

PROCESSION AT LAYING FOUNDATION-STONES.

Two Tilers with drawn Swords;
 Tiler of the older Lodge, with do.;
 Two Stewards of the older Lodge;
 Entered Apprentices;

Marshal.
 Fellow-Crafts;
 Master Masons;
 Secretaries;
 Treasurers;
 Junior Wardens,
 Senior Wardens;
 Mark Masters;
 Past Masters;
 Royal Arch Masons;
 Select Masters;
 Knights Templar;
 Masters;
 Music;

Grand Tiler with a drawn Sword;
 Grand Stewards with white Rods;
 A Past Master with a Golden Vessel containing Corn;
 Principal Architect with Square, Level, and Plumb;
 Two Past Masters with Silver Vessels, one containing Wine, and the other Oil;
 Grand Secretary and Treasurer;
 The Five Orders of Architecture;
 One large Light, borne by a Past Master;*
 The Holy Bible, Square and Compasses, borne by a Master of a Lodge, supported by two Stewards on the right and left;
 Two large Lights, borne by two Past Masters;†
 Grand Chaplain;
 Clergy and Orator;
 Grand Wardens;
 Deputy Grand Master;
 The Master of the oldest Lodge, carrying the Book of Constitutions on a velvet cushion;
 Grand Deacons, with black Rods, on a line seven feet apart;
 Grand Master;
 Two Stewards with white Rods;
 Grand Sword-Bearer with drawn Sword.

* / nte, p. 92.

† Ibid. p. 93.

A Triumphal Arch is usually erected at the place where the ceremony is to be performed. The procession passes through the arch; and the Brethren repairing to their stands, the Grand Master and his officers take their places on a temporary platform covered with carpet. The Grand Master commands silence. An Ode to Masonry is sung, after which the necessary preparations are made for laying the stone, on which are engraved the year of Masonry, the name of the Grand Master, &c. &c.

The stone is raised up by means of an engine erected for that purpose, and the Grand Chaplain or Orator repeats a short prayer.

The Grand Treasurer then, by the Grand Master's command, places under the stone various sorts of coin and medals of the present age. Solemn music is introduced, and the stone is let down into its place.

The principal Architect then presents the working tools to the Grand Master, who applies plumb, square, and level to the stone, in their proper positions, and pronounces it to be WELL FORMED, TRUE, and TRUSTY.

The Golden and Silver Vessels are next brought to the table and delivered, the former to the Deputy Grand Master, and the latter to the Grand Wardens, who successively present them to the Grand Master; and he, according to ancient ceremony, pours the corn, the wine, and the oil, which they contain, on the stone, saying:—

“May the all-bounteous Author of Nature bless the inhabitants of this place with all the necessities, conveniences, and comforts of life, assist in the erection and completion of this building, protect the workmen against every accident, and long preserve this structure from decay! And grant to us all a supply of the CORN of nourishment, the WINE of refreshment, and the OIL of joy!

“So mote it be. Amen.”

He then strikes the stone thrice with the mallet, and the public grand honors of Masonry are given. The Grand Master then delivers over to the Architect the various implements of architecture, intrusting him with the superintendence and direction of the work; after which he reascends the platform, and an Oration suitable to the occasion is delivered.

A voluntary collection may then be made for needy workmen, and the sum collected placed upon the stone by the Grand Treasurer.

A suitable Song in honor of Masonry concludes the ceremony; after which the procession returns to the place whence it set out, and the Lodge is closed in due form.

SECTION FOURTH.

The fourth section contains the ceremony observed at the Dedication of the Free-Masons' Halls.

On the day appointed, the Grand Master and his officers, accompanied by the members of the Grand Lodge, meet in a convenient room near the place where the ceremony is to be performed, and open, in due and ample form, in the third degree of Masonry.

The Master of the Lodge to which the Hall to be dedicated belongs, being present, addresses the Grand Master as follows:—

MOST WORSHIPFUL:—

The Brethren of ——— Lodge, being animated with a desire of promoting the honor and interest of the craft, have, at great pains and expense, erected a Masonic Hall for their convenience and accommodation. They are desirous that the same should be examined by the M. W. GRAND LODGE, and, if it should meet their approbation, that it should be solemnly dedicated to Masonic purposes, agreeably to ancient form.

The Grand Master then directs the Grand Marshal to form the procession, when they move forward to the hall to be dedicated. On entering, the music will continue while the procession marches three times round the hall.

The Lodge, or flooring, is then placed in the centre; and the Grand Master having taken the chair, under a canopy of state, the Grand Officers, and the Masters and Wardens of the Lodges, repair to the places previously prepared for their reception. The three Lights, and the Gold and Silver Pitchers, with the corn, wine, and oil, are placed round the Lodge, at the head of which stands the Altar, with the Holy Bible open, and the Square and Compasses laid thereon, with the Charter, Book of Constitutions, and By-Laws.

An Anthem is sung and an Exordium on Masonry given, after which the Architect addresses the Grand Master as follows:—

MOST WORSHIPFUL:—

Having been intrusted with the superintendence and management of the workmen employed in the construction of this edifice, and having, according to the best of my ability, accomplished the task assigned me, I now return my thanks for the honor of this appointment, and beg leave to surrender up the implements which were committed to my care when the foundation of this fabric was laid,—humbly hoping that the exertions which have been made on this occasion will be crowned with your approbation, and that of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge.

To which the Grand Master makes the following reply:—

BROTHER ARCHITECT:—

The skill and fidelity displayed in the execution of the trust reposed in you at the commencement of this undertaking have secured the entire approbation of the Grand Lodge; and they sincerely pray that this edifice may continue a lasting monument of the taste, spirit, and liberality of its founders.

An Ode in honor of Masonry is sung, accompanied with instrumental music.

The Deputy Grand Master then rises and says:—

MOST WORSHIPFUL:—

The hall in which we are now assembled, and the plan upon which it has been constructed, having met with your approbation, it is the desire of the Fraternity that it should now be dedicated, according to ancient form and usage.

Whereupon the Grand Master requests all to retire but such as are Master Masons. A procession is then formed in the following order, viz.:—

Grand Sword-Bearer;

A Past Master, with a Light;*

A Past Master, with a Bible, Square, and Compasses, on a velvet cushion;

* Ante, p. 92.

Two Past Masters, each with a Light ;*
 Grand Secretary and Treasurer, with Emblems ;
 Grand Junior Warden, with Pitcher of Corn ;
 Grand Senior Warden, with Pitcher of Wine ;
 Deputy Grand Master, with Pitcher of Oil ;
 Grand Master ;
 Two Stewards, with Rods.

All the other Brethren keep their places, and assist in performing an Ode, which continues during the procession, excepting only at the intervals of dedication. The Lodge being uncovered, the first time passing round it, the Junior Grand Warden presents the Pitcher of Corn to the Grand Master, who pours it upon the Lodge, at the same time pronouncing :—

“In the name of the Great JEHOVAH, to whom be all honor and glory, I do solemnly dedicate this Hall to MASONRY.”

The grand honors are given.

The second time passing round the Lodge, the Grand Senior Warden presents the pitcher of Wine to the Grand Master, who sprinkles it upon the Lodge, at the same time saying :—

“In the name of the HOLY SAINT JOHNS, I do solemnly DEDICATE this Hall to VIRTUE.”

The grand honors are twice given.

The third time passing round the Lodge, the Deputy Grand Master presents the Grand Master with the pitcher of Oil, who sprinkles it upon the Lodge, saying :—

In the name of the whole Fraternity, I do solemnly dedicate this Hall to UNIVERSAL BENEVOLENCE.”

The grand honors are thrice given.

A solemn Invocation is made to the Throne of Grace by the Grand Chaplain, and an Anthem sung ; after which the Lodge is covered, and the Grand Master retires to his Chair.

An Oration is then delivered, and the ceremonies conclude with music.

The Grand Lodge is then closed in due and ample form.

* Ante, p. 93.

NOTE.

In presenting to the Craft the following Masonic funeral service, it was not with the expectation that it would at once come into general use; neither was it considered that the whole service should be used upon all occasions,—unpropitious weather, or other circumstances, often rendering brief ceremonies indispensable. It was rather a desire to present a form of service which would not only be appropriate when used as a whole, but which could equally well be used in part; together with a desire to perpetuate the labors of those eminent Brethren to whose industry we owe many of the gems collected into the services of the several Masonic jurisdictions of the United States. . That this may be accomplished, and that the solemnity of the Masonic funeral service may be further enhanced, is the desire of the EDITOR.

MASONIC FUNERAL SERVICE.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS.*

I. No Brother can be interred with the formalities of the Order, unless he has received the Third Degree in Masonry.

II. The Master of a Lodge, being notified of the death of a Brother, and of his request to be buried with Masonic ceremonies, shall convene his Lodge and make all suitable arrangements to that effect.

III. If two or more Lodges attend, the ceremonies will be conducted by the Lodge of which the deceased was a member. In the case of a Stranger or Sojourner, the Master of the Senior Lodge present will preside.

IV. All the Brethren who walk in procession should observe as much as possible a uniformity of dress. A proper badge of mourning around the left arm, with white gloves and aprons, are most suitable. It is recommended to avoid all ostentatious display of Masonic costume.

V. Musicians, if belonging to the Fraternity, will walk in procession immediately after the Tiler; if they are not Masons, they will precede him. Solemn and appropriate pieces of music only should be performed; all others are expressly interdicted.

VI. The cushion on which the Holy Bible is placed should be covered with black; a piece of black crape should be tied around all the furniture carried in procession, around each Steward's rod, and on the musical instruments. The procession will immediately precede the corpse, and the Brethren walk two and two, except such officers as, from their station, are to walk otherwise.

VII. It would be proper for each Lodge, when convenient, to have a pall of black cloth, velvet, or other suitable material, to be used on funeral occasions. On the coffin will be placed or tied a white apron.

* Collated by the Grand Lodge of Ohio for the use of its subordinates.

VIII. If the Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, or Grand Wardens attend any funeral procession, they will take precedence, and preside over and conduct the ceremonies, unless they desire otherwise. Their place in the procession will be after the Master of the Lodge. Two Deacons, on the right and left, will attend a Grand Warden. When the Grand Master or Deputy Grand Master is present, the Book of Constitutions is borne before him, a Grand Sword Bearer follows him, and the Deacons, with black rods, are placed on his right and left, on a line, seven feet apart. If a Past Grand Officer appears in procession, he will be recognized with the customary respect.

ORDER OF PROCESSION.

The following Order of Procession will be proper to be observed when a single Lodge conducts the Ceremonies (see above, No. VIII.):

	Tiler,
	with drawn sword ;
	Stewards,
	with white rods ;
	Musicians,
	(if they are Masons ; otherwise, in advance of the Tiler) ;
	Master Masons ;
	Senior and Junior Deacon ;
Marshal.	Secretary and Treasurer ;
	Senior and Junior Wardens ;
	Past Masters of the Lodge ;
	The Holy Writings, on a Cushion, carried by the eldest member of the Lodge present ;
	The Master, supported by two Deacons ;
	Clergy ;
	The Body, with the	insignia placed thereon ;
	Pall Bearers ;	Pall Bearers ;

	Mourners.

THE LODGE SERVICE.

The Brethren being assembled at the Lodge-room, or some other convenient place, the presiding officer will open the Lodge on the third degree. After having stated the object of the meeting, the service will commence—all the Brethren standing:—

Master.—Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay. In the midst of life we are in death. Of whom, then, may we seek for succor, but of THEE, O LORD, who for our sins art justly displeased?

My Brethren, where is the man that liveth, that shall not see death?

Response by the Brethren.—Man walketh in a vain shadow; he heapeth up riches, and cannot tell who shall gather them.

Master.—Where is now our departed Brother?

Response.—He dwelleth in night; he sojourneth in darkness.

Master.—Can we offer any precious thing to redeem our Brother?

Response.—We have not a ransom. The place that once knew him shall know him no more forever.

Master.—Shall his name then be lost upon the earth?

Response.—We will treasure it in our memories, we will record it in our hearts.

Master.—How, then, will it be known?

Response.—It shall live in the exercise of his virtues.

Master.—When our Brother died, did he carry nothing away with him?

Response.—He fulfilled his destiny: Naked he came into the world, and naked he has departed out of it.

Master.—Hear, then, the conclusion of the whole matter: It is THE LORD only that can give, and it is THE LORD that hath taken away.

Response.—Blessed forever be the name of THE LORD.

Master.—Let us endeavor to live the life of the righteous, that our last end may be like his.

Response.—God is our God for ever and ever. He will be our guide and support even through the dark valley of the shadow of death.

Master.—I heard a voice from Heaven, saying unto me, “Write from henceforth, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord! Even so, saith the Spirit: for they rest from their labors.”

The Master here takes the ROLL, on which is inscribed the name and age of the deceased, and says:—

ALMIGHTY FATHER! In thy hands we leave, with humble submission, the soul of our Brother.

The Brethren will respond three times, giving the *public grand honors each time:—

The will of GOD is accomplished. So mote it be.

The Master here deposits the ROLL in the archives, and repeats the following or some other suitable prayer:—

“Most glorious and merciful LORD GOD! our heavenly Father! Author of all good, and giver of all mercy! Pour down thy blessings upon us, and strengthen our solemn engagements with the ties of sincere affection! May the present instance of mortality remind us of our approaching fate, and draw our attention toward thee, the only refuge in time of need: that, when the awful moment shall arrive that we are about to quit this transitory scene, the enlivening prospect of thy mercy may dispel the gloom of death; that after our departure hence in peace, we may be received into thine everlasting kingdom, and there enjoy, in union with our departed friends, the just reward of a pious and virtuous life. So mote it be. Amen."

* The public Grand Honors are given in the following manner:—Both arms are crossed on the breast, the left uppermost, and the open palms of the hands sharply striking the shoulders; they are then raised above the head, the palms striking each other, and then made to fall smartly upon the thighs.—MACKAY.

Then may be sung or rehearsed the following or some other suitable selection:—

CHANT. PECULIAR.

STUART.

SELECTION.

1. Blessed | are the | dead
Who | die · in the | LORD from | hence|forth.
2. Yea, saith the Spirit: that they may | rest · from their | labors,
And their | works do | follow | with | them.—REV. xiv. 13.
3. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the | first · resurrection :
Upon such the | second | death hath | no | power.
4. But they shall be priests of | GOD · and of | CHRIST,
And shall | reign with | him a | thousand | years.—REV.
xx. 6.

DOXOLOGY.

Amen : Blessing, and | glo · ry, and | wisdom,
And thanks|giv · ing, and | hon · or, and | power, and | might,
Be | un · to our | GOD
For | ev · er and | ever. | A|men.—REV. vii. 12.

A procession is then formed, which moves to the house of the deceased, and from thence to the church or place of interment.

THE CHURCH SERVICE.

To be used at the church or at the house of the deceased. Immediately after the benediction the Master will take his station at the head of the Coffin, which will be uncovered, the Wardens at the foot and the Brethren around it, all standing, when the service will commence :—

Master.—I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord : he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live : and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.—ST. JOHN xi. 25, 26.

Take ye heed, watch and pray : for ye know not when the time is. For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants and to every man his work ; and commanded the porter to watch. Watch ye, therefore : for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock crowing, or in the morning : lest coming suddenly, he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch.—ST. MARK xiii. 33–37.

Master.—What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death ? Shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave ?—PS. lxxxix. 48.

Response.—I will ransom them from the hand of the grave : I will redeem them from death. O death, I will be thy plagues : O grave, I will be thy destruction !—HOSEA xiii. 14.

Master.—As for man, his days are as grass : as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is not ; and the place thereof shall know it no more.—PS. ciii. 15, 16.

Response.—Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame ; he remembereth that we are dust.—PS. ciii. 13, 14.

Master.—The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away.—Ps. xc. 10.

Response.—So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.—Ps. xc. 12.

Then may be sung the following or some other suitable hymn :—

SCOTLAND.

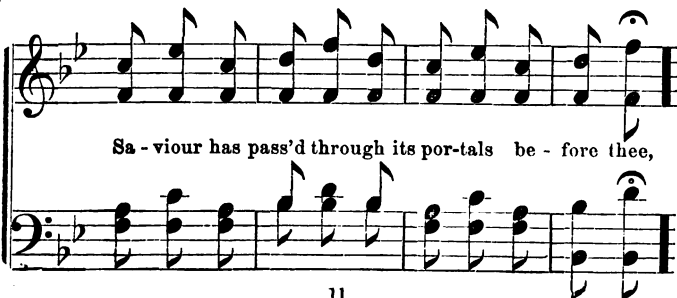

DR. CLARK.

Thou art gone to the grave, but we will not de-plore thee.

Though sorrow and dark-ness en-com-pass the tomb; The Sa-viour has pass'd through its por-tals be-fore thee,

Thou art gone to the grave: we no longer behold thee,
 Nor tread the rough path of the world by thy side;
 But the wide arms of mercy were spread to enfold thee,
 For all men may hope, since the Sinless has died.

Thou art gone to the grave; but 'twere wrong to deplore thee,
 When God was thy ransom, thy guardian and guide;
 He gave thee, and took thee, and soon will restore thee,
 Where death has no sting, since the Saviour has died.

The Master then says:—

My Brethren, let us pray!

All kneel, and join with the Master in saying the Lord's Prayer:—

Our Father, who art in heaven; hallowed be thy name.
 Thy kingdom come; thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever.

Amen.—MATT. vi.

So mote it be.

A procession is again formed, which proceeds to the churchyard. When the procession arrives at the grave, the Lodge having the ceremonies in charge, the clergy, pall-bearers, and mourners, halt, until the members of other Lodges have formed a circle around the grave, when an opening is made to receive them. They then advance within the circle, and the clergyman and officers of the acting Lodge take their station at the head of the grave, and the mourners at the foot. After the clergyman has concluded the services of the church, the Masonic service is again resumed.

SERVICE AT THE GRAVE.

Master.—Man dieth and wasteth away; yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?

Response.—The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away: blessed be the name of the Lord!

Master.—May we die the death of the righteous, and may our last end be like his!

Response.—God is our God for ever and ever; he will be our guide even unto death!

Master.—Almighty Father! into thy hands we commit the soul of our departed Brother!

The Brethren respond three times, giving the public grand honors each time:—

The will of God is accomplished! So mote it be! Amen.

The Master, or Chaplain, (or officiating clergyman—if he be a Mason) will then resume the service, as follows:—

MY BRETHREN:—

We are again called upon by the most solemn admonition to regard the uncertainty of human life, the immutable certainty of death, and the vanity of all earthly pursuits. Decrepitude and decay are written on every living thing. The cradle and the coffin stand side by side; and it is a melancholy truth that, so soon as we begin to live, that moment also we begin to die. What an eloquent commentary is here exhibited upon the instability of every human pursuit! and how touchingly does it echo the sad sentiment of the great preacher, who wrote for our perpetual warning the immortal text, Vanity of vanities! all is vanity!

The last offices that we pay to the dead are useless things, except as they constitute lessons to the living. The cold, marble form enclosed in the "narrow house" before you is alike insensible to our sorrows and our ceremonies. It matters not now to him whether two or three gather around the grave to perform his funeral ritual, or that hundreds have assembled, with the banners and insignia of our order, to deposit him in his final resting-place. It is of little moment how or in what manner his obsequies are performed; whether the wild winds chant his requiem, or it be accompanied with rare and costly music and the minstrelsy of many voices. He has gone to accomplish the destiny of all our race, and his body to the profound slumber of the grave, there to be resolved into its original elements.

What, then, are all the externals of human dignity—the power of wealth, the dreams of ambition, the pride of intellect, or the charms of beauty—when nature has paid her just debt? Fix your eyes on the last sad scene, and view humanity, stripped of its dazzling, meretricious ornaments, and you must needs be persuaded of the utter emptiness of these delusions. The monarch of a hundred provinces, at whose bidding nations pay obeisance, and the poor beggar that shivers at his gate, are equals in the house of death. The one is obliged to part with his sceptre and his crown; the other has no further use for his wallet and his rags; and both are indebted to their Mother Earth for a common sepulture. In the grave all fallacies are detected, all ranks are levelled, and all distinctions are done away.

While we drop the sympathetic tear over the grave of our departed Brother, let us cast around his foibles, whatever they may have been, the broad mantle of a Mason's charity, nor withhold from his memory the just commendation that his virtues claim at our hands. It is of record in the volume of Eternal Truth, that perfection on earth can never be attained. The best of created men did most grievously err, and the wisest of our race went sadly astray. Suffer, then, the apologies of human nature to plead in behalf of him who cannot any longer extenuate for himself.

Our present meeting and proceedings will have been vain and useless, if they fail to excite our serious reflections, and strengthen our resolutions for future amendment. Be then persuaded, my Brethren, by the uncertainty of life and the unsubstantial nature of all its pursuits, and postpone no longer that preparation which it is wisdom to provide, and madness to defer. Let us each embrace the present propitious moment; and now, while time and gracious opportunity offer, prepare for the exigencies of our latter end, when the pleasures of this world will be as poison-cups to our lips, and the reflections consequent upon a well-spent life alone afford us comfort and consolation. The summer is rapidly passing away, and the harvest will soon be gathered.

Let us here resolve to maintain with greater assiduity the dignified character of our profession. May our faith be evinced in a correct moral walk and deportment! May our hope be bright as the glorious mysteries that will be revealed hereafter, and our charity boundless as the wants of humanity!

• And, having faithfully discharged the great duties which we owe to God, to our neighbor, and ourselves, when at last it shall please the GRAND MASTER of the Universe to send his Tiler, DEATH, to summon us into his eternal presence, may the trestle-board of our whole lives pass such inspection that it may be given unto each one of us to “eat of the hidden manna,” and to receive the “white stone with the new name written,” that will insure perpetual and unspeakable happiness in the Paradise of God.

The following invocations are then made :—

Master.—May we be true and faithful to each other, and may we live and die in love !

Response.—So mote it be.

Master.—May we profess what is good, and always act agreeably to our profession.

Response.—So mote it be.

Master.—May the Lord bless us and keep us ! May the Lord be gracious unto us, and may all our good intentions be crowned with success !

Response.—So mote it be.

Master.—Glory be to God in the highest : on earth peace—good will towards men !

Response.—So mote it be, now, henceforth, and forever. Amen.

Here the apron is taken from the coffin and handed to the Master, and the coffin is deposited in the grave, when the service is resumed :—

Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God, in his wise providence, to take out of the world the soul of our deceased Brother, we therefore commit his body to the ground : earth to earth—ashes to ashes—dust to dust.

The Secretary will then advance and deposit the ROLL in the grave with the usual forms.

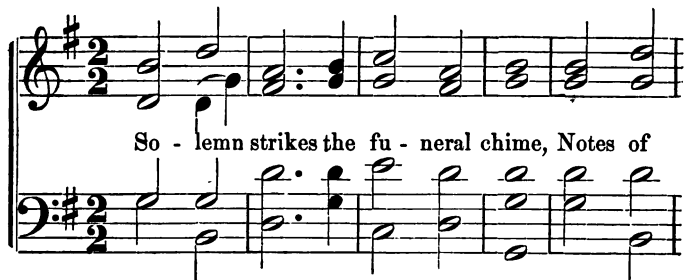

Master.—Friend and Brother ! we bid thee a last, a long FAREWELL! Thou art at rest from thy labors: may it be in peace!

Response.—So mote it be. Amen.

Then may be sung, or rehearsed by the Master, the following or some other appropriate hymn:—

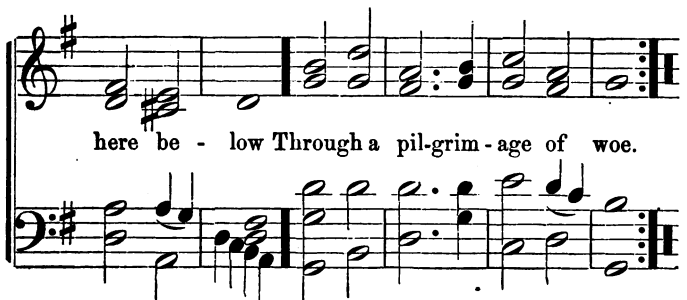

PLEYEL'S HYMN.

So - lemn strikes the fu - neral chime, Notes of our de-part - ed time, As we jour - ney

here be - low Through a pil-grim - age of woe.

Mortals; now indulge a tear;
For mortality is here!
See how wide her trophies wave
O'er the slumbers of the grave.

Here another guest we bring:
Seraph of celestial wing,
To our funeral altar come;
Waft this friend and brother home.

There, enlarged, his soul shall see
What was veil'd in mystery;
Heavenly glories of the place
Show his Maker face to face.

The service is then resumed by the Master, who, presenting the Apron, says:—

The Lamb-Skin, or White Apron, is an emblem of Innocence and the badge of a Mason. It is more ancient than the Golden Fleece or Roman Eagle, more honorable than the Star and Garter.

The Master then deposits it in the grave.

This emblem I now deposit in the grave of our deceased Brother. We are thus reminded of the universal dominion of Death. The mattock, the coffin, and the melancholy grave admonish us of our mortality, and that, sooner or later, these frail, weak bodies must moulder in their parent dust.

The Master, holding the Evergreen in his hand, continues:—

This Evergreen is an emblem of our faith in the immortality of the soul. By this we are reminded of our high and glorious destiny beyond the “world of shadows,” and that there dwells within our tabernacle of clay an imperishable, immortal spirit, over which the grave has no dominion, and death no power.

The Brethren will now move in procession round the grave three times, and severally drop in it the sprig of evergreen,* after which the public grand honors are given in silence. The Master then continues the ceremony, in the following words:—

* In depositing the Evergreen, all should strictly observe the proper form, which is by extending the right hand over the grave, dropping the Evergreen; then raising the hand, pointing it to the Zenith, bringing it down upon the left breast, and thence to the side, thereby signifying that we consign the body of our departed Brother to the tomb, commend his spirit to Him who gave it, and that his memory is faithfully cherished within our hearts.

From time immemorial it hath been the custom among the Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, at the request of a Brother, to accompany his body to the place of interment, there to deposit it with the usual formalities.

In conformity to this ancient usage, and at the request of our deceased Brother, we have assembled at this time, in the character of Masons, to offer up before the world the last sad tribute of our affection, and thereby to demonstrate in the strongest possible manner the sincerity of our past esteem for him, and our steady attachment to the principles of the Order.

We have now with the usual Masonic ceremonies committed the body of a Brother to its kindred dust, there to remain until the trumpet of judgment shall summon it from its abiding-place. We leave him in the hands of a Being who doeth all things well, who is glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders.

To those of his immediate relatives and friends, who are most heart-stricken at the loss we have all sustained, we have nothing of this world's consolation to offer. We can only deeply, sincerely, and most affectionately sympathize with them in their afflictive bereavement. But, in the beautiful spirit of the Christian's theology, we dare to say that HE who "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" looks down with infinite compassion upon the widow and fatherless in the hour of their desolation, and that the same benevolent Saviour who wept tears of sympathy at the grave in Bethany will fold the arms of his love and protection around those who put their trust and confidence in him.

Then let us each in our respective spheres so improve this solemn warning of our God, that at last, when the "sheeted dead" are stirring, when the "great white throne" is set, and the volume of the record of our lives is opened, we may receive from the Omniscient, Eternal Judge the thrilling invitation, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

The service is concluded with the following or some other suitable prayer :—

Almighty and most merciful God, in whom we live, and move, and have our being, and before whom all men must appear to render an account for the deeds done in the body ! we do most earnestly beseech thee, as we now surround the grave of our departed Brother, to impress deeply upon our minds the solemnities of this day. May we ever remember that "in the midst of life we are in death," and so live and act our several parts as we will desire to have done when the hour of departure is at hand !

And oh ! gracious Father, vouchsafe us, we pray thee, thy divine assistance, to redeem our misspent time ; and, in the discharge of the duties thou hast assigned us in the erection of our moral edifice, may we have wisdom from on high to direct us, strength commensurate with our task to support us, and the beauty of holiness to render all our performances acceptable in thy sight. And at last, when our work on earth is done, when the mallet of death shall call us from our labors, may we obtain a blessed and everlasting rest, in that Spiritual House, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

Amen. So mote it be.

The procession will then return to the place whence it set out, and the Lodge is closed in the Third Degree.

Most Excellent Master's Degree.

MOST EXCELLENT MASTER'S DEGREE.

NONE but those who have been inducted into the Oriental Chair of Solomon can be admitted to this degree of Masonry.

When the temple of Jerusalem was finished, and the cap-stone celebrated, with great joy, King Solomon admitted to this degree only those who had proved themselves worthy by their virtue, skill, and inflexible fidelity to the craft. The duties incumbent on a Most Excellent Master are such that he should have a perfect knowledge of all the preceding degrees.

Officers.

M.: E.: M.:, S.: W.:, J.: W.:, Treasurer, Secretary, M.: of C.:, S.: D.:, J.: D.:, and Tiler.

Opening.

* * * * *

LESSON.

(PSALM xxiv.)

“The earth is the Lord’s, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods. Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord, and righteousness from the God of his salvation. This is the generation of them that seek him, that seek thy face, O Jacob: Selah. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord, strong and mighty; the Lord, mighty in battle. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory? The Lord of Hosts, he is the King of Glory. Selah."

Reception.

* * * * *

(PSALM cxxii.)

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.

"Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem.

"Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together: whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord.

"For there are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David.

"Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee. Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces.

"For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee. Because of the house of the Lord our God I will seek thy good."

* * * * *

MOST EXCELLENT MASTER'S SONG.

Andante moderato.

Andante moderato.

All hail to the morning, That bids us re - joice. The

All hail to the morning, That bids us re - joice; The

The first staff of music is in treble clef with a key signature of two sharps (F# and C#). It contains a sequence of eighth and sixteenth notes, followed by a bar line and a measure with a fermata. Above the staff, the word "Cres." is written.

temple's complet-ed, Ex-althigh each voice. The cap-stone is temple's complet-ed, Ex-alt high each voice. The cap-stone is

The image shows a single line of musical notation on a five-line staff. The key signature has two sharps (F# and C#), indicating D major or B minor. The time signature is 4/4. The melody consists of the following notes: D2 (half note), E2 (quarter note), F#2 (quarter note), G2 (quarter note), A2 (quarter note), B2 (quarter note), C#2 (quarter note), D3 (half note), E3 (quarter note), F#3 (quarter note), G3 (quarter note), A3 (quarter note), B3 (quarter note), C#4 (quarter note), D4 (half note). The notation is in a simple, hymn-like style with a clear melodic line.

finish'd, Our la - bor is o'er; The sound of the finish'd, Our la - bor is o'er; The sound of the ga-vel shall hail us no more. To the Power Almighty who ga-vel shall hail us no more. To the Power Almighty who

ev-er has guid-ed The tribes of old Israel, ex - alting their

ev-er has guid-ed The tribes of old Israel, ex - alting their fame; To Him who hath govern'd our hearts un - di-fame; To Him who hath govern'd our hearts un - di-

Companions, assemble
 On this joyful day,
 (The occasion is glorious,)
 The keystone to lay :
 Fulfill'd is the promise,
 By the ANCIENT OF DAYS,
 To bring forth the cap-stone
 With shouting and praise.

* * * * *

There is no more occasion for level or plumb-line
 For trowel or gavel, for compass or square ;
 Our works are completed, the ark safely seated,
 And we shall be greeted as workmen most rare

Now those that are worthy,
 Our toils who have shared,
 And proved themselves faithful,
 Shall meet their reward.
 Their virtue and knowledge
 Industry and skill,
 Have our approbation,
 Have gain'd our good will.

* * * * *

We accept and receive them, Most Excellent Masters,
 Invested with honors, and power to preside,
 Among worthy craftsmen, wherever assembled,
 The knowledge of Masons to spread far and wide.

ALMIGHTY JEHOVAH!

Descend now and fill
 This Lodge with thy glory,
 Our hearts with good will!
 Preside at our meetings,
 Assist us to find
 True pleasure in teaching
 Good will to mankind.

Thy wisdom inspired the great institution,
 Thy strength shall support it till nature expire;
 And when the creation shall fall into ruin,
 Its beauty shall rise through the midst of the fire.

PRAYER.

And now, O God of Israel, let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David, my father. But will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee: how much less this house that I have built! Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee to-day: that thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, My name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make toward this place. And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, when they shall pray toward this place; and hear thou in heaven, thy dwelling-place; and, when thou hearest, forgive. So mote it be. Amen.

(2 CHRON. vii. 1-4.)

● Now when Solomon had made an end of praying, the fire came down from Heaven, and consumed the burnt-offering and sacrifices; and the glory of the Lord filled the house. And the priest could not enter into the house of the Lord, because the glory of the Lord had filled the Lord's house.

And when all the children of Israel saw how the fire came down, and the glory of the Lord upon the house, they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped, and praised the Lord, saying, FOR HE IS GOOD; FOR HIS MERCY ENDURETH FOREVER.

CHARGE TO A BROTHER WHO IS RECEIVED AND ACKNOWLEDGED AS A MOST EXCELLENT MASTER.

BROTHER :—

Your admittance to this degree of Masonry is a proof of the good opinion the Brethren of this Lodge entertain of your Masonic abilities. Let this consideration induce you to be careful of forfeiting, by misconduct and inattention to our rules, that esteem which has raised you to the rank you now possess.

It is one of your great duties as a Most Excellent Master to dispense light and truth to the uninformed Mason; and I need not remind you of the impossibility of complying with this obligation without possessing an accurate acquaintance with the lectures of each degree.

If you are not already completely conversant in all the degrees heretofore conferred on you, remember that an indulgence prompted by a belief that you will apply yourself with double diligence to make yourself so has induced the Brethren to accept you.

Let it therefore be your unremitting study to acquire such a degree of knowledge and information as shall enable you to discharge with propriety the various duties incumbent on you, and to preserve unsullied the title now conferred upon you of a MOST EXCELLENT MASTER.

The following Psalm is read at closing :—

(PSALM xxiii.)

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

A DESCRIPTION OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

This structure, for beauty, magnificence, and expense, exceeded any building which was ever erected. It was built of large stones of white marble, curiously hewn, and so artfully joined together that they appeared like one entire stone. Its inner Walls, Beams, Posts, Doors, Floors, and Ceilings were made of cedar and olive wood and planks of fir, which were entirely covered with plates of gold, with various beautiful engravings, and adorned with precious jewels of many splendid colors. The nails which fastened those plates were also of gold, with heads of curious workmanship. The roof was of olive wood covered with gold; and when the sun shone thereon the reflection from it was of such a refulgent splendor that it dazzled the eyes of all who beheld it. The court in which the temple stood, and the courts without, were adorned on all sides with stately buildings and cloisters; and the gates entering therein were exquisitely beautiful and elegant. The vessels consecrated to the perpetual use of the temple were suited to the magnificence of the edifice in which they were deposited and used.

Josephus states that there were one hundred and forty thousand of those vessels which were made of gold, and one million three hundred and forty thousand of silver; ten thousand vestments for the priests, made of silk, with purple girdles; and two millions of purple vestments for the singers. There were also two hundred thousand trumpets and forty thousand other musical instruments made use of in the temple and in worshipping God.

According to the most accurate computation of the number of talents of gold, silver, and brass, laid out upon the temple, the sum amounts to six thousand nine hundred and four millions eight hundred and twenty-two thousand and five hundred pounds sterling; and the jewels are reckoned to exceed this sum. The gold vessels are estimated at five hundred and forty-five millions two hundred and ninety-six thousand two hundred and three pounds and four shillings sterling, and the silver ones at four hundred and thirty-nine millions three hundred and forty-four thousand pounds sterling; amounting in all to nine hundred and eighty-four millions six hundred and thirty thousand two hundred and thirty pounds four shillings. In addition to this there were expenses for workmen, and for materials brought from Mount Libanus and the quarries of Zeradatha. There were ten thousand men per month in Lebanon employed in felling and preparing the timbers for the craftsmen to hew them, seventy thousand to carry burdens, eighty thousand to hew the stones and timber, and three thousand three hundred overseers of the work, who were all employed for seven years, to whom, besides their wages and diet, King Solomon gave, as a free gift, six millions seven hundred and thirty-three thousand nine hundred and seventy-seven pounds.

The treasure left by David towards carrying on this noble and glorious work is reckoned to be nine hundred and eleven millions four hundred and sixteen thousand two hundred and seven pounds; to which if we add King Solomon's annual revenue, his trading to Ophir for gold, and the presents made him by all the earth, as mentioned 1 Kings x. 24, 25, we shall not wonder at his being able to carry on so expensive a work; nor can we, without impiety, question its surpassing all other structures, since we are assured that it was built by the immediate direction of HEAVEN.

Royal Arch Degree.

SECTION FIRST.

EXODUS, III, 1-11.

DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM BY NEBUCHADNEZZAR

•
EZRA, V. I.-II.

ROYAL ARCH DEGREE.

THIS degree is more august, sublime, and important than all which precede it. It impresses on our minds a belief of the being and existence of the Supreme Grand High Priest of our salvation, who is without beginning of days or end of years, and forcibly reminds us of the reverence due to his Holy Name.

In this degree are brought to light many essentials which are of importance to the craft, that were concealed in darkness for the space of four hundred and seventy years, and without a knowledge of which the Masonic character cannot be complete.

SECTION FIRST.

This section explains the mode of government in this degree; it designates the appellation, number, and situation of the several officers, and points out the purpose and duty of their respective stations. The various colors of their banners are designated, and the morals to which they allude are introduced and explained.

Clothing.

Apron,—white lamb-skin, edged with scarlet; a triple tau within a delta painted or embroidered on the flap.

Order,—a scarlet sash, edged with gold, worn from the left shoulder to the right hip, and on that part of it which crosses the breast the words "Holiness to the Lord" should be embroidered or printed in gilt letters.

Officers.

The following officers constitute a chapter of R. A. Masons:—

M. E. H. P., E. K., E. S., C. of the H., P. S., R. A. C., G. M. of 3d V., G. M. of 2d V., G. M. of 1st V., Treasurer, Secretary, and Sentinel.

Opening.

* * * * *

(2 THESS. iii. 6-18.)

Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw from every brother that walketh disorderly and not after the tradition which ye received of us. For yourselves know how ye ought to follow us: for we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you, neither did we eat any man's bread for nought, but wrought with labor and travail night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you; not because we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat. For we hear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busybodies. Now them that are such we command and exhort, by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread. But ye, brethren, be not weary in well-doing. And if any man obey not our word by this epistle, note that man, and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed. Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother. Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace always by all means. The Lord be with you all.

The salutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epistle: so I write. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

Instead of the above, the following selection, which is more appropriate, may be read or chanted:—

CHANT.

WEBB.

(Isa. lxi. 4-9.)

1. And they shall | build the · old | wastes ;
They shall raise up the | former | desolations :
2. And they shall re·pair the · waste | cities,
The desolations of | many | gene|rations.
3. And strangers shall stand, and | feed your | flocks ;
And the sons of the alien shall be your ploughmen | and
your | vine·dress|ers.
4. But ye shall be named the | priests · of JEHOVAH :
They shall call you the | min · isters | of our | GOD.
5. Ye shall eat of the riches | of the | Gentiles ;
And in their glory | shall ye | boast your|selves.
6. For your shame ye | shall have | double ;
And for confusion they | shall re | joice · in their | portion.
7. Therefore in their land they shall pos|sess the | double :
Everlasting | joy shall | be · unto | them.
8. For I JEHOVAH | love | judgment :
I hate robbery | for burnt·offer|ing.
9. And I will direct their | work in | truth ;
And I will make an everlasting | cove|nant with | them.
10. And their seed shall be known a|mong the | nations,
And their | off · spring a|mong the | people.
11. All that see them shall ac|knowledge | them,
That they are the | seed JEHO · VAH hath | blessed.

PRAYER.

Our Father, who art in heaven ; hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come ; thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread ; and forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.—

MATT. vi.

SECTION SECOND.

This section contains much valuable historical information, and exhibits to our view in striking colors that prosperity and happiness are ever the ultimate consequences of virtue and justice, while disgrace and ruin invariably follow the practices of vice and immorality.

Reception.

* * * * *

(ISA. xlii. 16.)

I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not ; I will lead them in paths that they have not known ; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and will not forsake them.

* * * * *

PRAYER USED AT THE EXALTATION OF A ROYAL ARCH MASON.

Supreme Grand Architect of the Universe ! Creator and Preserver of all mankind ! We humbly beseech thee to incline thine ear to the voice of our supplications. We praise thee. We adore and worship thine unspeakable perfections. We bless thee that, when man had sinned and fallen from his innocence and happiness, thou didst still leave him the powers of reasoning and the capacity of improvement and of pleasure. We thank thee that amidst the pains and calamities of our present state so many means of refreshment and satisfaction are afforded us, while travelling the rugged path of life. And oh, thou who didst aforetime appear unto thy-servant Moses in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush, enkindle, we beseech thee, in each of our hearts a flame of devotion to thee, of love to each other, and of charity to all mankind. May the veils of ignorance and blindness be removed from the eyes of our understandings, that we may behold and adore thy mighty and wondrous works! May thy rod and thy staff continually support us! May the leprosy of sin be eradicated from our bosoms, and may Holiness to the Lord be engraven upon all our thoughts, words, and actions! May the incense of piety ascend continually unto thee from off the altar of our hearts, and burn day and night as a sweet-smelling savor well pleasing unto thee! May we daily search the records of truth, that we may be more and more instructed in our duty, and may we share the blessedness of those who hear the sacred word and keep it! And, finally, O merciful Father, when we shall have passed through the outward veils of these earthly courts, when the earthly house of this tabernacle shall be dissolved, may we be admitted to the presence of the Grand Council of the heavens, where the Supreme High Priest forever presides, forever reigns! Amen. So mote it be!

* * * * *

(EXODUS iii. 1-6.)

Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian; and he led the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to the mountain of God, even to Horeb. And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush; and he looked, and behold the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called to him out of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses! And he said, Here am I. And he said, Draw not nigh hither : put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face : for he was afraid to look upon God.

* * * * *

(2 CHRON. xxxvi. 11-20.)

Zedekiah was one-and-twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord his God, and humbled not himself before Jeremiah the prophet, speaking from the mouth of the Lord. And he also rebelled against king Nebuchadnezzar, and stiffened his neck, and hardened his heart, from turning unto the Lord God of Israel. Moreover, all the chief of the priests and the people transgressed very much, after all the abominations of the heathen, and polluted the house of the Lord, which he had hallowed in Jerusalem. And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling-place. But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised his word, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy.

Therefore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who slew their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young men or maidens, old men, or him that stooped for age; he gave them all into his hand. And all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king, and his princes : all these he brought to Babylon.

And they burnt the house of God, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces thereof with fire, and destroyed all the goodly vessels thereof. And them that had escaped from the sword, carried he away to Babylon,—where they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia.

* * * * *

(EZEK i. 1-3.)

Now, in the first year of Cyrus, King of Persia, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, King of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, Thus saith Cyrus, King of Persia, The Lord God of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he hath charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? His God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel, which is in Jerusalem. * * * * *

(EXODUS iii. 13, 14.)

And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them?

And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: And thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you.

* * * * *

(PSALM cxli.)

Lord, I cry unto thee: make haste unto me: give ear unto my voice. Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense, and the lifting up of hands as the evening sacrifice. Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips. Incline not my heart to any evil thing, to practise wicked works with men that work iniquity. Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil. Mine eyes are unto thee, O God the Lord; in thee is my trust: leave not my soul destitute. Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me, and the gins of the workers of iniquity. Let the wicked fall into their own nets, while that I withal escape.

* * * * *

(PSALM cxlii.)

I cried unto the Lord with my voice; with my voice unto the Lord did I make my supplication. I poured out my complaint before him: I showed before him my trouble. When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou knewest my path: in the way wherein I walked, have they privily laid a snare for me. I looked on my right hand and beheld, but there was no man that would know me: refuge failed me; no man cared for my soul. I cried unto thee, O Lord: I said, Thou art my refuge, and my portion in the land of the living. Attend unto my cry, for I am brought very low; deliver me from my persecutors, for they are stronger than I. Bring my soul out of darkness, that I may praise thy name.

* * * * *

(PSALM cxliii.)

Hear my prayer, O Lord; give ear to my supplication. In thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness. And enter not into judgment with thy servant; for in thy sight shall no man living be justified. For the enemy hath persecuted my soul; he hath made me to dwell in darkness. Therefore is my spirit overwhelmed within me; my heart within me is desolate. Hear me speedily, O Lord; my spirit faileth: hide not thy face from me, lest I be like them that go down into the pit. Cause me to hear thy loving kindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee. Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God. Bring my soul out of trouble, and of thy mercy cut off mine enemies; for I am thy servant.

* * * * *

(EXODUS iv. 1-10.)

And Moses answered and said, But behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice; for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee. And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod. And he said, Cast it on the ground; and he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it. And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand. That they may believe that the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

* * * * *

And the Lord said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom; and he put his hand into his bosom; and when he took it out, behold his hand was leprous as snow. And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again; and he put his hand into his bosom again; and he plucked it out of his bosom, and behold it was turned again as his other flesh. And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

* * * * *

And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land; and the water which thou takest out of the river shall become blood upon the dry land.

* * * * *

(HAGGAI ii. 2-4, 23.)

Speak now to Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua, the son of Josedec, the high priest, and to the residue of the people, saying, Who is left among you that saw this house in her first glory? and how do you see it now? is it not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing? Yet now be strong, O Zerubbabel, and be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedec, the high priest; and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the Lord, and work; for I am with you, saith the Lord of Hosts.

In that day will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the Lord, and will make thee as a signet: for I have chosen thee.

* * * * *

(ZECHARIAH iv. 9, 10.)

The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also finish it; and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts hath sent me unto you. For who hath despised the day of small things? for they shall rejoice, and shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel with those seven.

* * * * *

(AMOS ix. 11.)

In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof, and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in days of old.

* * * * *

The following passages of Scripture are read by the High Priest:—

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light; and there was light.—GEN. i. 1-3.*

And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites which bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying, Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee.—DEUT. xxxi. 24-26.

And thou shalt put the mercy-seat above, upon the ark; and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.—EXODUS xx. 21.

And Moses said, This is the thing which the Lord commandeth, Fill an omer of the manna, to be kept for your generations; that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt. And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the Lord, to be kept for your generations. As the Lord commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the testimony, to be kept.—EXODUS xvi. 32-34.

And the Lord said unto Moses, Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token.—NUMBERS xvii. 10.

* * * * *

(EXODUS vi. 2, 3.)

And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the

* When time will admit, this lesson should consist of the first chapter of Genesis and the first three verses of the second chapter.

Lord; and I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty; but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

* * * * *

CHARGE.

COMPANIONS:—

By the consent and assistance of the members of this Chapter you are now exalted to the sublime and honorable degree of Royal Arch Mason. The rites and mysteries developed in this degree have been handed down through a chosen few, unchanged by time and uncontrolled by prejudice; and we expect and trust they will be regarded by you with the same veneration, and transmitted with the same scrupulous purity to your successors.

No one can reflect on the ceremonies of gaining admission into this place without being forcibly struck with the important lessons which they teach. Here we are necessarily led to contemplate with gratitude and admiration the sacred Source from whence all earthly comforts flow. Here we find additional inducements to continue steadfast and immovable in the discharge of our respective duties; and here we are bound by the most solemn ties to promote each other's welfare and correct each other's failings by advice, admonition, and reproof. It is a duty we owe to our companions of this order, that the admission of every candidate into this Chapter should be attended by the examination of the most scrutinizing eye, so that we may always possess the satisfaction of finding none among us but such as will promote to the utmost of their power the great end of our institution. By paying due attention to this determination, you will never recommend any candidate to this Chapter whose abilities and knowledge you cannot freely vouch for, and whom you do not firmly and confidently believe will fully conform to the principles of our order and fulfil the obligations of a Royal Arch Mason. While such are our members, we may expect to be united in one object, without lukewarmness, inattention, or neglect; but zeal, fidelity, and affection will be the distinguishing characteristics of our society, and that satisfaction, harmony, and peace may be enjoyed at our meetings which no other society can afford.

INVOCATION AT CLOSING.

By the wisdom of the Supreme High Priest may we be directed, by his strength may we be enabled, and by the beauty of virtue may we be incited, to perform the obligations here enjoined on us, to keep inviolably the mysteries here unfolded to us, and invariably to practise all those duties out of the Chapter which are inculcated in it. Amen.

The following remarks relative to King Solomon's temple cannot be uninteresting to a Royal Arch Mason :—

This famous fabric was situated on Mount Moriah, near the place where Abraham was about to offer up his son Isaac, and where David met and appeased the destroying angel who was visible over the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite. It was begun in the fourth year of the reign of Solomon, the third after the death of David, four hundred and eighty years after the passage of the Red Sea, and on the second day of the month Zif, being the second month of the sacred year, which answers to the 21st of April, in the year of the world two thousand nine hundred and ninety-two, and was carried on with such prodigious speed that it was finished in all its parts in little more than seven years.

By the masonic art, and the wise regulations of Solomon, this famous edifice was erected without the sound of the axe, hammer, or any tool of iron; for the stones were all hewed, squared, and numbered in the quarries of Zeradathah, where they were raised; the timbers were fitted and prepared in the forest of Lebanon, and conveyed by sea in floats to Joppa, and from thence by land to Jerusalem, where the fabric was erected by the assistance of wooden instruments prepared for that purpose. And when the building was finished, its several parts fitted with that exact nicety that it had more the appearance of being the handiwork of the Supreme Architect of the Universe, than of human hands.

In the year of the world 3029, King Solomon died, and was succeeded by his son Rehoboam. Soon after this, instigated and led on by Jeroboam the son of Nebat, ten of the tribes revolted from Rehoboam, and set up a separate kingdom, with Jeroboam at their head. In this manner were the tribes of Israel divided and under two distinct governments for two hundred and fifty-four years. The ten revolted tribes became weak and degenerated; their country was laid waste, and their government overthrown and extirpated, by Salmanezer, King of Assyria. After a series of changes and events, Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, having besieged Jerusalem, and raised towers all round the city, so that, after defending it for the space of a year and a half, it was, in the eleventh year of the reign of Zedekiah, King of Judah, surrendered and delivered at midnight to the officers of Nebuchadnezzar, who sacked and destroyed the temple, and took away all the holy vessels, together with those two famous brazen pillars; and the remnant of the people that escaped the sword carried he away captive to Babylon, where they remained servants to him and his successors until the reign of Cyrus, King of Persia. Cyrus, in the first year of his reign, being directed by that divine power which invisibly led him to the throne of Persia, issued his famous edict for the liberation of the Hebrew captives, with permission that they should return to their native country and rebuild the city and house of the Lord. Accordingly, the principal people of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, with the priests and Levites, immediately departed for Jerusalem and commenced the great and glorious work of re-edification.

Royal Master's Degree.

ROYAL MASTER'S DEGREE.

THIS degree cannot be legally conferred on any but Royal Arch Masons, who have taken all the preceding degrees; and it is preparatory to that of the Select Master. Although it is short, yet it contains much valuable information, and it is intimately connected with the degree of Select Master. It also enables us with ease and facility to examine the privileges of others to this degree, while at the same time it proves ourselves.

Reception.

* * * * *

(1 KINGS vii. 48-50; and 40.)

And Solomon made all the vessels that pertained unto the house of the Lord: the altar of gold, and the table of gold, whereupon the shew-bread was; and the candlesticks of pure gold, five on the right side, and five on the left, before the oracle, with the flowers, and the lamps, and the topgs of gold, and the bowls, and the snuffers, and the basins, and the spoons, and the censers of pure gold, and the hinges of gold, both for the doors of the inner house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the house, to wit, of the Temple. So Hiram made an end of doing all the work that he made King Solomon, for the house of the Lord.

* * * * *

(REV. xxii. 12-14.)

And behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

(1 KINGS vi. 27.)

And he set the cherubim within the inner house; and they stretched forth the wings of the cherubim, so that the wing of the one touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house.

* * * * *

The Ark, called the glory of Israel, which was seated in the middle of the holy place, under the wings of the cherubim, was a small chest, or coffer, three feet nine inches long, two feet three inches wide, and three feet three inches high. It was made of wood, excepting only the mercy-seat, but overlaid with gold, both inside and out. It had a ledge of gold surrounding it at the top, into which the cover, called the mercy-seat, was let in. The mercy-seat was of solid gold, the thickness of a hand's-breadth; at the two ends of it were two cherubim, looking inwards towards each other, with their wings expanded, which embracing the whole circumference of the mercy-seat, they met on each side, in the middle; all of which, the Rabbins say, was made out of the same mass, without any soldering of parts.

Here the Shekinah, or Divine Presence, rested, and was visible in the appearance of a cloud over it. From hence the Bathkoll issued, and gave answers when God was consulted. And hence it is that God is said, in the Scriptures, to dwell between the cherubim,—that is, between the cherubim on the mercy-seat; because there was the seat or throne of the visible appearance of his glory among them.

Select Master's Degree.

SELECT MASTER'S DEGREE.

THIS degree is the summit and perfection of Ancient Masonry, and without which the history of the Royal Arch Degree cannot be complete. It rationally accounts for the concealment and preservation of those essentials of the Craft which were brought to light at the erection of the second Temple, and which lay concealed from the Masonic eye four hundred and seventy years.

Many particulars relative to those few who, for their superior skill, were selected to complete an important part of King Solomon's Temple, are explained.

Clothing.

Apron,—white lamb-skin, of a triangular form, edged with purple and gold.

Collar,—purple silk or velvet, edged with gold from the bottom of which the jewel of the degree is worn.

Jewel,—a gold equilateral triangle, in the centre of which is a gold trowel.

Officers.

The officers of a Council of Select Masters are as follows:—

1. Thrice Illustrious G.:. M.:. , as K.:. S.:. , seated in the East.
2. Deputy Illustrious G.:. M.:. , as H.:. K.:. T.:. , on the right, in the East.
3. P.:. C.:. W.:. , as H.:. A.:. , on the left.
4. Treasurer, in the North.
5. Recorder, in the South.
6. Captain of the Guards, as Adoniram, in the West.
7. Grand Steward, as Achizar, at the door.

Opening.

* * * * *

(PSALM lxxxvii.)

His foundation is in the holy mountains. The Lord loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob. Glorious things are spoken of thee, O city of God. Selah. I will make mention of Rahab and Babylon to them that know me. Behold Philistia and Tyre, with Ethiopia; this man was born there. And of Zion it shall be said, This and that man was born in her; and the highest himself shall establish her. The Lord shall count, when he writeth up the people, that this man was born there. Selah. As well the singers, as the players on instruments, shall be there: all my springs are in thee.

Reception.

* * * * *

(1 KINGS iv. 1, 5 and 6.)

So King Solomon was king over all Israel. Azariah, the son of Nathan, was over the officers; and Zabud, the son of Nathan, was principal officer, and the king's friend; and Ahishar was over the household; and Adoniram, the son of Abda, was over the tribute.

(1 KINGS v. 17, 18.)

And the king commanded, and they brought great stones, costly stones, and hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house. And Solomon's builders and Hiram's builders did hew them, and the stone-squarers; so they prepared timber and stones to build the house.

(1 KINGS viii. 13, 14.)

And King Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre. He was a widow's son, of the tribe of Naphtali; and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker of brass; and he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and cunning, to work all works in brass.

(EZEKIEL xxvii. 9.)

The ancients of Gebal, and the wise men thereof, were in thee thy calkers; all the ships of the sea, with their mariners, were in thee, to occupy thy merchandise.

* * * * *

(DEUT. xxxi. 24-26.)

And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished, that Moses commanded the Levites, which bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying, Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee. * * * * *

(EXODUS xvi. 33, 34.)

And Moses said unto Aaron, Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the Lord, to be kept for your generations. As the Lord commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the testimony to be kept. * * * * *

(NUMBERS xvii. 10.)

And the Lord said unto Moses, Bring Aaron's rod again before the testimony, to be kept for a token.

* * * * *

(NUMBERS vii. 89.)

And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation, to speak with him, then he heard the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy-seat that was upon the ark of the testimony, from between the two cherubim; and he spake unto him. * * * * *

(EXODUS xxv. 40.)

And look that thou make them after their pattern, which was showed thee in the mount.

* * * * *

CHARGE TO A SELECT MASTER.

COMPANION :—

Having attained to this degree, you have passed the circle of perfection in ancient Masonry. In the capacity of Select Master you must be sensible that your obligations are increased in proportion to your privileges. Let it be your constant care to prove yourself worthy of the confidence reposed in you, and of the high honor conferred on you, in admitting you to this select degree. Let uprightness and integrity attend your steps; let justice and mercy mark your conduct; let fervency and zeal stimulate you in the discharge of the various duties incumbent on you; but suffer not an idle or impertinent curiosity to lead you astray, or betray you into danger. Be deaf to every insinuation which would have a tendency to weaken your resolution, or tempt you to an act of disobedience. Be voluntarily dumb and blind, when the exercise of those faculties would endanger the peace of your mind or the probity of your conduct; and let silence and secrecy, those cardinal virtues of a Select Master, on all necessary occasions be scrupulously observed. By a steady adherence to the important instructions contained in this degree you will merit the approbation of the select number with whom you are associated, and will enjoy the high satisfaction of having acted well your part in the important enterprise in which you are engaged; and, after having wrought your regular hours, may you be admitted to participate in all the privileges of a Select Master.

CHARGE AT CLOSING A COUNCIL OF SELECT MASTERS.

(PSALM xxxiii. 18-22.)

Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy;

To deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine.

Our soul waiteth for the Lord: he is our help and our shield.

For our heart shall rejoice in him, because we have trusted in his holy name.

Let thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us, according as we hope in thee.

ORDER OF HIGH PRIESTHOOD.

THIS order appertains to the office of High Priest of a Royal Arch Chapter, and no one can be legally entitled to receive it until he has been duly elected to preside as High Priest in a regular Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. This order should be conferred by the Grand High Priest of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, or such Present or Past High Priest as he may designate for that purpose. A convention,* consisting of at least nine duly qualified High Priests, notified to meet at the time of any convocation of the Grand Chapter, will afford the best opportunity of conferring this important and exalted degree of Masonry with appropriate solemnity. Whenever it is conferred, the following directions are to be observed.

A candidate desirous of receiving the order of High Priesthood makes a written request to his predecessor in office, and through him to the Grand High Priest, respectfully requesting that a convention of High Priests may be called, for the purpose of conferring the order upon him. When the convention meets and is duly organized, a certificate of the due election of the candidate to the office of High Priest must be produced. This certificate is signed by his predecessor in office, attested by the Secretary of the Chapter. On examination of this certificate, the qualifications of the candidate are ascertained. The solemn ceremonies of conferring the order upon him then ensue. When ended, the presiding officer directs the Secretary of the convention to make a record of the proceedings and return it to the Secretary of the Grand Chapter, to be by him laid before the Grand High Priest, for the information of all whom it may concern. The convention of High Priests is then dissolved in due form.

It is the duty of every Companion, as soon after his election to the office of High Priest as is consistent with his personal convenience, to apply for admission to the order of High Priesthood, that he may be fully qualified properly to govern his Chapter.

* Councils of High Priests are now regularly organized and held in nearly every State during the session of State Grand Chapters.

Opening.

* * * * *

LESSON.

(ISAIAH lxi. 1, 2, 8.)

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn;

To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called Trees of righteousness, The planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified.

PRAYER.

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so also upon the earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.

Reception.

* * * * *

(GENESIS xiv. 12-24.)

And they took Lot, Abraham's brother's son (who dwelt in Sodom), and his goods, and departed. And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram, the Hebrew; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner; and these were confederate with Abram. And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he armed his trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan. And he divided himself against them, he and his servants, by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus. And he brought back all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people. And the king of Sodom went out to meet him (after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him), at the valley of Shevah, which is the king's dale. And Melchizedek, king of Salem, brought forth bread and wine; and he was the priest of the Most High God. And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be Abram of the Most High God, who hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him tithes of all. And the king of Sodom said to Abram, Give me the persons, and take the goods to thyself. And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I have lifted up mine hand to the Lord, the Most High God, the possessor of heaven and earth, that I will not take from a thread even to a shoe-latchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich: save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre, let them take their portion.

* * * * *

(NUMBERS vi. 22-26.)

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, saying, On this wise, ye shall bless the children of Israel, saying unto them, The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make his face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

* * * * *

(HEBREWS vii. 1-6.)

For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God (who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him; to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being, by interpretation, King of Righteousness, and after that also, King of Salem, which is, King of Peace: without father, without mother, without descent; having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God), abideth a priest continually. Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils. And verily they that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people, according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham.

For he testifieth, Thou art a priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek.

And inasmuch as not without an oath he was made priest.

For those priests (under the Levitical law) were made without an oath; but this with an oath by him that said unto him, The Lord sware, and will not repent, Thou art a priest forever, after the order of Melchisedek.

* * * * *

PRAYER ON CLOSING A COUNCIL OF HIGH PRIESTS.

(PSALM cvi. 47, 48.)

Save us, O Lord our God, and gather us from amongst the nations, to give thanks unto thy holy name, to triumph in thy praise.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from eternity to eternity; and let all the people say, Amen. Praise ye the Lord.

CEREMONIES AND CHARGES UPON THE INSTALLATION OF THE OFFICERS OF A ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER.

1. The Grand Officers will meet at a convenient place, and open.

2. The subordinate Chapter will meet in its Hall, and open on the Royal Arch Degree preparatory to the reception of the Grand Officers.

3. When ready for their reception, they will dispatch a committee to the place where the Grand Officers are assembled, to inform the Grand Marshal that the Chapter is prepared to receive them. The Grand Marshal will announce the committee, and introduce them to the Grand Officers.

4. The Grand Officers will move in procession, conducted by the committee, to the hall of the Chapter, in the following order:—

Grand Sentinel;
Two Grand Stewards;
Members of subordinate Chapters, according to seniority, triangularly;
Three Great Lights;
Orator, Chaplain, and other clergy;
Grand Secretary, Grand Treasurer, and Grand Royal Arch
Captain;
Grand P. Sojourner, Grand Captain of the Host, and Deputy Grand High Priest;
Grand Scribe, Grand King, and Grand High Priest;
(Grand Marshal on the left of the procession.)

When the Grand High Priest enters, the grand honors are given, and the officers of the new Chapter resign their stations to the Grand Officers.

5. The Grand Secretary will then call over the names of the officers elect, and the Grand High Priest will ask whether they accept their respective offices. If they answer in the affirmative, he then asks the members whether they remain satisfied with their choice. If they answer in the affirmative, he directs their officers to approach the sacred volume, and become qualified for Installation, agreeably to the 4th section of the 4th article of the General Grand Royal Arch Constitution.

6. The Grand Marshal will then form the new Chapter in procession, and march around the Chapter and through the veils into the inner apartment, where they will surround the altar, which is previously prepared in ample form for the occasion.

7. All present will kneel, and the following prayer will be recited.

PRAYER.

Almighty and Supreme High Priest of Heaven and Earth! Who is there in heaven but thee? and who upon earth beside thee? Thy OMNISCIENT Mind brings all things in review, past, present, and to come; thine OMNIPOTENT Arm directs the movements of the vast creation; thine OMNIPRESENT Eye pervades the secret recesses of every heart; thy boundless beneficence supplies us with every comfort and enjoyment; and thine unspeakable perfections and glory surpass the understanding of the children of men! Our Father, who art in heaven, we invoke thy benediction upon the purposes of our present assembly. Let this Chapter be established to thine honor; let its officers be endowed with wisdom to discern and fidelity to pursue its true interests; let its members be ever mindful of the duty they owe to their God, the obedience they owe to their superiors, the love they owe to their equals, and the good will they owe to all mankind. Let this Chapter be consecrated to thy glory, and its members ever exemplify their love to God by their beneficence to men.

Glory be to God on high.

[Response.]

Amen. So mote it be!

They are then qualified in due form.

8. The whole then repair to their appropriate stations, when the Grand Marshal will form a general procession on the outside of the Hall in the following order:—

Captain of the Host:	Three Royal Arch Stewards, with Rods;
	Tiler of a Lodge of Master Masons;
	Entered Apprentices;
	Fellow-Crafts;
	Master Masons;
	Stewards of Lodges, having Jewels;
	Deacons, having Jewels;
	Secretaries, having Jewels;
	Treasurers, having Jewels;
	Wardens, having Jewels;
	Mark Master Masons;
	M. E. Masters;
	Royal Arch Masons, by three;
	Royal Masters, by three;
	Select Masters, by three;
	Orders of Knighthood;
	Sentinel of the New Chapter;
Members of the new Chapter, by three;
Three Masters of Veils;
Secretary, Treasurer, R. A. Captain, and P. Sojourner, carrying the Ark;
A Companion, carrying the Pot of Incense;
Three Companions, carrying Lights;*
Scribe, High Priest, and King;
Grand Chapter, as before prescribed.†

On arriving at the church, or house where the services are to be performed, they halt, open to the right and left, and face inward, while the Grand Officers and others in succession pass through and enter the house.

9. The officers and members of the new Chapter, and also of the Grand Chapter, being seated, the Grand Marshal proclaims silence, and the ceremonies commence.

10. Music. (An Anthem.)

11. Prayer by the Grand Chaplain.

12. An Oration or Address.

* Ante, pp. 92, 93.

† Ibid. p. 183.

13. Music.

*[14. The Deputy Grand High Priest then rises and informs the Grand High Priest that "a number of Companions, duly instructed in the sublime mysteries, being desirous of promoting the honor and propagating the principles of the Art, have applied to the Grand Chapter for a warrant to constitute a new Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, which having been obtained, they are now assembled for the purpose of being constituted and having their officers installed in due and ancient form."]

[15. The Grand Marshal will then form the officers and members of the new Chapter in front of the Grand Officers; after which the Grand High Priest directs the Grand Secretary to read the warrant.]

[16 The Grand High Priest then rises, and says,

By virtue of the high powers in me vested, I do form you, my respected Companions, into a regular Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. From henceforth you are authorized and empowered to open and hold a Lodge of Mark Masters, Past Masters, and Most Excellent Masters, and a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons; and to do and perform all such things as thereunto may appertain; conforming in all your doings to the General Grand Royal Arch Constitution, and the general regulations of the State Grand Chapter. And may the God of your fathers be with you, guide and direct you in all your doings.]

17. The furniture, clothing, jewels, implements, utensils, &c. belonging to the Chapter (having been previously placed in the centre, in front of the Grand Officers, covered), are now uncovered, and the new Chapter is dedicated in due and ancient form

18. The Dedication then follows: the Grand Chaplain saying,

To our Most Excellent Patron, ZERUBBABEL, we solemnly dedicate this Chapter. May the blessing of our

* NOTE.—Those paragraphs which are enclosed within brackets apply exclusively to cases when new Chapters are constituted and their officers installed for the first time. The rest apply equally to such cases as well as to annual installations.

Heavenly High Priest descend and rest upon its members, and may their felicity be immortal.

Glory be to God on high.

Response by the Companions.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end! Amen.

So mote it be.

19. The Grand Marshal then says,

I do hereby proclaim this Chapter, by the name of—— Chapter, duly consecrated, constituted, and dedicated. This, &c. &c.

20. Music.

21. The Deputy Grand High Priest will then present the first officer of the new Chapter to the Grand High Priest, saying,

MOST EXCELLENT GRAND HIGH PRIEST:—

I present you my worthy Companion ——, nominated in the warrant, to be installed High Priest of this [new] Chapter. I find him to be skilful in the royal art, and attentive to the moral precepts of our forefathers, and have therefore no doubt that he will discharge the duties of his office with fidelity.

The Grand High Priest then addresses him as follows:—

MOST EXCELLENT:—

I feel much satisfaction in performing my duty on the present occasion by installing you into the office of High Priest of this [new] Chapter. It is an office highly honorable to all those who diligently perform the important duties annexed to it. Your reputed Masonic knowledge, however, precludes the necessity of a particular enumeration of those duties. I shall therefore only observe that by a frequent recurrence to the constitution, and general regulations, and constant practice of the several sublime lectures and charges, you will be best able to fulfil them; and I am confident that the Companions who are chosen to preside with you will give strength to your endeavors, and support your exertions. I shall now propose certain questions to you, relative to the duties of your office, and to which I must request your unequivocal answer.

1. Do you solemnly promise that you will redouble your endeavors to correct the vices, purify the morals, and promote the happiness of those of your Companions who have attained this sublime degree?

2. That you will never suffer your Chapter to be opened, unless there be present nine regular Royal Arch Masons?

3. That you will never suffer either more or less than three Brethren to be exalted in your Chapter at one and the same time?

4. That you will not exalt any one to this degree who has not shown a charitable and humane disposition, or who has not made a considerable proficiency in the foregoing degree?

5. That you will promote the general good of our order, and on all proper occasions be ready to give and receive instructions, and particularly from the General and State Grand Officers?

6. That to the utmost of your power you will preserve the solemnities of our ceremonies, and behave in open Chapter with the most profound respect and reverence, as an example to your Companions?

7. That you will not acknowledge, or have intercourse with, any Chapter that does not work under a constitutional warrant or dispensation?

8. That you will not admit any visitor into your Chapter who has not been exalted in a Chapter legally constituted, without his being first formally healed?

9. That you will observe and support such by-laws as may be made by your Chapter, in conformity to the General Grand Royal Arch Constitution and the general regulations of the Grand Chapter?

10. That you will pay respect and due obedience to the instructions of the General and State Grand Officers, particularly relating to the several Lectures and Charges, and will resign the chair to them, severally, when they may visit your Chapter?

11. That you will support and observe the General Grand Royal Arch Constitution and the general regulations of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter, under whose authority you act?

Do you submit to all these things, and do you promise to observe and practise them faithfully?

These questions being answered in the affirmative, the Companions all kneel in due form, and the Grand High Priest, or Grand Chaplain, repeats the following, or some other suitable prayer:—

Most holy and glorious Lord God, the Great High Priest of Heaven and Earth! We approach thee with reverence, and implore thy blessing on the Companion appointed to preside over this new assembly, and now prostrate before thee. Fill his heart with thy fear, that his tongue and actions may pronounce thy glory. Make him steadfast in thy service; grant him firmness of mind; animate his heart, and strengthen his endeavors. May he teach thy judgments and thy laws, and may the incense he shall put before thee upon thine altar prove an acceptable sacrifice unto thee! Bless him, O Lord, and bless the work of his hands! Accept us in mercy; hear thou from heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive our transgressions!

Glory be to God the Father: as it was in the beginning, &c.

Response.—So mote it be!

22. The Grand High Priest will then cause the High Priest Elect to be invested with his robes, jewels, &c., after which he will address him as follows, viz.:—

MOST EXCELLENT:—

In consequence of your cheerful acquiescence with the charges which you have heard recited, you are qualified for installation as the High Priest of this Royal Arch Chapter; and it is incumbent upon me, on this occasion, to point out some of the particulars appertaining to your office, duty, and dignity.

[All legally constituted bodies of Royal Arch Masons are called Chapters; as regular bodies of Masons of the preceding degrees are called Lodges. Every Chapter ought to assemble for work at least once in three months, and must consist of a High Priest, King, Scribe, Captain of the Host, Principal Sojourner, Royal Arch Captain, three Grand Masters of the Veils, Treasurer, Secretary, and as many members as may be found convenient for working to advantage.

The officers of the Chapter officiate in the Lodges, holden for conferring the preparatory degrees, according to rank, as follows, viz.:—

The High Priest, as Master.

The King, as Senior Warden.

The Scribe, as Junior Warden.

The Captain of the Host, as Marshal or Master of Ceremonies.

The Principal Sojourner, as Senior Deacon.

The Royal Arch Captain, as Junior Deacon.

The Master of the First Veil, as Junior Overseer.

The Master of the Second Veil, as Senior Overseer.

The Master of the Third Veil, as Master Overseer.

The Treasurer, Secretary, Chaplain, Stewards, and Sentinel, as officers of corresponding rank.]

The High Priest of every Chapter has it in special charge to see that the by-laws of his Chapter, as well as the General Grand Royal Arch Constitution, and all the regulations of the Grand Chapter, are duly observed; that all the officers of his Chapter perform the duties of their respective offices faithfully, and are examples of diligence and industry to their companions; that true and accurate records of all the proceedings of the Chapter are kept by the Secretary; that the Treasurer keeps and renders exact and just accounts of all the moneys and other property belonging to the Chapter; that the regular returns be made annually to the Grand Chapter; and that the annual dues to the Grand Chapter be regularly and punctually paid. He has the right and authority of calling his Chapter together at pleasure upon any emergency or occurrence which in his judgment may require their meeting. It is his privilege and duty, together with the King and Scribe, to attend the meetings of the Grand Chapter, either in person or by proxy; and the well-being of the institution requires that his duty should on no occasion be omitted.

The office of High Priest is a station highly honorable to all those who diligently perform the important duties annexed to it. By a frequent recurrence to the constitution and general regulations, and a constant practice of the several sublime lectures and charges, you will be best enabled to fulfil those duties; and I am confident that the companions who are chosen to preside with you will give strength to your endeavors and support to your exertions.

Let the Mitre with which you are invested remind you of the dignity of the office you sustain, and its inscription impress upon your mind a sense of your dependence upon God; that perfection is not given unto man upon earth, and that perfect holiness belongeth alone unto the Lord.

The Breast-Plate with which you are decorated, in imitation of that upon which were engraven the names of the twelve tribes, and worn by the High Priest of Israel, is to teach you that you are always to bear in mind your responsibility to the laws and ordinances of the institution, and that the honor and interests of your Chapter and its members should be always near your heart.

The various colors of the Robes you wear are emblematical of every grace and virtue which can adorn and beautify the human mind; each of which will be briefly illustrated in the course of the charges to be delivered to your subordinate officers.

You will now take charge of your officers, standing upon their right, and present them severally in succession to the Deputy Grand High Priest, by whom they will be presented to me for installation.

22. The High Priest of the Chapter will then present each of his officers to the Deputy Grand High Priest, who will present them to the Grand High Priest, by whom they will be invested with their official clothing and jewels, and addressed as follows:—

CHARGE TO THE SECOND OFFICER, OR KING.

EXCELLENT COMPANION:—

The important station to which you are elected in this Chapter requires from you exemplary conduct; its duties demand your most assiduous attention: you are to second and support your chief in all the requirements of his office; and should casualties at any time prevent his attendance, you are to succeed him in the performance of his duties.

Your badge (the Level, surmounted by a crown) should remind you that, although you are the representative of a King, and exalted by office above your Companions, yet that you remain upon a level with them, as respects your duty to God, to your neighbor, and to yourself; that you are equally bound with them to be obedient to the laws and ordinances of the institution, to be charitable, humane, and just, and to seek every occasion of doing good.

Your office teaches a striking lesson of humility. The institutions of political society teach us to consider the king as the chief of created beings, and that the first duty of his subjects is to obey his mandates; but the institutions of our sublime degrees, by placing the King in a situation subordinate to the High Priest, teach us that our duty to God is paramount to all other duties, and should ever claim the priority of our obedience to man, and that, however strongly we may be bound to obey the laws of civil society, yet that those laws, to be just, should never intermeddle with matters of conscience, nor dictate articles of faith.

The Scarlet Robe, an emblem of imperial dignity, should remind you of the paternal concern you should ever feel for the welfare of your Chapter, and the fervency and zeal with which you should endeavor to promote its prosperity.

In presenting to you the Crown, which is an emblem of royalty, I would remind you that to reign sovereign in the hearts and affections of men must be far more grateful to a generous and benevolent mind than to rule over their lives and fortunes; and that, to enable you to enjoy this pre-eminence with honor and satisfaction, you must subject your own passions and prejudices to the dominion of reason and charity.

You are entitled to the second seat in the council of your Companions. Let the bright example of your illustrious predecessor in the Grand Council at Jerusalem stimulate you to the faithful discharge of your duties; and when the King of kings shall summon you into his immediate presence, from his hand may you receive a crown of glory, which shall never fade away.

CHARGE TO THE THIRD OFFICER, OR SCRIBE.

EXCELLENT COMPANION:—

The office of Scribe, to which you are elected, is very important and respectable. In the absence of your superior officers, you are bound to succeed them, and to perform their duties. The purposes of the institution ought never to suffer for want of intelligence in its proper officers: you will, therefore, perceive the necessity there is of your possessing such qualifications as will enable you to accomplish those duties which are incumbent upon you in your appropriate station, as well as those which may occasionally devolve on you by the absence of your superiors.

The Purple Robe, with which you are invested, is an emblem of union, and is calculated to remind you that the harmony and unanimity of the Chapter should be your constant aim; and to this end you are studiously to avoid all occasions of giving offence, or countenancing any thing that may create divisions or dissensions. You are, by all means in your power, to endeavor to establish a permanent union and good understanding among all orders and degrees of Masonry; and, as the glorious sun at its meridian height dispels the mist and clouds which obscure the horizon, so may your exertions tend to dissipate the gloom of jealousy and discord, whenever they may appear.

Your badge (a Plumb-Rule, surmounted by the Turban) is an emblem of rectitude and vigilance; and while you stand as a watchman upon the tower, to guard your Companions against the approach of those enemies of human felicity, intemperance and excess, let this faithful monitor ever remind you to walk uprightly in your station, admonishing and animating your Companions to fidelity and industry while at labor, and to temperance and moderation while at refreshment. And when the Great Watchman of Israel, whose eye never slumbers nor sleeps, shall relieve you from your post on earth, may he permit you in heaven to participate in that food and refreshment which is “Such as the saints in glory love,

And such as angels eat.”

CHARGE TO THE FOURTH OFFICER, OR CAPTAIN OF THE HOST.

COMPANION :—

The office with which you are intrusted is of high importance, and demands your most zealous consideration. The preservation of the most essential traits of our ancient customs, usages, and landmarks is within your province; and it is indispensably necessary that the part assigned to you, in the immediate practice of our rites and ceremonies, should be perfectly understood and correctly administered.

Your office corresponds with that of Marshal, or Master of Ceremonies. You are to superintend all processions of your Chapter when moving as a distinct body, either in public or private; and as the world can only judge of our private discipline by our public deportment, you will be careful that the utmost order and decorum be observed on all such occasions. You will ever be attentive to the commands of your chief, and always near at hand to see them duly executed. I invest you with the badge of your office, and presume that you will give to your duties all that study and attention which their importance demands.

CHARGE TO THE FIFTH OFFICER, OR PRINCIPAL SOJOURNER.

COMPANION :—

The office confided to you, though subordinate in degree, is equal in importance to any in the Chapter, that of your Chief alone excepted. Your office corresponds with that of Senior Deacon, in the preparatory degrees. Among the duties required of you, the preparation and introduction of candidates are not the least. As, in our intercourse with the world, experience teaches that first impressions are often the most durable and the most difficult to eradicate, so it is of great importance, in all cases, that those impressions should be correct and just: hence it is essential that the officer, who brings the blind by a way that they knew not, and leads them in paths that they have not known, should always be well qualified to make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight.

Your Robe of Office is an emblem of humility, and teaches that, in the prosecution of a laudable undertaking, we should never decline taking any part that may be assigned us, although it may be the most difficult or dangerous.

The rose-colored tessellated Border, adorning the robe, is an emblem of ardor and perseverance, and signifies that when we have engaged in a virtuous course, notwithstanding all the impediments, hardships, and trials we may be destined to encounter, we should endure them all with fortitude, and ardently persevere unto the end, resting assured of receiving, at the termination of our labors, a noble and glorious reward. Your past exertions will be considered as a pledge of your future assiduity in the faithful discharge of your duties.

CHARGE TO THE SIXTH OFFICER, OR ROYAL ARCH CAPTAIN.

COMPANION:—

The well-known duties of your station require but little elucidation. Your office in the preparatory degrees corresponds with that of Junior Deacon. It is your province, conjointly with the Captain of the Host, to attend the examination of all visitors, and to take care that none are permitted to enter the Chapter but such as have travelled the rugged path of trial and evinced their title to our favor and friendship. You will be attentive to obey the commands of the Captain of the Host during the introduction of strangers among the workmen; and, should they be permitted to pass your post, may they by him be introduced into the presence of the Grand Council.

The White Banner, intrusted to your care, is emblematical of that purity of heart and rectitude of conduct which ought to actuate all those who pass the white veil of the sanctuary. I give it to you strongly in charge never to suffer any one to pass your post without the signet of truth.

I present you the badge of your office, in expectation of your performing your duties with intelligence, assiduity, and propriety.

CHARGE TO THE MASTER OF THE THIRD VEIL.

COMPANION:—

I present you with the Scarlet Banner, which is the ensign of your office, and with a sword to protect and defend the same. The rich and beautiful color of your banner is emblematical of fervency and zeal; it is the appropriate color of the Royal Arch Degree; it admonishes us that we should be fervent in the exercise of our devotions to God, and zealous in our endeavors to promote the happiness of man.

CHARGE TO THE MASTER OF THE SECOND VEIL.

COMPANION:—

I invest you with the Purple Banner, which is the ensign of your office, and arm you with a sword, to enable you to maintain its honor.

The color of your banner is produced by a due mixture of blue and scarlet, the former of which is the characteristic color of the symbolic or first three degrees of Ma- sonry, and the latter, that of the Royal Arch Degree. It is an emblem of union, and is the characteristic color of the intermediate degrees. It admonishes us to cultivate and improve that spirit of union and harmony between the Brethren of the symbolic degrees and the Companions of the sublime degrees, which should ever distinguish the members of a society founded upon the principles of everlasting truth and universal philanthropy.

CHARGE TO THE MASTER OF THE FIRST VEIL.

COMPANION :—

I invest you with the Blue Banner, which is the ensign of your office, and a sword for its defence and protection. The color of your banner is one of the most durable and beautiful in nature. It is the appropriate color adopted and worn by our ancient Brethren of the three symbolic degrees, and is the peculiar characteristic of an institution which has stood the test of ages, and which is as much distinguished by the durability of its materials or principles as by the beauty of its superstructure. It is an emblem of universal friendship and benevolence, and instructs us that in the mind of a Mason those virtues should be as expansive as the blue arch of heaven itself.

CHARGE TO THE THREE MASTERS OF THE VEILS, AS OVERSEERS.

COMPANIONS :—

Those who are placed as overseers of any work should be well qualified to judge of its beauties and deformities, its excellencies and defects; they should be capable of estimating the former and amending the latter. This consideration should induce you to cultivate and improve all those qualifications with which you are already endowed, as well as to persevere in your endeavors to acquire those in which you are deficient. Let the various colors of the banners committed to your charge admonish you to the exercise of the several virtues of which they are emblematic; and you are to enjoin the practice of those virtues upon all who shall present themselves, or the work of their hands, for your inspection. Let no work receive your approbation but such as is calculated to adorn and strengthen the Masonic edifice. Be industrious and faithful in practising and disseminating a knowledge of the true and perfect work, which alone can stand the test of the Grand Overseer's Square in the great day of trial and retribution.

CHARGE TO THE TREASURER.

COMPANION :—

You are elected Treasurer of this Chapter, and I have the pleasure of investing you with the badge of your office. The qualities which should recommend a treasurer are accuracy and fidelity: accuracy in keeping a fair and minute account of all receipts and disbursements; fidelity in carefully preserving all the property and funds of the Chapter that may be placed in his hands, and rendering a just account of the same whenever he is called upon for that purpose. I presume that your respect for the institution, your attachment to the interests of your Chapter, and your regard for a good name, which is better than precious ointment, will prompt you to the faithful discharge of the duties of your office.

CHARGE TO THE SECRETARY.

COMPANION :—

I with pleasure invest you with your badge as Secretary of this Chapter. The qualities which should recommend a secretary are promptitude in issuing the notifications and orders of his superior officers; punctuality in attending the convocations of the Chapter; correctness in reording their proceedings; judgment in discriminating between what is proper and what is improper to be committed to writing; regularity in making his annual returns to the Grand Chapter; integrity in accounting for all moneys that may pass through his hands; and fidelity in paying the same over into the hands of the treasurer. The possession of these good qualities, I presume, has designated you a suitable candidate for this important office; and I cannot entertain a doubt that you will discharge its duties beneficially to the Chapter and honorably to yourself. And when you shall have completed the record of your transactions here below, and finished the term of your probation, may you be admitted into the celestial Grand Chapter of saints and angels, and find your name recorded in the book of life eternal.

CHARGE TO THE CHAPLAIN.

E. AND REV. COMPANION :—

You are appointed Chaplain of this Chapter; and I now invest you with this circular jewel, the badge of your office. It is emblematical of eternity, and reminds us that here is not our abiding-place. Your inclination will undoubtedly conspire with your duty, when you perform in the Chapter those solemn services which created beings should constantly render to their infinite CREATOR, and which, when offered by one whose holy profession is “to point to heaven and lead the way,” may, by refining our morals, strengthening our virtues, and purifying our minds, prepare us for admission into the society of those above, whose happiness will be as endless as it is perfect.

CHARGE TO THE SENTINEL.

COMPANION :—

You are appointed Sentinel of this Chapter, and I invest you with the badge and this implement of your office. As the sword is placed in the hands of the Sentinel, to enable him effectually to guard against the approach of all cowans and eavesdroppers, and suffer none to pass or repass but such as are duly qualified, so it should morally serve as a constant admonition to us to set a guard at the entrance of our thoughts, to place a watch at the door of our lips, to post a sentinel at the avenue of our actions, thereby excluding every unqualified and unworthy thought, word, and deed, and preserving consciences void of offence towards God and towards man.

As the first application from visitors for admission into the Chapter is generally made to the Tiler at the door, your station will often present you to the observation of strangers. It is, therefore, essentially necessary that he who sustains the office with which you are intrusted should be a man of good morals, steady habits, strict discipline, temperate, affable, and discreet. I trust that a just regard for the honor and reputation of the institution will ever induce you to perform with fidelity the trust reposed in you; and when the door of this earthly tabernacle shall be closed, may you find an abundant entrance through the gates into the temple and city of our God.

ADDRESS TO THE HIGH PRIEST.

M. E. COMPANION :—

Having been honored with the free suffrages of the members of this Chapter, you are elected to the most important office which it is within their power to bestow. This expression of their esteem and respect should draw from you corresponding sensations; and your demeanor should be such as to repay the honor they have so conspicuously conferred upon you by an honorable and faithful discharge of the duties of your office. The station you are called to fill is important, not only as it respects the correct practice of our rites and ceremonies and the internal economy of the Chapter over which you preside, but the public reputation of the institution will be generally found to rise or fall according to the skill, fidelity, and discretion with which its concerns are managed, and in proportion as the characters and conduct of its principal officers are estimable or censurable.

You have accepted a trust to which is attached a weight of responsibility that will require all your efforts to discharge honorably to yourself and satisfactorily to the Chapter. You are to see that your officers are capable and faithful in the exercise of their offices. Should they lack ability, you are expected to supply their defects; you are to watch carefully the progress of their performances, and to see that the long-established customs of the institution suffer no derangement in their hands. You are to have a careful eye over the general conduct of the Chapter; see that due order and subordination are observed on all occasions, that the members are properly instructed, that due solemnity be observed in the practice of our rites, that no improper levity be permitted at any time, but more especially at the introduction of strangers among the workmen.

In fine, you are to be an example to your officers and members, which they need not hesitate to follow,—thus securing to yourself the favor of Heaven and the applause of your Brethren and Companions.

ADDRESS TO THE OFFICERS GENERALLY.

COMPANIONS:—

Precept and example should ever advance with equal pace. Those moral duties which you are required to teach unto others you should never neglect to practise yourselves.

Do you desire that the demeanor of your equals and inferiors towards you should be marked with deference and respect? Be sure that you omit no opportunity of furnishing them with examples in your own conduct towards your superiors. Do you desire to obtain instruction from those who are more wise or better informed than yourselves? Be sure that you are always ready to impart of your knowledge to those within your sphere who stand in need of and are entitled to receive it. Do you desire distinction among your companions? Be sure that your claims to preferment are founded upon superior attainments; let no ambitious passion be suffered to induce you to envy or supplant a Companion who may be considered as better qualified for promotion than yourselves; but rather let a laudable emulation induce you to strive to excel each other in improvement and discipline; ever remembering that he who faithfully performs his duty, even in a subordinate or private station, is as justly entitled to esteem and respect as he who is invested with supreme authority.

ADDRESS TO THE CHAPTER AT LARGE.

COMPANIONS:—

The exercise and management of the sublime degrees of Masonry in your Chapter hitherto are so highly appreciated, and the good reputation of the Chapter so well established, that I must presume these considerations alone, were there no others of greater magnitude, would be sufficient to induce you to preserve and to perpetuate this valuable and honorable character. But when to this is added the pleasure which every philanthropic heart must feel in doing good, in promoting good order, in diffusing light and knowledge, in cultivating Masonic and Christian charity, which are the great objects of this sublime institution, I cannot doubt that your future conduct, and that of your successors, will be calculated still more to increase the lustre of your justly esteemed reputation.

May your Chapter become beautiful as the temple, peaceful as the ark, and sacred as its most holy place! May your oblations of piety and praise be grateful as the incense, your love warm as its flame, and your charity diffusive as its fragrance! May your hearts be pure as the altar, and your conduct acceptable as the offering! May the exercises of your charity be as constant as the returning wants of the distressed widow and helpless orphan! May the approbation of Heaven be your encouragement, and the testimony of a good conscience your support! May you be endowed with every good and perfect gift while travelling the rugged path of life, and finally be admitted within the veil of heaven to the full enjoyment of life eternal! So mote it be. Amen.

24. The officers and members of the Chapter will then pass in review in front of the Grand Officers, giving the public grand honors.

25. The Grand Marshal will then proclaim the Chapter, by the name of ———, to be regularly constituted, and its officers duly installed.

26. The ceremonies conclude with appropriate music.

27. The procession is then formed as before, when they return to the place from whence they set out, and close their respective Chapters.

CONSTITUTION
OF THE
General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons,
FOR THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

As Revised and Amended at the SEVENTEENTH TRIENNIAL SESSION, held at CHICAGO, Ill.,
September, 1859.

ARTICLE I.

OF THE GENERAL GRAND CHAPTER.

SECTION 1. There shall be a General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, for the United States of America, which shall be holden triennially, on the second Tuesday in September, at such place as shall from time to time be designated for that purpose, and at which time the General Grand Officers shall be elected by ballot, and installed, except the General Grand Chaplain, who shall be appointed by the General Grand High Priest at the commencement of each Convocation of the General Grand Chapter.

The General Grand Chapter, at any regular meeting, may change the time for the next succeeding meeting; and if, in the opinion of the General Grand High Priest, or, in case of his death or absence, of the senior General Grand Officer, there shall be danger to life or health, from sickness or other local cause, by any meeting being held at the time appointed, he may change the time of the particular meeting to some subsequent time; and, in the event of such change being made, he shall immediately notify the General Grand Secretary thereof, who shall forthwith notify the other officers and members in such manner as he may deem best calculated to effect the desired object.

SEC. 2. The General Grand Chapter receives all its powers, faculties, and prerogatives by grant and delegation from the several State Grand Chapters; and it can have and possess no other powers than such as are expressly granted and delegated to it by them, or as are indispensably necessary to the exercise of its general powers, and consistent with the nature of the confederation between the State Grand Chapters. It can exercise no doubtful powers, nor any powers by implication merely; and all Masonic powers not hereby granted to it are reserved to the Grand and Subordinate Chapters of the several States.

It shall have and maintain jurisdiction over all Chapters established by itself in those States, Districts, Republics, and Territories which recognize this jurisdiction, and where there is no Grand Chapter established.

It shall have power to decide all questions of Masonic law, usage, and custom which may arise between any two or more Grand Chapters, or in any of the Subordinate Chapters under its own immediate jurisdiction, and all that may be referred to it for its decision by any Grand Chapter, by formal vote; and its decisions so made shall be deemed and regarded as those of the supreme judicial tribunal of Royal Arch Masonry in the last resort.

It shall have no power of discipline, admonition, censure, or instruction over the Grand Chapters, nor any legislative powers whatever, not hereby specially granted, nor any authority to suspend the proceedings of any State Grand Chapter, nor shall entertain any complaint against a Grand Chapter, preferred by any Subordinate Chapter or individual Mason in that jurisdiction or elsewhere; but it may, upon proper reference to it of any matter of controversy between any two or more Grand Chapters, and even where the question is not one of Masonic law, custom, or usage (both or all such Grand Chapters consenting to such reference), act as final arbiter between them, and settle such controversy.

It shall judge of the qualifications of its own members. It shall see that the ancient work of the Order is preserved in its several degrees, and establish uniform formulas for installation of its own officers and those of Grand and Subordinate Chapters, for the consecration and constitution of Chapters, and the opening of Grand Chapters; and it may suspend the proceedings of any Chapter under its own immediate jurisdiction, in any State, District, or Territory where there is no Grand Chapter, for any wilful violation of any of the provisions of this Constitution, or for gross, unmasonic proceedings or conduct.

SEC. 3. The officers of the General Grand Chapter shall consist of a General Grand High Priest, Deputy General Grand High Priest, General Grand King, General Grand Scribe, General Grand Treasurer, General Grand Secretary, General Grand Chaplain, General Grand Captain of the Host, and General Grand Royal Arch Captain. These, together with the first four officers of every State Grand Chapter under this jurisdiction, or the proxies of the first four General Grand Officers, and of the first four officers of each State Grand Chapter aforesaid, shall compose the General Grand Chapter: Provided, That any Chapter under this jurisdiction, in any State, District, or Territory where there is no Grand Chapter duly established, shall have a right to appear by its first three officers, or any one or two of them, which officers shall collectively have one vote.

SEC. 4. On all questions to be decided by the General Grand Chapter, each State Grand Chapter shall be entitled to four votes by its representative or representatives. If there be but two representatives, the inferior officer or his proxy shall give but his own single vote, and the higher or his proxy shall give the other three. If there be three representatives, the highest officer or his proxy shall give two votes, and the others or their proxies one each.

The General Grand Officers, when present, shall each have one vote; and no General Grand Officer shall be allowed to take a seat in the General Grand Chapter as the representative of any State Grand Chapter, nor shall any member of the General Grand Chapter be permitted to vote as proxy while the person giving the proxy is present; nor shall any person be admitted into the General Grand Chapter, as the representative of more than one State Grand Chapter, at one and the same time.

SEC. 5. The General Grand High Priest and Deputy General Grand High Priest shall have authority to call a special meeting of the General Grand Chapter, whenever they may consider it expedient or necessary; and it shall be their duty so to do when properly requested by a majority of the State Grand Chapters, of which four months' notice shall be given of the time and place of meeting.

SEC. 6. The General Grand High Priest, Deputy General Grand High Priest, General Grand King, and General Grand Scribe shall severally have power and authority to grant Dispensations, for a limited length of time, for new Royal Arch Chapters and Lodges of the appendant Orders, in any State, Country, Republic, or Territory in which there is not a Grand Chapter regularly established, when, in their opinion, the good of the Craft may require the same, which term of time shall in no case extend beyond the close of the next triennial meeting of the General Grand Chapter; but no new Chapter shall be established in any State, Country, Republic, or Territory where there is a Chapter within a reasonable distance, under the jurisdiction of this General Grand Chapter, without the approbation of the Chapter nearest the place where said new Chapter is proposed to be located; and in all cases of such Dispensation, the officer who may grant the same shall immediately notify the General Grand Secretary thereof, and make report of the same at the next triennial meeting of this General Grand Chapter, when the General Grand Chapter may grant the said Chapter a Charter.

SEC. 7. The fees for instituting a new Royal Arch Chapter, with subordinate degrees, shall be ninety dollars, and no more; and no credit shall be given for Dispensations or Charters, or for conferring the degrees, in any Chapter or Lodge under this jurisdiction. And every Chapter holden by Dispensation or Charter under this jurisdiction shall pay into the treasury of the General Grand Chapter the sum of two dollars for each Companion therein exalted, until such time as a Grand Chapter shall be regularly established in the State, Country, Republic, or Territory in which such Subordinate Chapter is located. The Secretary shall be paid by the petitioners ten dollars for his services in furnishing the Charter.

The fees in the several States for conferring the several degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master, and Royal Arch Mason shall not be less than twenty dollars.

SEC. 8. It shall be the duty of the General Grand High Priest, Deputy General Grand High Priest, General Grand King, and General Grand Scribe to improve and perfect themselves in the sublime Arts and work of Mark Masters, Past Masters, Most Excellent Masters, and Royal Arch Masons; to make themselves masters of the several Masonic Lectures and Ancient Charges, to consult with each other, and with the Grand and Deputy Grand High Priests, Kings, and Scribes of the several State Grand Chapters aforesaid, for the purpose of adopting measures suitable and proper for diffusing a knowledge of the said Lectures and Charges. And the better to accomplish this laudable object, the aforesaid officers are hereby severally authorized and empowered to visit and preside in any Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and Lodge of Most Excellent Master, Mark, and Past Master Masons throughout the said States, and to give such instructions and directions as the good of the Fraternity may require; always adhering to the ancient landmarks of the Order.

SEC. 9. The only degrees recognized by this General Grand Chapter, to be conferred in Chapters under its jurisdiction, are Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master, and Royal Arch Mason. And no Royal Arch Mason who shall have regularly received said degrees shall be excluded from the rights of such by reason of his not being in possession of any other, so-called, degrees.

SEC. 10. In all cases of the absence of an officer from any body of Masons instituted or holden by virtue of this Constitution, the officer next in rank shall occupy his place; unless through courtesy, or for other reasons, he should decline in favor of a Past High Priest.

SEC. 11. In every Chapter and Lodge under the immediate jurisdiction of this General Grand Chapter, all questions (except the admission of members or candidates, which shall require a unanimous ballot) shall be considered and determined in such way and manner as such Chapters and Lodges may, all circumstances considered, find most conducive to their harmony and permanent prosperity: Provided, They do not in any case interfere with or infringe on the regulations of the General Grand Chapter.

SEC. 12. The General Grand Secretary of the General Grand Chapter shall have and keep a seal, which shall be affixed to all his communications.

SEC. 13. Should any casualty, at any time hereafter, prevent the triennial election of officers, the several officers shall retain their respective offices until successors are duly elected and qualified.

SEC. 14. An appeal shall in all cases lie to the General Grand Chapter from the decision of the M. E. General Grand High Priest; but his opinion and decisions shall stand as the judgment of the General Grand Chapter, unless it is otherwise determined by the concurrent vote of two-thirds of all the members present.

ARTICLE II.

OF THE STATE GRAND CHAPTERS.

SECTION 1. The State Grand Chapters shall severally consist of a Grand High Priest, Deputy Grand High Priest, Grand King, Grand Scribe, Grand Treasurer, Grand Secretary, Grand Chaplain, Grand Captain of the Host; and likewise of the High Priests, Kings, and Scribes, for the time-being, of the several Chapters over which they shall respectively preside, and of the Past Grand and Deputy Grand High Priests, Kings, and Scribes of the said Grand Chapters; and the said Grand Chapters shall have full power and authority to elect such other officers, and establish such rules and regulations, as they shall, from time to time, consider necessary and proper: Provided, Such regulations do not in any way interfere with the provisions of this Constitution.

SEC. 2. The State Grand Chapters shall severally be holden once in every year, and oftener if they may consider it expedient or necessary, at such time and place as they shall respectively direct; and, at their annual meetings, the constitutional officers shall be elected or appointed in such manner as shall be provided for by their rules and regulations, and installed into their respective offices; and the Grand or Deputy Grand High Priests, respectively, for the time-being, may call special meetings, to be holden at such times and places as they may think proper.

SEC. 3. The several State Grand Chapters shall have the sole government and superintendence of the several Royal Arch Chapters, and Lodges of Most Excellent, Past, and Mark Master Masons, within their respective jurisdictions, to assign their limits, and to settle the controversies that may happen between them; and shall have power, under their respective seals and the signs manual of their respective Grand or Deputy Grand High Priests, Kings, and Scribes, attested by their respective Grand Secretaries, to constitute new Chapters of Royal Arch Masons, within their respective jurisdictions; but their jurisdictions shall in no case be construed to extend beyond the limits of the State, except by consent of the General Grand Chapter.

SEC. 4. The Grand and Deputy Grand High Priests, severally, shall have the power and authority, whenever they shall deem it expedient, during the recess of the Grand Chapter of which they are officers, to grant letters of Dispensation under their respective hands and private seals, to a competent number of petitioners possessing the qualifications required by the 7th Section of the second Article of this Constitution, empowering them to open a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, for a certain specified term of time: Provided, That the said term of time shall not extend beyond the next meeting of the Grand Chapter of the State in which such Dispensation shall be granted: And provided, further, That the same fees as are required by this Constitution for Charters shall be first deposited in the hands of the Grand Secretary. And in all cases of such Dispensation, the officer who may grant the same shall make report thereof at the next stated meeting of the Grand Chapter of his jurisdiction, when the said Grand Chapter may either continue or recall the said Dispensation, or may grant the petitioners a Charter of constitution. And in case such Charter shall be granted, the fees first deposited shall be credited in payment of the same; but if a Charter should not be granted, nor the Dispensation continued, the said fees shall be refunded to the said petitioners, excepting only such part thereof as shall have been actually expended by means of their application.

SEC. 5. No Dispensation or Charter shall be granted for instituting Lodges of Most Excellent, Past, or Mark Masters independent of a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

SEC. 6. The Grand Chapters shall have power, severally, to require from the several Chapters under their respective jurisdictions such reasonable proportion of sums received by them for the exaltation or advancement of candidates, and such certain annual sums from their respective members, as by their ordinances or regulations shall be appointed; all which said sums or dues shall be made good and paid annually, by the said Chapters respectively, over to the Grand Secretary of the Grand Chapter under which they hold their authority, on or before the first day of the respective annual meetings of the several Grand Chapters.

SEC. 7. No Dispensation or Charter for the institution of a new Chapter of Royal Arch Masons shall be granted, except upon the petition of nine regular Royal Arch Masons; which petition shall be accompanied with a certificate from the Chapter nearest to the place where the new Chapter is intended to be opened, vouching for the moral character and Masonic abilities of the petitioners, and recommending that a Dispensation or Charter be granted them.

SEC. 8. The Grand Secretaries of the State Grand Chapters shall severally make an annual communication to each other, and also to the Secretary of the General Grand Chapter, containing a list of Grand Officers, and all such other matters as may be deemed necessary for the mutual benefit and information of the said Grand Chapters. And the said Grand Secretaries shall also regularly transmit to the Secretary of the General Grand Chapter a copy of all their By-Laws and regulations; and also a copy of their proceedings, annually, to each of the officers of the General Grand Chapter; and the State Grand Chapters shall see that their Secretaries faithfully and punctually perform this duty.

SEC. 9. Whenever there shall have been three Chapters regularly instituted and consecrated in any State, Country, Republic, or Territory, by virtue of authority derived from this Constitution, a Grand Chapter shall be established, so soon as convenience and propriety may dictate: Provided, That the approbation of one of the first four officers of the General Grand Chapter be first obtained. And said Grand Chapters, by their regular officers, shall assemble in some suitable place, elect their officers, and make such rules and regulations for their government as may be necessary—not inconsistent with the regulations of the General Grand Chapter.

SEC. 10. No person shall be permitted to take a seat in any State Grand Chapter as the representative of more than one Chapter; nor unless he is a member of a Subordinate Chapter under that jurisdiction.

ARTICLE III.

OF THE SUBORDINATE CHAPTERS.

SECTION 1. Every Chapter of Royal Arch Masons throughout this jurisdiction shall have a Dispensation, as is provided in Section 6 of Article I., or Section 4 of Article II., of this Constitution, or a Charter from the General Grand Chapter, or from some Grand Chapter under the jurisdiction of the General Grand Chapter; and no Chapter shall be deemed legal without such Dispensation or Charter; and Masonic communication, both public and private, is hereby interdicted and forbidden between any Chapter, or any member of it, and any Chapter or assembly that may be so illegally formed, opened, or holden without such Charter, or any or either of their members, or any person exalted or advanced in such illegal Chapter. But nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any Chapter which was established before the adoption of the Grand Royal Arch Constitution, at Hartford, on the 27th day of January, A.D. 1798.

SEC. 2. Whenever a Charter is issued for instituting a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, with a power in said Charter to open and hold Lodges of Most Excellent, Past, and Mark Master Masons, the High Priest, King, and Scribe, for the time-being, of such Chapter, shall be the Master and Wardens in said Lodges, according to seniority.

SEC. 3. It is incumbent on the High Priest of every Chapter, as appertaining to his office, duty, and dignity, to see that the By-Laws of his Chapter, as well as the Constitution of the General Grand Chapter, and the Regulations of the Grand Chapter, be duly observed; that all his subordinate officers perform the duties of their respective stations faithfully, and are examples of diligence and industry to their Companions; that true and exact records be kept of all the proceedings of the Chapter by the Secretary; that the Treasurer keep and render exact and just accounts of all moneys belonging to the Chapter; that regular returns be made by the Secretary annually to the Grand Chapter of the admission of all candidates or members; and that the annual dues to the Grand Chapter be regularly and punctually paid. The Charter of this Chapter is committed to his special care and charge. He has the right and authority of calling his Chapter at pleasure upon any emergency or occurrence which in his judgment may require their meeting, and he is to fill the chair when present. It is likewise his duty, together with his King and Scribe, to attend the regular and special meetings of the Grand Chapter, either in person or by proxy.

SEC. 4. No person, having been a member of a Chapter, shall be admitted a member of any other Chapter under this jurisdiction, until he shall have produced a certificate from the Chapter to which he last belonged that he was in regular standing, and, as such, at his own request, is dismissed and recommended.

SEC. 5. That any worthy Companion, from without the jurisdiction of the United States, who may present himself as a Royal Arch Mason, and produce satisfactory evidence of his having received that degree, that each and every Chapter under the jurisdiction of this General Grand Chapter have liberty, and they are hereby authorized, to confer the degrees of Mark Master, Past Master, and Most Excellent Master on such Companions (who have not heretofore received them), to the end that they may be healed, and thereby become regular Royal Arch Masons, free of charge.

SEC. 6. That the Subordinate Chapter so conferring said degrees shall be exempt from paying any dues therefor.

SEC. 7. It shall not be deemed regular for any Chapter to confer the degrees of the Chapter upon any person whose fixed place of abode is within any other State in which there is a Chapter regularly established, except by the consent of the Chapter nearest the place of residence of said applicant.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SECTION 1. Whenever it shall be inconvenient for the General Grand Officers, or the Grand or Deputy Grand High Priests, respectively, to attend in person to constitute a new Chapter and install the officers, they shall severally have power and authority to appoint some worthy High Priest, or Past High Priest, or the High Priest of the same Chapter while it was Under Dispensation, when he himself shall have been installed, to perform the necessary ceremonies.

SEC. 2. The officers of every Chapter under this jurisdiction, whether Chartered or Under Dispensation, before they enter upon the exercise of their respective offices, and also the members of all such Chapters, and every candidate upon his admission into the same, shall take the following obligation, viz.: "I, A. B., do promise and swear that I will support and maintain the Constitution of the General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for the United States of America."

SEC. 3. This Constitution shall not be altered or amended, unless such alteration or amendment be proposed in writing at one regular meeting of the General Grand Chapter, published among the minutes of the proceedings, and at the next regular meeting receive the approval of two-thirds of the members then present.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the Constitution of the General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for the United States of America.

[SEAL.] In testimony whereof, I have caused the Seal of the General Grand Chapter to be hereunto affixed.

Dated at the city of New Orleans, this first day of November, 1859, and the year of the Order 2893.

SAMUEL G. RISK, General Grand Secretary.

HISTORY OF FREE MASONRY.

THAT we may be enabled to discover Free Masonry under those various forms which it has assumed in different countries, and at different times before it received the name it now bears, it will be necessary to give a short description of the nature of this institution, without developing those mysteries or revealing those ceremonial observances which are known only to the Brethren of the Order.

Free Masonry is an ancient and honorable institution, embracing individuals of every nation, of every religion, and of every condition in life. Wealth, power, and talents are not necessary to the person of a Free Mason. An unblemished character and virtuous conduct are the only qualifications which are requisite for admission into the Order. In order to conform to the requirements of this institution and attain the ends for which it was originally formed, every candidate must come under a solemn engagement never to divulge the mysteries and ceremonies of the Order, nor communicate to the uninitiated those important precepts with which he may be intrusted, and those proceedings and plans in which the Fraternity may be engaged.

After the candidate has undergone the necessary ceremonies and received the usual instructions, appropriate words and significant signs are imparted to him, that he may be enabled to distinguish his Brethren of the Order from the uninitiated public, and convince others that he is entitled to the privileges of a Brother.

If the newly-admitted member be found qualified for a higher degree, he is promoted, after due intervals of probation, until he has received that Masonic knowledge which enables him to hold the highest office of trust to which the Fraternity can raise its members.

OBJECT OF FREE MASONRY.

In all ages it has been the object of Free Masonry, not only to inform the minds of its members by instructing them in the sciences and useful arts, but to better their hearts by enforcing the precepts of religion and morality. In the course of the ceremonies of initiation, brotherly love, loyalty, and other virtues are inculcated in hieroglyphic symbols; and the candidate is often reminded that there is an eye above which observeth the workings of his heart and is ever fixed upon the thoughts and the actions of men.

Regular and appointed meetings of the Fraternity are held in Lodges constructed for this purpose. Temperance, harmony, and joy characterize these mixed assemblies. All fictitious distinctions of rank are laid aside, all differences in religious and political sentiments are forgotten; and those petty quarrels which disturb the harmony of private life cease to agitate the mind, and Brother strives to contribute happiness to Brother. Such are the general features of an institution which has produced many speculations among the profane, respecting its objects, origin, and tendency.

ORIGIN OF FREE MASONRY.

Whilst some, over-anxious for the dignity of the Order, have represented it as coeval with the world,* or arising from the constitution of Pythagoras,† others, from opposite motives, have maintained it to be the invention of English Jesuits,‡ or that it arose during the Crusades,§ or, as M. Barruel, that it is a continuation of the Templars.|| Without adopting any of these untenable opinions, or attempting to discover the precise period when Free Masonry arose, it is sufficient to show that it can justly lay claim to a very early origin, and that it has existed from that period to the present day, under different forms and different appellations.

We shall have occasion to consider Free Masonry when connected with the idolatry of the heathens, when devoted to the Church of Rome, and when flourishing under the milder influence of the Reformed religion; for, as every human institution is subject to great and numerous variations, so Free Masonry is affected by the progress of civilization, by the nature of the government under which it exists, and by the peculiar opinions and habits of its members.

* Anderson's History and Constitution of Free Masonry, p. 1. Desagulier's Constitutions, p. 1. Smith's Use and Abuse of Free Masonry, p. 27. Preston's Illustrations of Masonry, p. 6, 10th edition.

† Anthologia Hibernica for January, March, April, and June, 1794.

‡ Manuscript of Bode of Germany, in the possession of M. Mounier.

§ Leyden's Preliminary Dissertation to the Complaynt of Scotland, pp. 67, 71.

|| Memoirs of Jacobinism, vol. 2, pp. 377, 378, &c.

In the early ages of society the pursuit of science was probably a secondary consideration, and whatever was found necessary to a safe and comfortable existence must have been made a primary concern. As architecture, however, could only be preceded by agriculture itself, it was in this science that the first efforts of human skill were tried, and in which man must have first experienced success in extending his dominion over the works of nature. The first architects, therefore, were philosophers; and the information which was acquired individually was imparted by symbolic instruction to others of the same profession; and an association would naturally be formed for the mutual communication of knowledge and the mutual improvement and protection of its members.

In order to preserve among themselves that information which they alone collected, to excite in others a higher degree of respect for their profession, and to prevent the intrusion of those who were ignorant of their profession, appropriate words and signs would be communicated to the members of the institution, and significant ceremonies, symbolizing the search after truth and light and the worship of one God, would be performed at their initiation, that their engagement to secrecy might be impressed upon their minds, and greater regard excited for the information they were to receive. Nor is this mere speculation: there exist at this day, in the deserts of Egypt, monuments of architecture, covered with hieroglyphic inscriptions, which must have been reared in those early ages which precede the records of authentic history; and the erection of those stupendous fabrics must have required an acquaintance with the mechanical arts which is not in the possession of modern architects. It is an undoubted fact, also, that there existed in those days a particular association of men to whom scientific knowledge was confined, and who resembled the society of Free Masons in every thing but the name.

In Egypt, and those countries of Asia which lie contiguous to that favored kingdom, the arts and sciences were first cultivated with success; and it is here where Free Masonry would flourish, and here we can discover marks of its existence in the remotest ages.

It is extremely probable that the first and only object of the society of Egyptian Masons was mutual protection and the intercommunication of knowledge connected with their profession, and that those only could gain admittance into their Order whose labors were subsidiary to those of the architect. But when the ambition or vanity of the Egyptian priests prompted them to erect huge and expensive fabrics for celebrating the worship of their gods or perpetuating the memory of their kings, they would naturally desire to participate in that scientific knowledge which was possessed by the architects they employed; and as the sacerdotal order seldom fail, among a superstitious people, to gain the objects of their ambition, they would in this case succeed, and be initiated into the mysteries and instructed in the science of Free Masons.

When the Egyptian priests had procured admission into the society of Free Masons, they connected the mythology of their country, and their metaphysical speculations concerning the nature of God and the condition of man, with an association formed for the exclusive purpose of scientific improvement, and produced that combination of science and theology which in after-ages formed such a conspicuous part of the principles of Free Masonry. The knowledge of the Egyptians was carefully concealed from the vulgar; and when the priests did condescend to communicate it to the learned of other nations, it was conferred in symbols and hieroglyphics, accompanied with particular rites and ceremonies, marking the value of the gift they bestowed.

What many of those ceremonies were which were performed at initiations into the Egyptian mysteries, we are unable at this distance of time to determine. But, as the Eleusinian and other mysteries had their origin in Egypt, we may perhaps discover the qualities of the fountain by examining the nature of the stream. It is well known that Greece was peopled by a colony from Egypt, conducted thither by Inacus, about nineteen hundred and seventy years before the Christian era, and that about three centuries afterwards he was followed by Cecrops, Cadmus, and Danaus.* The Egyptians introduced the arts and sciences into that country, and sowed those seeds of improvement which in future ages exalted Greece to such pre-eminence among the nations.

After the Egyptian colonies had obtained a secure settlement in their new territories, they constituted, after the manner of their ancestors, particular festivals, or mysteries, in honor of those who had benefited their country by arts or by arms.

THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES.

In the reign of Erichthonius, about fifteen hundred years before the commencement of our era,† the Eleusinian mysteries

* Voyage du Jeune Anacharsis en Grèce, 4to, tom. 1, p. 2. Cecrops arrived in Attica in 1657 B. C. Cadmus came from Phœnicia to Bœotia in 1594, and Danaus to Argolis in 1586, B. C.

† Robertson's Greece, pp. 58, 59.

were instituted, in honor of Ceres, who came into Greece and instructed Triptolemus in the knowledge of a future state.*

About the same time the Panathenea were instituted in honor of Minerva, and the Dionysian mysteries in honor of Bacchus, who invented theatres,† and instructed the Greeks in many useful arts, but particularly in the culture of the vine.‡ That the Eleusinian and Dionysian mysteries were intimately connected with the progress of the arts and sciences, is manifest from the very end for which they were formed; and that they were modelled upon the mysteries of Isis and Osiris, celebrated in Egypt, is probable from the similarity of their origin, as well as the consent of their ancient authors.§ And if there is any plausibility in our former reasoning concerning the origin of knowledge in Egypt, it will follow that the Dionysia and the mysteries of Eleusis were societies of Free Masons, tinctured with the doctrines of Egyptian mythology. But it is not from conjecture only that this conclusion may be drawn; the striking similarity among the external forms of these secret associations, and the still more striking similarity of the objects they had in view, are strong proofs that they were only different streams issuing from a common fountain. Those who were initiated into the Eleusinian mysteries were bound by the most awful engagements to conceal the instructions they received and the ceremonies that were performed.||

None were admitted as candidates till they arrived at a certain age; and particular persons were appointed to examine and prepare them for the rites of initiation.¶ Those whose conduct was found irregular, or who had been guilty of atrocious crimes, were rejected as unworthy of initiation; while the successful candidates were instructed, by significant symbols, in the principles of religion, were exhorted to quell every turbulent appetite and passion,†† and to merit by the improvement of their minds and the purity of their hearts those ineffable benefits which they were still to receive.‡‡ Significant words were communicated to the members; superior officers presided over assemblies.§§ Their emblems were similar to those of Free Ma-

* Socrates Paneg. t. 1, p. 132.

† Polodor. Virg. de Rerum Invent. lib. 3, cap. 13.

‡ Robertson's Greece, p. 59.

§ L. Apuleii Metamorph. lib. xi.

¶ Andoc. de Myst. p. 7. Meursius in Eleus. Myst. cap. 20.

‡ Hesychius in Hydran.

 Clemens. Alexand. Strom. lib. 1, p. 325, lib. 7, p. 845.

†† Porphy. ap. Stob. Eclog. Phys. p. 142.

‡‡ Arrian in Epictet. lib. 3, cap. 21, p. 440.

§§ Robertson's Greece, p. 127.

sonry,* and the candidate advanced from one degree to another, until he had received all the lessons of wisdom and virtue which the priests could impart.† But, besides these circumstances, there are many other facts transmitted to us by ancient authors, which show its similarity to the ceremonies of Free Masonry. So striking is the resemblance that every Brother of the Order who is acquainted with them cannot question for a moment the opinion which we have been attempting to support.‡

Having thus mentioned some features of resemblance between the mysteries of Eleusis and those of Free Masonry, let us now attend to the sentiments of cotemporaries respecting these secret associations, and we shall find that they have been treated with the same illiberality and insolence. There were some men who, from self-sufficiency or unsocial dispositions, refused to be admitted into these orders; and there were others whose irregular conduct excluded them from initiation. Men of this description represented the celebration of Eleusinian mysteries as scenes of riot and debauchery, and reproached the members of the association that they were not more virtuous and more holy than themselves;§ but it is the opinion of cotemporary writers that these rumors were wholly conjectural, and originated in the silence of the initiated and the ignorance of the vulgar. They even maintain that the mysteries of Eleusis produced sanctity of manners, attention to the social duties, and a desire to be as distinguished by virtue as by silence.|| The illustrious Socrates could never be prevailed upon to partake of these mysteries,¶ and Diogenes, having received a similar solicitation, replied that Patæcion, a notorious robber, obtained initiation, and that Epaminondas and Agesilaus never desired it. But did not these know that in all human societies the virtuous and the noble must sometimes associate with the worthless and the mean? Did they not know that there often kneel in the same temple the righteous and the profane, and that the saint and the sinner frequently officiate at the same altar?

* Euseb. Prepar. Evangel. lib. 3, cap. 12, p. 117.

† Pelav. ad Themist. p. 414, Anacharsis, t. 3, p. 582.

‡ The Brethren of the Order may consult, for this purpose, the article Eleusinia, in the 6th vol. of the last edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, and Robertson's History of Ancient Greece, p. 127. See Mackey's Lexicon, pp. 130-133.—Ed.

§ Robertson's Greeks, p. 127. Porphyr. de Abstinencia, lib. 4, p. 353. Julian Orat. 5, p. 173.

|| Encyclopædia Britannica, article Eleusinia.

¶ Lucian in Demonact. t. 2, p. 380.

 Plut. de aud. Poet. t. 2, p. 21. Diog. Laert. lib. 6, § 39.

Thus did the philosophers of antiquity calumniate and despise the mysteries of Eleusis; and in the same manner have some pretended philosophers of our own day defamed the character and questioned the motives of Free Masons.

The similarity of treatment which the mysteries of Ceres and Free Masonry have received, is no small proof of the similarity of their origin and their object. To this conclusion, however, it may be objected that, although the points of resemblance between these secret societies are numerous, yet there were circumstances in the celebration of the Eleusinian mysteries which have no counterpart in the ceremonies of Free Masonry. The sacrifices, hymns, and dances which were necessary in the festival of Ceres, have, indeed, no place in the society of Free Masons. But these points of dissimilarity, instead of weakening, rather strengthen our opinion. It cannot be expected that in the reign of polytheism just sentiments of the Deity should be entertained; and much less that the adherents of Christianity should bend their knees to the gods of the heathens. The primitive worship of the ancients was gradually perverted into the worship of those symbols by which true worship was represented. But when revelation had again disclosed to man correct ideas concerning the Divine Being, the society of Free Masons banished from their mysteries those useless rites which the ancient Brethren of the Order incorporated in their mysteries, and remodelled their ceremonies upon this foundation, that there is but one God, who must be worshipped in spirit and in truth.

The mysteries of Ceres were not confined to the city of Eleusis; they were introduced into Athens about thirteen hundred and fifty-six years before Christ,* and, with a few slight variations, were observed in Phrygia, Cyprus, Crete, and Sicily.†

They had reached even to the capital of France;‡ and it is highly probable that in a short time after they were introduced into Britain and other northern kingdoms. In the reign of the Emperor Adrian§ they were carried into Rome, and were celebrated in that metropolis with the same rites and ceremonies which were performed in the humble village of Eleusis. They had contracted impurities, however, from the length of their duration and the corruption of their abettors; and although the forms of initiation were still symbolical of the original and

* Playfair's Chronology.

† Lucii Apuleii Metamorph. lib. 11, pp. 197, 198.

‡ Praise of Paris, or a Sketch of the French Capitol, 1803, by S. West, F. R. S.

§ A. D. 117. Encyclop. Brit. vol. 6, p. 555. Potter's Antiquities, vol. 1, p. 383.

noble objects of the institution, yet the licentious Romans mistook the shadow for the substance; and while they underwent the rites of the Eleusinian mysteries, they were strangers to the object for which they were framed.

About the beginning of the fifth century, Theodosius the Great prohibited, and almost totally extinguished, the pagan theology in the Roman empire,* and the mysteries of Eleusis suffered in the general devastation.† It is probable, however, that these mysteries were secretly celebrated, in spite of the severe edicts of Theodosius, and that they were partly continued during the dark ages, though stripped of their original purity and splendor: we are certain, at least, that many rites of the pagan religion were performed, under the dissimulated name of convivial meetings, long after the publication of the emperor's edict;‡ and Psellus§ informs us that the mysteries of Ceres subsisted in Athens till the eighth century of the Christian era, and were never totally suppressed.

Having thus considered the origin and decline of the mysteries of Eleusis, and discovered in them numerous and prominent features of resemblance to those of Free Masonry, it is reasonable to infer that the Egyptian mysteries which gave rise to the former had a still nearer affinity to the latter;|| and from this conclusion the opinions which were formerly stated concerning the antiquity of the Order, and the origin of Egyptian knowledge, will receive very considerable confirmation.

THE DIONYSIA: THEIR ORIGIN AND CONNECTION WITH THE MYSTERIES OF CERES.

The Dionysia, or mysteries of Bacchus, were intimately connected with those of Ceres. Herodotus informs us that the solemnities in honor of Dionysius, or Bacchus, were originally instituted in Egypt, and were transported from that country into Greece by one Melampus.¶ But not only did the mysteries of Ceres and Bacchus flow from the same source: the one was in some measure interwoven with the other, and it is almost certain, from what we are now to mention, that those who were initiated into the former

* Gibbon's History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, 8vo, vol. 5, p. 120.

† Zosim. Hist. lib. 4.

‡ Gibbon, vol. 5, p. 110.

§ In his Treatise on the gods which the Greeks worshipped, quoted by Mr. Clinch in the Anthologia Hibernica, for January 1794, p. 36.

|| See article on Egyptian Mysteries, Mackey's Lexicon, pp. 122-128.—Ed.

¶ Lib. 2.

were entitled to be present at the celebration of the latter. The sixth day of the Eleusinian festival was the most brilliant of the whole. It received the appellation of Bacchus, because it was chiefly, if not exclusively, devoted to the worship of that god. His statue, attended by the initiated, and the ministers of the temple, was conducted from Athens to Eleusis with much pomp and solemnity,* and after it had been introduced into the temple of Ceres, it was brought back to Athens with similar ceremonies. The connection between the Eleusinian and Dionysian mysteries is manifest, also, from the common opinion that Ceres was the mother of Bacchus;† and Plutarch assures us that the Egyptian Isis was the same with Ceres, that Osiris was the same with Bacchus, and that the Dionysia of Greece was only another name for the Panylia of Egypt.‡ As Bacchus was the inventor of theatres as well as of dramatical representations, that particular class of Masons who were employed in the erection of these extensive buildings were called the Dionysian artificers,§ and were initiated into the mysteries of their founder and consequently, into those of Eleusis.|| But, from the tendency of the human mind to embrace the ceremonial while it neglects the substantial part of an institution, the Dionysian festival, in the degenerate ages of Greece, was more remarkable for inebriation and licentiousness than for the cultivation of virtue and science; and he who at first was celebrated as the inventor of arts was afterwards worshipped as the god of wine. Those who were desirous of indulging secretly in licentious mirth and unhalloed festivity cloaked their proceedings under the pretence of worshipping Bacchus, and brought disgrace upon those mysteries which were instituted for the promotion of virtue and the improvement of art.

About two hundred years before Christ, an illiterate and licentious priest came from Greece to Tuscany, and instituted the Bacchanalia, or Feast of the Bacchanals.¶ From Tuscany they were imported to Rome; but, the promoters of these midnight orgies having proceeded to the furthest extremity of dissipation and disloyalty, they were abolished throughout all Italy, by a decree of the Senate. It has been foolishly supposed that the Bacchanalia were similar to the Dionysian mysteries, merely

* Anacharsis, tom. 3, p. 531. Plut. in Phoc. tom. i. p. 754. Meurs. in Eleus. Myst. cap. 27.

† Potter, vol. i. p. 393.

‡ De Iside et Osiride. Idée du Gouvernement ancien et moderne de l'Égypte, p. 26, Paris, 1743.

§ Aulus Gellius, lib. xx. c. 4.

¶ Tit. Liv. lib. 39, cap. 8.

|| Vide Potter, vol. i. p. 41.

 Liv. lib. 39, cap. 18.

because they were both dedicated to Bacchus. The Liberalia of Rome was the festival corresponding to the Dionysia of Greece;* and it is probable that this feast was observed throughout the Roman Empire till the abrogation of the Pagan theology, in the reign of Theodosius.

Hitherto we have considered the Dionysian mysteries under an unpropitious aspect; let us now trace them in their progress from Europe to Asia, where they retained their primitive lustre and effectually contributed to the rapid advancement of the fine arts. About a thousand years before Christ,† the inhabitants of Attica, complaining of the narrowness of their territory and the unfruitfulness of its soil, went in quest of more extensive and fertile settlements. They sailed to Asia Minor, drove out the inhabitants, seized upon the most eligible situations, and united them under the name of Ionia, because the greatest number of the refugees were natives of that Grecian province.‡ As the Greeks, prior to the Ionic migration, had made considerable progress in the arts and sciences,§ they carried these along with them into their new territories, and introduced into Ionia the mysteries of Minerva and Dionysius.|| before they were corrupted by the licentiousness of the Athenians. In a short time the Asiatic colonies surpassed the mother-country in prosperity and science. Sculpture in marble, and the Doric and Ionic orders, were the result of their ingenuity.¶

They returned even into Greece, and communicated to their ancestors the inventions of their own country, and instructed them in that style of architecture which has been the admiration of succeeding ages. For these improvements the world is indebted to the Dionysian Artificers, an association of scientific men, who possessed the exclusive privilege of erecting temples, theatres, and other public buildings in Asia Minor. They supplied Ionia, and the surrounding countries as far as Hellespont, with theatrical apparatus, by contract, and erected the magni-

* Vide Universal History, vol. 13, p. 262.

† Playfair says in 1044, Gillies in 1055, and Barthelemy in 1076, B.C.

‡ Herodotus, lib. i. cap. 142. Gillies' Hist. of Greece, 8vo, vol. 1, p. 102.

§ According to the author of Anacharsis' Travels, the arts took their rise in Greece about 1547 B. C.

|| Chandler's Travels in Asia Minor, p. 100, 4to, 1775. The Panathenea and the Dionysian mysteries were instituted about three hundred years before the Ionic migration.

¶ Gillies' Hist. Ant. Greece, vol. 2, p. 162.

 Strabo, lib. 4. Chishull, Antiquitates Asiaticæ, p. 107. Robison's Proofs of Conspiracy, p. 20.

ficent temple at Teos, to Bacchus, the founder of their order.* These artists were very numerous in Asia, and existed under the same appellation in Syria, Persia, and India.† About three hundred years before the birth of Christ, a considerable number of them were incorporated by command of the kings of Pergamus, who assigned to them Teos as a settlement, it being the city of their tutelary god.‡ The members of this association, which was intimately connected with the Dionysian mysteries, were distinguished from the uninitiated inhabitants of Teos by the science which they possessed, and by appropriate words and signs by which they could recognize their Brethren of the Order.§ Like Free Masons, they were divided into Lodges, which were distinguished by different appellations.|| They occasionally held convivial meetings in houses erected and consecrated for this purpose; and each separate association was under the direction of a master and president, or wardens.¶

They held a general meeting once a year, which was solemnized with great pomp and festivity, and at which the Brethren partook of a splendid entertainment, provided by the master, after they had finished the sacrifices to their gods, and especially to their patron, Bacchus. They used particular utensils in their ceremonial observances, some of which were exactly similar to those which are employed by the Fraternity of Free Masons;†† and the more opulent artists were bound to provide for the exigencies of their poorer Brethren.‡‡ The very monuments which were reared by these Masons to the memory of their masters and wardens remain to the present day in the Turkish burying-grounds at Siverhissar and Eraki.§§ The inscriptions upon them express, in strong terms, the gratitude of the Fraternity for their disinterested exertions in behalf of the Order, for their generosity and benevolence to its individual members, for their private virtues as well as for their public conduct.

* Ionian Antiquities, published by the Society of Dilettanti, p. 4. Strabo, lib. 4. Chishull, Antiq. Asiat. p. 139.

† Strabo, p. 471. Ionian Antiquities, p. 4.

‡ Chandler's Travels, p. 100. Chishull, Antiq. Asiat. p. 138. Ionian Antiq. p. 4.

§ Robison's Proofs of a Conspiracy, p. 20.

|| Chishull, p. 139.

¶ See the two decrees of these artists, preserved in Chishull, pp. 138-149.

 Chandler's Travels, p. 103.

†† See the decree of the Attalists, in Chishull,—particularly the passages at the bottom of pp. 141, 142.

‡‡ Chishull, p. 140.

§§ Chandler's Travels, p. 100. These monuments were erected about one hundred and fifty years before Christ. The inscriptions upon them were published by Edmund Chishull, in 1728, from copies taken by Consul Sherard in 1700, and examined in 1716. Ionian Antiq. p. 3.

From some circumstances which are stated in these inscriptions, but particularly from the name of one of the lodges, it is probable that Attalus, King of Pergamus, was a member of the Dionysian Fraternity. Such is the nature of that association of architects who erected those splendid edifices in Ionia whose ruins, even, afford us instruction, while they excite our surprise. If it be possible to prove the identity of any two societies from the coincidence of their external forms, we are authorized to conclude that the Fraternity of the Ionian architects and the Fraternity of Free Masons are the same; and as the former practised the mysteries of Bacchus and Ceres, several of which we have shown to be similar to the mysteries of Masonry, we may safely affirm that in their internal as well as external procedure the Society of Free Masons resembles the Dionysians of Asia Minor.*

FREE MASONRY AT THE BUILDING OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.

The opinion of Free Masons, that their Order existed and flourished at the building of Solomon's temple, is by no means so pregnant with absurdity as some men would wish us to believe. We have already shown, from authentic sources of information, that the mysteries of Ceres and Bacchus were instituted about four hundred years before the reign of Solomon;† and there are strong reasons for believing that even the association of the Dionysian Architects existed before the building of the temple. It was not, indeed, till about three hundred years before the birth of Christ that they were incorporated at Teos, under the King of Pergamus; but it is universally allowed that they arose long before their settlement in Ionia, and, what is more to our present purpose, that they existed in the very land of Judea.‡ It is observed by Dr. Robison§ that this association came from Persia into Syria; and, since we are informed, by Josephus,|| that that species of architecture was used at the erection of the temple, we are authorized to infer not only that the Dionysians existed before the reign of Solomon, but that they assisted this monarch in building that magnificent fabric, which he reared to

* Dr. Robison, who will not be suspected of partiality to Free Masons, ascribes their origin to the Dionysian artists. It is impossible, indeed, for any candid inquirer to call in question their identity.

† According to Playfair's chronology, the temple of Solomon was begun in 1016, and finished in 1008, B. C. The Eleusinian mysteries were introduced into Athens in 1356, a considerable time after their institution.

‡ Robison's Proofs of a Conspiracy, p. 20.

§ Proofs of a Conspiracy, pp. 20, 21.

|| Jewish Antiquities, book 8, chap. 5.

the God of Israel. Nothing, indeed, can be more simple and consistent than the creed of the Fraternity concerning the state of their Order at this period. The vicinity of Jerusalem to Egypt, the connection of Solomon with the royal family of that kingdom,* the progress of the Egyptians in architectural science, their attachment to mysteries and hieroglyphic symbols, and the probability of their being employed by the King of Israel, are additional considerations which corroborate the sentiments of Free Masons, and absolve them from those charges of credulity and pride with which they have been loaded.†

THE ESSENEAN FRATERNITY.

After the completion of the temple and the dispersion of the Craft in other lands, the Order still existed in Judea, but known by a different appellation. The association here alluded to is that of the Essenes, whose origin and sentiments have occasioned much discussion among ecclesiastical historians: they are all of one mind, however, respecting the constitution and observances of this religious Order. When a candidate was proposed for admission, the strictest scrutiny was made into his character.‡ If his life had hitherto been exemplary, and if he appeared capable of curbing his passions and regulating his conduct according to the virtuous though austere maxims of their Order, he was presented, at the expiration of his novitiate, with a white garment, as an emblem of the regularity of his conduct and the purity of his heart.§ A solemn oath was then administered to him, that he would never divulge the mysteries of the Order, that he would make no innovations on the doctrines of the society, and that he would continue in that

* Josephus, Jewish Antiquities, book 8, chap. 2.

† The existence of this Order in Tyre at the time of the building of the temple is universally admitted; and Hiram, the widow's son, to whom Solomon intrusted the superintendence of the workmen, as an inhabitant of Tyre, and as a skilful architect and cunning and curious workman, was doubtless one of its members. Hence we are scarcely claiming too much for our Order when we suppose that the Dionysians were sent by Hiram, King of Tyre, to assist King Solomon in the construction of the house he was about to dedicate to JEHOVAH, and that they communicated to their Jewish fellow-laborers a knowledge of the advantages of their Fraternity, and invited them to a participation in its mysteries and privileges. In this union, however, the apocryphal legend of the Dionysians gave way to the true legend of the Masons, which was unhappily furnished by a melancholy incident that occurred at the time. Mackey's Lexicon, p. 36.

‡ Pictet, Théologie chrétienne, tom. 3, pt. 3, p. 109. Basnage's History of the Jews, book 2, chap. 12, § 24.

§ Pictet, Théolog. chrét. tom. 3, pt. 3, pp. 107-109. Basnage's History of the Jews, book 2, chap. 12, § 24.

honorable course of piety and virtue which he had begun to pursue.* Like Free Masons, they instructed the young members in the knowledge which they derived from their ancestors.†

They admitted no women into their Order.‡ They had particular signs for recognizing each other, which have a strong resemblance to those of Free Masons.§ They had colleges or places of retirement,|| where they resorted to practise their rites and settle the affairs of the society; and, after the performance of these duties, they assembled in a large hall, where an entertainment was provided for them by the president, or master of the college, who allotted a certain quantity of provisions to every individual.¶ They abolished all distinctions of rank; and if preference was ever given, it was given to piety, liberality, and virtue. Treasurers were appointed in every town to supply the wants of indigent strangers. The Essenes pretended to higher degrees of piety and knowledge than the uninitiated vulgar; and, though their pretensions were high, they were never questioned by their enemies.†† Austerity of manners was one of the chief characteristics of the Essenean Fraternities. They frequently assembled, however, in convivial parties, and relaxed for a while the severity of those duties which they were accustomed to perform. This remarkable coincidence between the chief features of the Masonic and Essenean Fraternities can be accounted for only by referring them to the same origin. Were the circumstances of resemblance either few or fanciful, the similarity might have been merely casual. But when the nature, the object, and the external forms of two institutions are precisely the same, the arguments for their identity are something more than presumptive. Concerning the origin of the Essenes there is a great diversity of opinions with both sacred and profane historians. They all agree, however, in representing them as an ancient association originating from particular fraternities which formerly existed in the land of Judea. And although they were patronized by Herod, and respected by all

* Pictet, Théolog. chrét. tom. 3, pt. 3, p. 107. Basnage's History of the Jews, book 2, chap. 12, § 24.

† Philo de Vita Contemplativa, apud Opera, p. 691. Basnage, b. 2, ch. 13, § 8.

‡ Basnage, b. 2, c. 12, § 26. Id. § 22.

§ Philo's Treatise de Vita Contemp. p. 691.

|| Basnage, b. 3, c. 12, § 14. Vide Opera Philonis, p. 679.

¶ Basnage, b. 3, c. 12, § 21.

 Id. 20, 22. Philonis Opera, p. 678.

†† For a more particular account of the Essenes, the reader may consult Dr. Prideaux's Connexions. vol. 3, pp. 453, 475, and Lodge's Josephus, pp. 329, 613-617.—ED.

men for the correctness of their conduct and the innocence of their Order,* yet they suffered severe persecutions from the Romans until their Order was abolished, about the middle of the fifth century,† a period extremely fatal to the venerable institutions of Egypt, of Greece, and of Rome.

THE INSTITUTION OF PYTHAGORAS.

The intimate connection existing between the Pythagorean, Essenean, and Masonic Fraternities has caused the inference to be generally made among Masons, that Pythagoras had the honor of first introducing Free Masonry into Europe. Be this as it may, it is evident that the institution of Pythagoras was derived from that of the Essenes. After this philosopher, in the course of his travels through Egypt, Syria, and Ionia, had been initiated into the mysteries of those enlightened kingdoms, he imported into Europe the sciences of Asia, and offered to the inhabitants of his native soil the important benefits which he himself had received.‡ The offers of the sage having been rejected by his countrymen of Samos,§ he settled at Crotona, in Italy, where more respect was paid to his person and more attention to his precepts.|| Pythagoras, inspired by the animating prospects of success among his people, selected a number of his disciples who seemed best adapted for forwarding the purposes he had in view.¶ He formed these into a fraternity, or separate order of men, whom he instructed in the sciences of the East, and to whom he imparted the mysteries and rites of the Egyptian, Syrian, Essenean, and Ionian associations. Before any one was received into the number of his disciples, a minute and diligent inquiry was made into his temper and character.†† If the issue of this inquiry was favorable to the candidate, he bound himself by a solemn engagement to conceal from the uninitiated the mysteries which he might receive and the sciences in which he might be instructed.‡‡ The doctrines of charity, of universal benevolence, and especially of affection to the Brethren of the Order, were warmly recommended to the

* Philo's Treatise apud Opera, p. 678.

† Basnage, b. 2, chap. 12, §§ 25, 26.

‡ Pythagoras returned from Egypt about 560 B. C.

§ Iamblichus de Vita Pythagoræ, part 1, cap. 5, p. 37.

|| Id. cap. 6, pp. 42, 43.

¶ Gillies' History of Ancient Greece, vol. 2, p. 27.

 Aulus Gellius, book 1, cap. 9. Gillies. vol. 2, p. 27.

†† Iamblichus de Vita Pythagoræ, cap. 17, p. 76. Gillies. vol. 2, p. 27.

‡‡ Iamblichus, cap. 23, p. 104.

young disciples;* and such was the influence which they had upon their minds, that discord seemed to have been banished from Italy,† and the golden age to have again returned. Strangers of every country, of every religion, and of every rank in life were received, if properly qualified, into the Pythagorean association.‡ Like Free Masons, they had particular words and signs, by which they might distinguish each other and correspond at a distance.§ They wore white garments, as an emblem of their innocence.|| They had a particular regard for the East.¶ They advanced from one degree of knowledge to another. They were forbidden to commit to writing their mysteries, which were preserved solely by tradition.†† The Pythagorean symbols and secrets were borrowed from the Egyptians, the Orphic and Eleusinian rites, the Magi, the Iberians, and the Celts.‡‡ They consisted chiefly of the arts and sciences united with theology and ethics, and were communicated to the initiated in ciphers and symbols.§§ To those who were destitute of acute discernment, these hieroglyphic representations seemed pregnant with absurdity; while others of more penetration discovered in them hidden treasures, calculated to inform the understanding and purify the heart.||| An association of this nature, founded upon such principles and fitted for such ends, did not continue long in obscurity. In a short time it extended over the kingdoms of Italy and Sicily, and was diffused even through ancient Greece and the islands of the Ægean Sea.¶¶

But, like other secret societies, it was vilified by weak and wicked men, and the innocent Pythagoreans were often necessitated to sustain the vengeance of the disappointed and enraged; for even the lodges wherein they were assembled were set on fire. But no sufferings or hardships—not even death in its agonizing form—caused them to violate their engagements; nor

* Iamblichus, cap. 8, p. 53; cap. 33, p. 193; cap. 6, p. 43; cap. 23, p. 102. Basnage's History of the Jews, b. 2. cap. 13, § 21. Anthologia Hibernica for March, 1794, p. 181.

† Iamblichus, cap. 7, p. 46.

‡ Gillies, vol. 2, p. 28. Iamblichus, cap. 33, p. 202.

§ Gillies, vol. 2, p. 27. Anthologia Hibernica for March, 1794, p. 181.

|| Basnage, b. 2, chap. 13, § 21. Anthol. Hibern. March, 1794, p. 183.

¶ Basnage, b. 2, chap. 13, § 21.

 Iamblichus, cap. 17, p. 72.

†† Id. cap. 17, p. 72.

‡‡ Warburton's Divine Legation of Moses, book 3, § 3, vol. 2, pp. 132, 133. Iamblichus, cap. 8, p. 139. Gillies, vol. 2, p. 27.

§§ Iamblichus, cap. 8, p. 139. Gillies, ut supra.

||| Iamblichus, cap. 23, p. 104; cap. 32, pp. 191, 192.

¶¶ Gillies, vol. 2, p. 28. Iamblichus, cap. 35, p. 207.

 Iamblichus, p. 208 et seq.

did banishment to distant countries diminish their sympathy or cool their love for each other.

From these observations it is manifest that the Pythagorean and Masonic institutions were similar in their external forms, as well as in the objects which they had in view; and it will not be denied that both have experienced from cotemporaries unmerited reproach. Is it not fair, then, to conclude that Masonry is a continuation of the Pythagorean association, and that the principles which constituted the basis of the Pythagorean school were gathered by Pythagoras himself from the remains of the Eleusinian, Dionysian, and Ionian Fraternities in Egypt, and from that of the Esseneans in Syria and in the land of Judea? There is one objection to the view which we have taken of this subject, which, although it has been slightly noticed, it may be necessary more completely to remove. Although it will be acknowledged by every unbiassed reader that Free Masonry has a wonderful resemblance to the Eleusinian and Dionysian mysteries, the fraternity of Ionian architects, and the Essenean and Pythagorean associations, yet some may be disposed to question the identity of these institutions, because they had different names, and because some usages were observed by one which were neglected by another. But these circumstances of dissimilarity arise from those necessary changes which are superinduced upon every institution by a spirit of innovation, by the caprice of individuals, and by the various revolutions in civilized society. Every alteration or improvement in philosophical systems or ceremonial institutions generally produces a corresponding variation in their name, deduced from the nature of the improvement or from the name of the innovator.

When the mysteries of the Essenes were imported by Pythagoras into Italy, without undergoing many variations, they were then denominated the mysteries of Pythagoras; and in our own day they are called the secrets of Free Masonry, because many of their symbols are derived from the art of building, and because they are believed to have been invented by an association of architects, who were anxious to preserve among themselves the knowledge which they had acquired.* The difference in the ceremonial observances of these institutions may be accounted for upon nearly the same principles. From the ignorance or superior sagacity of those who presided over the ancient fraternities, some ceremonies would be insisted upon more than others, some of less moment would be exalted into consequence, whilst others of greater importance would sink into obscurity. In process of time, therefore, some trifling changes would be effected upon these ceremonies,—some rites abolished and others introduced. The chief difference, however, between the ancient and modern mysteries is in those points which concern religion. But this arises from the great changes which have been produced in religious knowledge. It cannot be supposed that the rites of the Egyptian, Jewish, and Grecian religions should be observed by those who profess only the religion of Christ, or that we should pour out libations to Ceres and Bacchus who acknowledge no heavenly superior but the true and living God.

* Symbols derived from the art of building were also employed by the Pythagoreans for conveying instruction to those who were initiated into their Fraternity. Vide Proclus in Eucl. lib. 11, def. 2, &c.

It may be proper here to take notice of an objection urged by M. Barruel against the opinion that the mysteries of Free Masonry are similar to the mysteries of Egypt and Greece.* From the unfairness with which this writer has stated the sentiments of his opponents on this subject, from his confidence in his own, and from the disingenuity with which he has supported them, many inattentive readers may have been led to adopt his notions, and to form as despicable an idea of the understanding of Masons as he would wish them to form of their characters. He takes it for granted that all who embrace the opinion which we have endeavored to support must necessarily believe that a unity of religious sentiments and moral precepts was maintained in all the ancient mysteries, and that the initiated entertained just notions of the unity of God, while the vulgar were addicted to the grossest polytheism. Upon this gratuitous supposition—which we disavow, because it has no connection with our hypothesis—does M. Barruel found all his declamations against the connection of our Order with the Pythagorean and Eleusinian institutions; and upon this sophism rest all those reproachful epithets which he so lavishly bestows upon us, while representing us the children of sophistry, deism, and pantheism.†

But this writer should have recollected that the son is not accountable for the degeneracy of his parents; and if the ancient mysteries were the nurseries of such dangerous opinions as this writer, in opposition to authentic history, lays to their charge, it is to the glory of their posterity that they have shaken off the yoke and embraced that heavenly light which he says their ancestors affected to despise.

* Memoirs of Jacobinism, vol. 2, pp. 355–360.

† Vide Barruel, vol. 2, p. 357. I do not find in any system of chronology that Christianity existed in the time of Pythagoras or at the establishment of the Eleusinian mysteries.

THE PROGRESS OF FREE MASONRY SINCE THE REIGN OF THEODOSIUS.

Having finished this brief outline of what may properly be denominated the Ancient History of Free Masonry, we will endeavor to trace its progress from the abolition of heathen rites, in the reign of Theodosius, to the present day; and although the friends and enemies of the Order seem to coincide in opinion upon this part of the history, yet the materials are almost as scanty as before, and the incidents equally unconnected. In those ages of ignorance and disorder which succeeded the destruction of the Roman empire, the minds of men were too much debased by superstition and warped by bigotry to enter into associations for promoting mental improvement and mutual benevolence. The spirit which then raged was not a spirit of inquiry.

The motives which then influenced the conduct of men were not those benevolent and correct principles of action which once distinguished their ancestors, and which still distinguish their posterity. Sequestered habits and unsocial dispositions characterized the inhabitants of Europe in this season of mental degeneracy. Science was synonymous with heresy in the view of the Church of Rome, and every scientific and secret association was overawed and persecuted by the rulers of Europe.

But, although the political and intellectual condition of society was unfavorable to the progress of Free Masonry, and although the secret associations of the ancients were dissolved in the fifth century by the command of the Roman emperor, yet there are many reasons for believing that the ancient mysteries were observed in private, long after their prohibition, by those enemies of Christianity who were still attached to the religion of their fathers. Some authors* even inform us that this was actually the case, and that the Grecian rites existed in the eighth century, and were never completely abolished.† These considerations enable us to connect the heathen mysteries with that trading association of architects which appeared during the Dark Ages under the special authority of the See of Rome.

The insatiable desire for external finery and showy ceremonies, which was displayed by the Catholic priests in the exercise of their religion, introduced a corresponding desire for splendid monasteries and magnificent cathedrals. But, as the demand for these buildings was urgent and continually increasing, it was with great difficulty that artificers could be procured, even for the erection of such pious works.

* Gibbon, 8vo, vol. 5, p. 110.

† Vide Anthologia Hibernica for Jan. 1794, p. 36, and pp. 219, 220, supra.

In order to encourage the profession of architecture, the bishops of Rome and the other potentates of Europe conferred on the Fraternity of Free Masons the most important privileges, and allowed them to be governed by laws, customs, and ceremonies peculiar to themselves. The association was composed of men of all nations, of Italian, Greek, French, German, and Flemish artists, who were denominated Free Masons, and who, ranging from one country to another, erected those elegant churches and cathedrals which, though they once gratified the pride and sheltered the rites of a corrupted priesthood, now excite the notice of antiquaries and administer to the grandeur of kingdoms. The government of this association was remarkably regular. Its members lived in a camp of huts, reared beside the building in which they were employed. A surveyor, or master, presided over and directed the whole. Every tenth man was called a warden, and overlooked those who were under his charge; and such artificers as were not members of this Fraternity were prohibited from engaging in those buildings which Free Masons alone had a title to rear.* Wherever the Catholic religion was taught, the meetings of Free Masons were sanctioned and patronized.

It may seem strange, and perhaps inconsistent with what we have already said, that the Fraternity of Free Masons should have been sanctioned, and even protected, by the bishops of Rome. But the Church of Rome, instead of approving of the principles of Free Masonry, only employed them as instruments for gratifying their vanity and satiating their ambition; for afterwards, when Masons were more numerous and when the demand for religious structures was less urgent than before, the bishops of Rome deprived the Fraternity of those very privileges which had been conferred upon them without solicitation, and persecuted with unrelenting rage the very men whom they had voluntarily taken into favor, and who had contributed to the grandeur of their ecclesiastical establishments.

* Wren's Parentalia: or, A History of the Family of Wren, pp. 306, 307. Henry's History of Great Britain, 8vo, vol. 8, p. 273, b. 4, chap. 5, § 1. Robison's Proofs of a Conspiracy, p. 21.

FREE MASONRY INTRODUCED INTO SCOTLAND.

The principles of the Order were probably introduced into Scotland by the travelling Free Masons who built the abbey of Kilwinning, in the bailiwick of Cunningham. This abbey was founded in the year 1140 by Hugh Morville, Constable of Scotland, and dedicated to St. Winning,* where they continued for many years in their primitive simplicity, long after they had been extinguished in the continental kingdoms. In this manner Scotland became the centre from which those principles again issued, to illuminate not only the nations on the continent, but every civilized portion of the habitable world. What those causes were which continued the societies of Free Masons longer in Great Britain than in other countries, it may not, perhaps, be easy to determine; but, as the fact is unquestionably true, it must have arisen either from favorable circumstances in the political state of the country, which did not exist in other governments of Europe, or from the superior policy by which the British Masons eluded the suspicion of their enemies, and the superior prudence with which they maintained the primitive simplicity and respectability of their Order.†

THE AGE OF CHIVALRY.

About the time of the Knights Templar, chivalry had arrived at its highest perfection. It had its existence, indeed, prior to this period; but, as it continued to influence the minds of men long after the destruction of that unhappy Order, it was thought proper to defer its consideration till the present stage of our history. When chivalry made its appearance, the moral and political condition of Europe was in every respect deplorable. The religion of Jesus existed only in name; a degrading superstition had usurped its place and threatened ruin to the reason and the dignity of man; the political rights of the lower orders were sacrificed to the interests of the great; war was carried on with a degree of savage cruelty equalled only by the sanguinary contentions of beasts of prey; no clemency was shown to the vanquished, no humanity to the captive; the female sex were sunk below the natural level; they were doomed to the most laborious occupations, and were deserted and despised by that very sex on whose protection and sympathy they have so natural a claim. To remedy these disorders, a few intelligent and pious men formed an association, whose members vowed to defend the Christian religion, to practise its morals, to protect innocent maidens, orphans, and widows, and to decide judicially the disputes which might arise about their goods or effects. It was from this and similar associations that chivalry probably arose.* But, whatever was its origin, chivalry produced a considerable change in the manners and sentiments of the great. It could not, indeed, eradicate that ignorance and depravity which engendered those awful evils which we have already enumerated. It has, however, softened the ferocity of war. It has restored the fair sex to that honorable rank which they now possess, and which at all times they are entitled to hold. It has inspired those sentiments of generosity, sympathy, and friendship which have already contributed so much to the civilization of the world.

* Vide Statistical Account of Scotland, vol. 11, Parish of Kilwinning. Edinburgh Magazine for April, 1802, p. 243. Mackey's Lexicon, pp. 237-240.

† The mysteries of Free Masonry were preserved and transmitted by the Orders of Knighthood, viz.: the Teutonic Order, the Knights Templar, etc., for a more full account of which the reader is referred to the Manual of the A. A. Scottish Rite, pp. 113, 185-190. Templar's Chart Revised, pp. 29-59.

Such was the origin of chivalry, and such the blessings it imparted. That it was a branch of Free Masonry may be inferred from a variety of considerations, from the consent of those who have made the deepest researches into the one, and who were intimately acquainted with the spirit, rites, and ceremonies of the other. They were both ceremonial institutions. Important precepts were communicated to the members of each for the regulation of their conduct as men and as Brethren of the Order.† The ceremonies of chivalry, like those of Free Masonry, though unintelligible to the vulgar, were always symbolic of important truths.‡ The object of both institutions was the same, and the members bound themselves by solemn vows to promote it with ardor and zeal.§ In chivalry there were also different degrees of honor, through which the youths were obliged to pass before they were invested with the dignity of Knighthood;|| and the Knights, like Free Masons, were formed into fraternities or orders distinguished by different appellations.¶

From these circumstances of resemblance we do not mean to infer that chivalry was Free Masonry under another name: we mean only to show that the two institutions were so intimately connected, that the former took its origin from the latter, and

* Bontainvilliers on the Ancient Parliaments of France, Letter 5, quoted in Brydson's Summary View of Heraldry, pp. 24-26.

† Brydson's Summary View of Heraldry, p. 31.

‡ Id. p. 95.

|| Id. pp. 36, 37.

§ Id. p. 32.

¶ Id. pp. 38, 40.

borrowed from it some of its ceremonial observances, the leading features, and the general outline of its constitution. And within the portals of at least two Orders were preserved intact and conferred upon the worthy the mysteries of Free Masonry. The one institution was adapted to the habits of intelligent artists, and could flourish only in times of civilization and peace; the other was accommodated to the dispositions of a martial age, and could exist only in seasons of ignorance and war. With these observations, indeed, the history of both Fraternities entirely corresponds. In the enlightened ages of Greece and Rome, when chivalry was unknown, Free Masonry flourished under the sanction of government and the patronage of intelligent men. But during the reign of Gothic ignorance and barbarity which followed the destruction of imperial Rome, Free Masonry languished in obscurity, while chivalry succeeded in its place, and proposed to accomplish the same object by different means, which, though more rough and violent, were better suited to the manners of the age. When science and literature revived in Europe and scattered those clouds of ignorance and barbarism with which she had been overshadowed, chivalry decayed along with the manners which gave it birth, while Free Masonry arose with increasing splendor, and advanced with the same pace as civilization and refinement. The connection between chivalry and Free Masonry is excellently exemplified in the Fraternity of Knights Templar. It is well known that this association was an order of chivalry, that the Templars performed its ceremonies and were influenced by its precepts, and that the Knights were initiated into the mysteries, were governed by the maxims, and practised the rites of Free Masonry.* But, although they then existed in a double capacity, it must be evident to all who study the history of the Templars, that their Masonic character chiefly predominated, and that they deduced the name of their institution, and their external observances, from the usages of chivalry, in order to conceal from the Roman Pontiff the primary object of their Order, and to hold their secret meetings free from suspicion and alarm.

Before leaving this subject, it may be interesting to some readers, and necessary for the satisfaction of others, to show in what manner the Knights Templar became depositaries of the Masonic mysteries. We have already seen that almost all the secret associations of the ancients either flourished or originated in Syria and the adjacent countries. It was here that the Dionysian artists and the Essenes arose. From this country also came several members of that travelling association of Masons which appeared in Europe during the Dark Ages;* and we are assured that, notwithstanding the unfavorable condition of that province, there exists at this day on Mount Libanus one of these Syriac fraternities.† As the Order of the Templars, therefore, was originally formed in Syria, and existed there for a considerable time, it would be no improbable supposition that they received their Masonic knowledge from the Lodges in that quarter. But we are, fortunately, in this case not left to conjecture; for we are expressly informed by a foreign author,‡ who was well acquainted with the history and customs of Syria, that the Knights Templar were actually members of the Syriac fraternities.

* See note on page 233, supra.

FREE MASONRY IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Having thus compared Free Masonry with those secret associations which arose during the Dark Ages, let us now direct our attention to its progress in Great Britain after it was extinguished in the other kingdoms of Europe. We have already seen that a travelling fraternity of Free Masons existed in Europe during the Middle Ages, that many special favors were conferred upon them by the Roman See, that they had the exclusive privilege of erecting those magnificent buildings which the pride of the Church of Rome and the misguided zeal of its members had prompted them to rear, and that several Masons travelled into Scotland about the beginning of the twelfth century, and imported into that country the principles and ceremonies of their Order. And we illustrated several causes which preserved this association in Britain after its apparent dissolution on the continent.

That Free Masonry was introduced into Scotland by those architects who built the abbey of Kilwinning, is manifest not only from those authentic documents by which the existence of the Kilwinning Lodge has been traced back to the fifteenth century, but by other collateral arguments which amount almost to a demonstration. In every country where the temporal and spiritual jurisdiction of the Pope was acknowledged there was a continual demand, particularly during the twelfth century, for religious structures, and consequently for operative masons, proportioned to the piety of the inhabitants and the opulence of their ecclesiastical establishments; and there was no kingdom in Europe where the zeal of the inhabitants for popery was more ardent, where the kings and nobles were more liberal to the clergy, and where, in consequence, the Church was more richly endowed, than in Scotland.* The demand, therefore, for elegant cathedrals and ingenious artists must have been proportionally greater than in other countries; and that demand could be supplied only from the travelling associations on the continent. When we consider, in addition to these facts, that this association monopolized the building of religious structures in Christendom, we are authorized to conclude that those numerous and elegant ruins which still adorn the villages of Scotland were erected by foreign Masons who introduced into this island the customs of their Order.† The fraternity in England maintain that St. Alban, the Protomartyr, was the first who brought Masonry to Great Britain,‡ that the Brethren received a charter from King Athelstane, and that his brother Edwin summoned all the Brethren to meet at York, which formed the first Grand Lodge of England.§

* Anthologia Hibernica for April, 1794, p. 280.

† Id. p. 279.

‡ Alder de Drusis Montis Libani, Rom. 1786.

After the establishment of the Kilwinning and York Lodges, the principles of Free Masonry were rapidly diffused throughout both kingdoms, and several Lodges were erected in different parts of the island. As all these derived their authority and existence from the two mother Lodges, they were likewise under their jurisdiction and control; and when any differences arose which were connected with the art of building, they were referred to the general meetings of the Fraternity, which were always held at Kilwinning and York. In this manner did Free Masonry flourish for a while in Great Britain, when it was completely abolished in every other part of the world.

But even here it was doomed to suffer a long and serious decline, and to experience those alternate successions of advancement and decay which mark the history of every human institution; and though during centuries after the importation

* The Church possessed above one-half of the property in the kingdom. Robertson's History of Scotland, vol. 1, pp. 137, 65, 269.

† It is a curious fact that in one of those towns where there is an elegant abbey, which was built in the twelfth century, Mr. A. Lawrie, of Edinburgh, has often heard that it was erected by a company of industrious men, who spoke in a foreign language and lived separately from the townspeople; and stories are still told about their petty quarrels with the inhabitants.

‡ About the end of the third century.

§ A. D. 926. Preston's Illustrations of Masonry, p. 148. Smith's Use and Abuse of Free Masonry, p. 51. Free Mason's Calendar, 1778. Mackey's Lexicon, pp. 168-171.

of Free Masonry into Great Britain the Brethren of the Order held their public assemblies, and were sometimes prohibited from meeting by the interference of the legislature, it can scarcely be said to have attracted general attention till the beginning of the seventeenth century. The causes of this remarkable retardation which the progress of Masonry experienced, it is by no means difficult to discover. In consequence of the important privileges which the Order received from the Church of Rome, many chose the profession of an architect, which, though at all times an honorable employment, was particularly in the highest request during the Middle Ages. On this account the body of operative masons increased to such a degree, and the rage as well as the necessity for religious edifices was so much diminished, that a more than sufficient number of hands could at any time be procured for supplying the demands of the Church and of pious individuals. And, as there was now no scarcity of architects, the very reason which prompted the Church to protect the Fraternity no longer existed: they therefore withdrew from them that patronage and those favors which they had spontaneously proffered, and denied them even the liberty of holding their secret assemblies, the unalienable privilege of every free-born community. But these were not the only causes which produced such a striking change in the conduct of the Church to the Masonic Order. We have already mentioned that the spirit of Free Masonry was hostile to the principles of the Church of Rome.

The intention of the one was to enlighten the mind; the object and policy of the other, to retain it in ignorance. When Free Masonry flourished, the power of the Church must have decayed. The jealousy of the latter, therefore, was aroused; and, as the civil power in England and Scotland was almost always in the hands of ecclesiastics, the Church and the State were both combined against the principles and practice of Free Masonry. Along with these causes, the domestic and bloody wars which convulsed the two kingdoms from the thirteenth to the seventeenth century conspired, in a great degree, to produce that decline of the Fraternity for which we have been attempting to account.

But, notwithstanding these unfavorable circumstances, Free Masonry seems to have flourished and attracted the attention of the public in the reign of Henry VI., who, when a minor, ascended the throne of England in 1422. In the third year of his reign the parliament passed a severe act against the Fraternity, at the instigation of Henry Beaufort, Bishop of Winchester, who was then intrusted with the education of the young king. They enacted that the Masons should no longer hold their chapters and annual assemblies; that those who summoned such chapters and assemblies should be considered as felons; and that those who resorted to them should be fined and imprisoned.* But it would appear that this act was never put in execution; for in the year 1429, about five years after it was framed, a respectable Lodge was held at Canterbury, under the patronage of the archbishop himself.† When King Henry was able to take into his own hands the government of his kingdom, and to form an opinion of his own respecting the use and tendency of the Masonic Fraternity, in order to allow for the rigorous conduct of his parliament, he not only permitted the Order to hold their meetings without molestation, but honored the Lodges with his presence as a Brother. Before he was initiated, however, into the mysteries of the Order, he seems to have examined with scrupulous care the nature of the institution, and to have perused the charges and regulations of the Fraternity as collected from their ancient records.

These facts are contained in a record written in the reign of his successor, Edward IV., and confirmed by a manuscript in King Henry's own handwriting, which is familiar to every person who has studied the history of our Order.‡

While Free Masonry was flourishing in England under the auspices of Henry VI., it was at the same time patronized in the sister kingdom by King James I. By the authority of this monarch, every Grand Master who was chosen by the Brethren, either from nobility or clergy, and approved of by the crown, was entitled to an annual revenue of four pounds Scots from each Master Mason, and likewise to a fee at the initiation of every

* Henry VI. cap. 1, A. D. 1425. See Ruffhead's Statutes. Dr. Plot's Natural History of Staffordshire, chap. 8, p. 318.

† Manuscript Register of William Melart, Prior of Canterbury, p. 28. In this register are mentioned the names of the Masters, Wardens, and other members of the Lodge.

‡ We have hitherto been careful to bring forward no facts upon the sole evidence of the records or the opinions of Free Masons: such evidence, indeed, can never satisfy the minds of the uninitiated public. But when these records contain facts the fabrication of which could be of no service to the Fraternity, they may, in this case, be entitled to credit; or, when facts which do reflect honor upon the Order are confirmed by evidence from another quarter, the authority of the record entitles them to a still greater degree of credit. With respect to the facts mentioned in the text, we have not merely the authority of the record and manuscript alluded to, but we have proof that there was no collusion in the case; for the record is mentioned in the Book of Constitutions by Dr. Anderson, who had neither seen nor heard of the manuscript.

new member. He was empowered to adjust any differences which might arise among the Brethren, and to regulate those affairs connected with the Fraternity which it was improper to bring under the cognizance of the courts of law. The Grand Master, also, appointed Deputies, or Wardens, who resided in the chief towns of Scotland, and managed the concerns of the Order when it was inconvenient to appeal to the Grand Master himself.

In the reign of James II. Free Masonry was by no means neglected. The office of Grand Master was granted by the crown to William St. Clair, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, Baron of Roslin, and founder of the much-admired chapel of Roslin. On account of the attention which this nobleman paid to the interests of the Order, and the rapid propagation of the royal art under his administration, King James II. made the office of Grand Master hereditary to his heirs and successors in the Barony of Roslin, in which family it continued till the institution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. The Barons of Roslin, as hereditary Grand Masters of Scotland, held their principal annual meetings at Kilwinning, the birthplace of Scottish Masonry; while the Lodge of that village granted constitutions and charters of erection to those Brethren of the Order who were anxious that regular Lodges should be formed in different parts of the kingdom. These Lodges all held their charters under the jurisdiction of the Lodge at Kilwinning, and, in token of their respect and submission, joined to their own name that of their mother Lodge, from whom they derived their existence as a corporation.*

During the succeeding reigns of the Scottish monarchs, Free Masonry still flourished, though very little information can be procured respecting the peculiar state of the Fraternity. In the Privy Seal Book of Scotland, however, there is a letter dated at Holyrood House, 25th September, 1590, and granted by King James VI. "to Patrick Copland, of Udaught, for using and exercising the office of Wardanrie over the art and craft of masonrie, over all the boundis of Aberdeen, Banff, and Kincardine, to hold wardan and justice courts within the said boundis, and there to minister justice."† This letter proves beyond dispute that the kings of Scotland nominated the office-bearers of the Order; that these provincial masters, or wardens, as they were then called, administered justice in every dispute which concerned the "art and craft of masonrie;" that Lodges were established in all parts of Scotland, even in those remote and, at that time, uncivilized counties of Aberdeen, Banff, and Kincardine; and it completely overturns the unfounded assertion of Dr. Robison, who maintains* that the celebrated antiquary, Elias Ashmole, who was initiated in 1646, is the only distinct and unequivocal instance of a person being admitted into the Fraternity who was not an architect by profession. The minutes of St. Mary's chapel, which is the oldest Lodge in Edinburgh, extend as far back as the year 1598. It appears from these minutes that Thomas Boswell, Esq., of Auchinleck, was made a Warden of the Lodge in 1600, and that the honorable Robert Moray, Quartermaster-General to the army in Scotland, was created a Master Mason in 1641. These facts are deserving of notice, as they show, in opposition to Dr. Robison, that persons were early admitted into the Order who were not architects by profession.

* Such as Canongate Kilwinning, etc.

† Privy Seal Book of Scotland, p. 61, f. 47.

When James VI. ascended the throne of England, he seems to have neglected his right of nominating the office-bearers of the craft. In Hay's Manuscript, in the Advocates' Library, there are two charters, granted by the Scottish Masons, appointing the Sinclairs of Roslin their hereditary Grand Masters. The first of them is without a date, but is signed by several Masons, who appointed William St. Clair, of Roslin, his heirs and successors, to be their "patrons and judges." The other is in some measure a ratification of the first, and is dated 1630, in which they appoint Sir William St. Clair, of Roslin, his heirs and successors, to be their "patrons, protectors, and overseers in all time coming." In the first of these deeds, which seems to have been written a little after the union of the crowns, it is stated that the want of a protector for some years had engendered many corruptions among the Masons, and had considerably retarded the progress of the craft, and that the appointment of William Sinclair, Esq., was with the advice and consent of William Shaw, Master of Work to His Majesty. After presiding over the Order for many years, William St. Clair went to Ireland, where he continued a considerable time, and, in consequence of his departure, the second charter was granted to his son, Sir William St. Clair, investing him with the same powers which his father enjoyed. It deserves also to be remarked that in both these deeds the appointment of William Sinclair, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, to the office of Grand Master, by James II. of Scotland, is spoken of as a fact well known and universally admitted. These observations will set in a clear point of view what must have hitherto appeared a great inconsistency in the history of Scottish Masonry. In the deed by which William Sinclair, Esq., of Roslin, resigned the office of hereditary Grand Master in 1736, it is stated that his ancestors, William and Sir William St. Clair, of Roslin, were constituted patrons of the Fraternity by the Scottish Masons themselves; while it is well known that the grant of hereditary Grand Master was originally made by James II. of Scotland to their ancestor, William Sinclair, Earl of Orkney and Caithness. But, when we consider that James VI., by not exercising his power, virtually transferred to the craft the right of electing their office-bearers, the inconsistency vanishes; for Mr. Sinclair and his predecessors, as far back as the date of their charters, held their office by the appointment of the Fraternity itself. Lest any of Mr. Sinclair's posterity, however, might after his resignation lay claim to the office of Grand Master, upon the pretence that this office was bequeathed to them by the grant of James II. to the Earl of Caithness and his heirs, he renounces not only the right to the office which he derived from the Brethren, but any right, also, which, as a descendant of the Earl of Caithness, he might claim from the grants of the Scottish monarchs.

* Proofs of a Conspiracy, p. 21.

Notwithstanding those civil commotions which disturbed Great Britain in the seventeenth century, Free Masonry flourished in Scotland under the auspices of the Sinclairs of Roslin. No particular event, however, which is worthy of notice, occurred during that time, or even during the remainder of the century. The annual assemblies of the Fraternity were still held at Kilwinning, and many charters and constitutions were granted by the Lodge of that village for the erection of Lodges in different parts of the kingdom.

In the year 1736, William St. Clair, Esq., of Roslin, who was then Grand Master of Scotland, was under the necessity of disposing of his estate, and, as he had no children of his own, he was anxious that the office of Grand Master should not be vacant at his death. Having, therefore, assembled the Edinburgh and neighboring Lodges, he represented to them the utility that would accrue to the Order by having a gentleman or nobleman of their own choice as Grand Master of Masonry in Scotland, and at the same time intimated his intention to resign into the hands of the Brethren every title to that office which he at present possessed, or which his successors might claim from the grants of the Scottish kings and the kindness of the Fraternity. In consequence of this representation, circular letters were despatched to all the Lodges of Scotland, inviting them to appear, either by themselves or proxies, on next St. Andrew's day, to concur and assist in the election of a Grand Master. When that day arrived, about thirty-two Lodges appeared, by themselves or proxies, and, after receiving the deed of resignation from Wm. Sinclair, Esq., proceeded to the election of another Grand Master,—when, on account of the zeal which he had always shown for the honor and prosperity of the Order, he was unanimously elected to that high office, and proclaimed Grand Master Mason of all Scotland. Thus was the Grand Lodge of Scotland instituted, the future history of which will be resumed in its proper place.

We have already brought down the history of Masonry in England nearly to the end of the fifteenth century. During the whole of the sixteenth and the beginning of the seventeenth century no events occurred which it is necessary to insert in a general history of the Order. The Lodges continued to meet, but seem neither to have attracted the notice nor excited the displeasure of the legislature.

During the civil wars, however, between the king and the Parliament, the Fraternity appears to have been better known; and many were initiated into its mysteries who were equally distinguished by their literary talents and their rank in life. Elias Ashmole informs us that he and Col. Mainwaring were admitted into the Order at Warrington, in October, 1646.* This gentleman was the celebrated antiquary who founded the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford. His attachment to the Fraternity is evident from his diligent inquiries into its origin and history, and his long and frequent attendance upon its meetings.† Charles II., too, was a member of the Fraternity, and frequently honored the Lodges with his presence.‡

From this fact, chiefly, Dr. Robison asserts that Free Masonry was employed by the Royalists for promoting the cause of their sovereign, and that the ritual of the Master's Degree seems to have been formed, or twisted from its original institution, in order to sound the political principles of the candidate.§ The strained and fanciful analogy by which this notion is supported is perhaps one of the most striking instances that could be adduced to show to what puerile arguments the most learned will resort when engaged in the defence of a bad cause.

An opinion of an opposite nature, though equally extravagant,

* Ashmole's Diary, p. 15.

† Proofs of a Conspiracy, p. 22.

† Ashmole's Diary, p. 66.

‡ Ibid. p. 21.

has been maintained by Pivati,* and the author of "Free Masonry Examined." These writers assert that Free Masonry originated in the times of the English Commonwealth, that Oliver Cromwell was its inventor, that the level was the symbol of republican equality, and that the other signs and ceremonies were merely arbitrary and formed for concealing their political designs. That Free Masonry existed before the time of Oliver Cromwell is as capable of demonstration as that Cromwell himself ever existed. It is really entertaining to observe what inconsistent and opposite opinions are formed upon the same subject. According to one writer, Free Masonry was invented and employed by the adherents of the king; according to another, it was devised by the friends of the Parliament: in the opinion of some, it originated among the Jesuits, who used it for the promotion of their spiritual tyranny and superstition; while others maintain that it arose among a number of unprincipled skeptics, who employed it for destroying the spiritual tyranny and superstition of the Jesuits!

INTRODUCTION OF FREE MASONRY INTO THE CONTINENTAL KINGDOMS.

It was about this time, according to Dr. Robison, that Free Masonry was introduced among the continental kingdoms.

After James II. of England had abdicated the throne, and taken refuge in France with several of his adherents, it is probable that they would communicate additional spirit to the French Lodges; but that the English refugees were the first who exported Masonry from Great Britain, or that they employed it for re-establishing the Stuart family on the English throne, it is impossible to prove. Notwithstanding the difficulty, however, of determining the precise period when the principles of Free Masonry were imported into France, it is manifest from the universal consent of the continental Lodges that it was of British origin; and it is more than probable that the French received it from Scotland about the middle of the sixteenth century, during the minority of Queen Mary. It is well known that there was at this time a freer intercourse between Scotland and France than at any other period. Mary, Queen of Scots, was then married to the heir apparent of France; and Mary of Guise, sister to the French king, was at the same time Regent of Scotland. In consequence of this intimate connection between the two kingdoms, French troops were sent to the assistance of the Scots, who, having resided many years in the kingdom, and being habituated to the manners and customs of their allies, would naturally carry along with them into their native country those customs which afford them pleasure; and none, we know, could be more congenial to the taste and dispositions of Frenchmen than the ceremonial observances of Free Masonry. But it is not upon these considerations merely that our opinion depends: it receives ample confirmation from a fact of which Dr. Robison seems to have been totally ignorant. In the year 1645 a particular jurisdiction for Masons, called Maçonnerie, or Masonry, was established in France. All differences which related to the art of building were decided by particular judges, who were called Overseers of the art of Masonry; and several counsellors were appointed for pleading the causes which were referred to their decision. This institution has such a striking resemblance to the Warden courts which existed in Scotland in the sixteenth century, that it must have derived its origin from these. In both of them those causes only were decided which related to Masonry, and overseers were chosen in both for bringing these causes to a decision. But as similar tribunals were held in no other part of the world, and as the Warden courts were first established in Scotland, it is almost certain that the French borrowed from the Scots the idea of their Masonic tribunal, as well as Free Masonry itself at that particular period when there was such a free communication between the two kingdoms. That the French received Free Masonry from Scotland may be presumed also from the singular pre-eminence which was always given by foreigners to Scottish Masonry, and from the degree of Chevalier Maçon Ecossois, which, as a mark of respect to Scotland, the French had added to the three symbolical degrees of Masonry, about the beginning of the eighteenth century. Had Free Masonry not been introduced into France till after the Revolution in 1688, as Dr. Robison affirms, it is wonderful how such a fact should have been forgotten; for it was unknown, about thirty or forty years afterward, at what period the French received it from Great Britain; and if the exiled family had employed Free Masonry for overturning the Hanoverian succession, it was still more strange that such a circumstance should be unknown in a country where concealment was certainly unnecessary. When any new custom is introduced into a nation, the time of its introduction may be remembered for seventy or eighty years by one individual, without being committed to writing; and, though it be not of sufficient importance, tradition will preserve it from oblivion for a much greater length of time. If Free Masonry, therefore, never existed in France till after the Revolution in 1688, is it not absurd to suppose that the period when such a singular institution was established should be utterly forgotten at the distance of thirty or forty years from its establishment, though during that time it was never persecuted by the French government?

* Pivati, art. Liberi Muratori auvero Frances Macons Venezia, quoted by Mr. Clinch.

But at whatever period, and from whatever source, Free Masonry was introduced into France, it assumed there a very remarkable form. The attachment of that people to innovation and external finery produced the most unwarrantable alterations upon the principles and ceremonies of the Order. A number of new degrees were created; the office-bearers of the craft were arrayed in the most splendid and costly attire, and the Lodges were transformed into lecturing-rooms, where the wiser Brethren supported the most extravagant opinions, discussed the most abstruse questions in theology and political economy, and broached opinions which were certainly hostile to true religion and sound government. In other countries of the continent similar innovations prevailed in a greater or less degree; while the British Lodges preserved the principles of the craft in their primitive simplicity and excellence. Such dangerous innovations have not the smallest connection with the principles of Free Masonry. They are unnatural excrescences, formed by a warm imagination, and fostered by the interference of designing men. Those who reprehend Free Masonry, therefore, for the changes which it underwent in the hands of foreigners, may throw equal blame upon religion, because it has been a cloak for licentiousness and hypocrisy; or upon science, because it has been converted into an instrument of iniquity. The changes of which we have been treating arose altogether from the political condition of the countries in which they were made. In France and the other kingdoms of Europe where popery was the ecclesiastical establishment, or where absolute power was in the hands of their monarchs, the most slavish restraints were imposed upon the conduct and conversation of the people. None durst utter his own sentiments, or converse upon such metaphysical subjects as militated against the theology and politics of the times. Under such restraints speculating men, in particular, were highly dissatisfied; those powers which Heaven had bestowed, and on the exercise of which their happiness depended, were fettered by human laws, and that liberty of speech restrained which tyranny had no right to control. For these reasons the Lodges were frequented by men of philosophical habits, who eagerly embraced an opportunity of declaring their sentiments, and discussing the favorite objects of their study, without dreading the threats of government or the tortures of the Inquisition. In this view, the Lodges may be compared to little republics, enjoying the rational liberties of human nature in the midst of extensive empires enslaved by despotism and superstition. In the course of time, however, that liberty was abused, and doctrines were propagated in the French and German Lodges which it is the duty and policy of every government to discover and suppress. But those corruptions had no necessary connection with Free Masonry; they arose wholly from the political condition of the continental kingdoms. In Great Britain, where the Order has had an existence much longer than in any other country, its history is stained by no glaring corruption or offensive innovations: more attention was paid to the intrinsic value of the Order than to its external observances; and the British Lodges had a greater resemblance to charitable meetings than to pompous and splendid assemblies. Blessed with a free constitution, Britons are under no temptation to introduce into the Lodges religious and political discussions. The liberty of the press enables them to give the widest circulation to their opinions, however new or extravagant; and they are liable to no punishment by publicly attacking the established religion of their country. The British Lodges, therefore, have retained their primitive purity; they have been employed in no sinister cause; they have harbored in their bosoms neither traitors nor atheists.

EXTENSION OF FREE MASONRY IN ENGLAND FROM THE BEGINNING OF THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

While the French were busily engaged in the decoration of their Lodges, and in the invention of new degrees and trifling ceremonies, the Masons in England were more wisely employed in extending the boundaries of the royal art. About the beginning of the eighteenth century, during the reign of Queen Anne, Free Masonry seems to have rapidly declined in the south of England. Four Lodges only existed in the south, and few hopes could be entertained of a revival while the seat of the Grand Lodge was at such a distance as the city of York. Under such circumstances, the four Lodges met in 1717; and, in order to give vigor to their declining cause and advance the interest of the Fraternity in the south, they elected themselves into a Grand Lodge, and chose Anthony Sayer, Esq., for their first Grand Master.

Thus was instituted the Grand Lodge of England. The motive which suggested this institution was certainly laudable and useful; but every person must be aware that the four Lodges were guilty of a considerable impropriety in omitting to request the countenance of the Grand Lodge of York. Notwithstanding this negligence, the greatest harmony subsisted between the two Grand Lodges till 1734; and, under the auspices of both, the Order flourished in every part of the kingdom, but particularly in the south of England, where it had formerly been in such a languishing condition. In the year 1734, however, the Grand Lodge of England, having granted constitutions to Lodges within the district of York without the consent of their Grand Lodge, incurred to such a degree the displeasure of the York Masons that the friendly intercourse which had formerly subsisted between them was completely broken off, and the prosperity of the one was always viewed by the other with a suspicious eye. In 1739, also, some trifling innovations upon the ancient customs of the Order having been imprudently sanctioned by the Grand Lodge of England, several of the old London Masons were highly offended, and, after seceding from the Grand Lodge, and pretending to act under the York constitution, they gave themselves the appellation of Ancient Masons, while they attached to those connected with the Grand Lodge the odious appellation of Moderns, who, in their opinion, never existed till the year 1717. The Ancient Masons, after their secession, continued to hold their meetings without acknowledging a superior till the year 1772, when they chose for their Grand Master the Duke of Athol, who was then Grand Master elect for Scotland. Since that period both the Grand Lodges of England have attained to a high degree of prosperity; but such has been their mutual antipathy that the members of the one have had no correspondence or communion with those of the other until a very recent date. The Irish and Scottish Masons, however, who seemed rather to have favored the Ancients, held communion with both the Grand Lodges, and were allowed to be present at all their meetings. It is much to be regretted that such respectable bodies as the two Grand Lodges of England should have retarded the progress of Masonry by their mutual jealousies and dissensions. Schisms in societies generally arise from misconduct on both sides,—which was certainly the case in the schism under consideration.

The Moderns undoubtedly departed from their usual caution and propriety of conduct by authorizing the slightest innovations upon the ceremonies of an ancient institution. But the Ancients were guilty of a greater impropriety by being the active promoters of the schism, and still more by holding up the Moderns to the ridicule of the public. These errors, however, have been mutually acknowledged and buried in oblivion, and the breach repaired which so long separated the two Grand Lodges, and which the Scottish and Irish Masons have always regarded with pity and indignation.

After the institution of the Grand Lodge of England in 1717, Free Masonry assumed a bolder and a more independent aspect. It was no longer confined to the British Isles, or to the capital of France, but was destined to irradiate every portion of the globe; and while the Grand Lodges of Scotland and England contemplated with pleasure the propagation of the royal art, their diligence was fully rewarded by the gratitude and liberality of the foreign Lodges for the gift they received.

In the year 1729, Free Masonry was introduced into the East Indies, and in a short time after a provincial Grand Master was appointed to superintend the Lodges in that quarter. In 1730, the Grand Lodge of Ireland was instituted, Lodges were erected in different parts of America, and a provincial deputation was granted to Monsieur Thuanus for the circle of Lower Saxony. A patent was sent from England in 1731, to erect a lodge at the Hague, in which Francis Stephen, Duke of Lorraine, and subsequently Emperor of Germany, was initiated into the Order. Provincial Grand Masters were appointed for Russia and Andalusia in Spain. In 1736, Lodges were erected at Cape Coast in Africa, and at Geneva; and provincial deputations were granted for Upper Saxony and the American Islands. In 1738, a Lodge was instituted at Brunswick under the patronage of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, in which the late King of Prussia was initiated when Prince Royal. His majesty was so pleased with the maxims and ceremonies of the Order that he ever afterwards was its most zealous partisan, and requested even that a Lodge should be established in the capital of his own dominions. In this Lodge many of the German princes were initiated, who afterwards filled the office of Grand Master with much honor to themselves and advantage to the Fraternity.

PERSECUTION OF FREE MASONS.

But while Free Masonry flourished in these parts of the world, and in many other places which it would be tedious to enumerate, it was doomed to undergo a variety of persecutions from the unfounded jealousies of a few despotic rulers and the deep-rooted superstition of a few Catholic priests. These persecutions took their rise in Holland, in the year 1735. The States-General were alarmed at the rapid increase of Free Masons, who held their meetings in every town under their government; and they resolved to discountenance their proceedings. In consequence of this determination, an edict was issued by the government, stating that although they had discovered nothing in the practices of the Fraternity either injurious to the interests of the republic or contrary to the character of good citizens, yet, in order to prevent any bad consequences which might ensue from such associations, they deemed it prudent to abolish the assemblies of Free Masons. Notwithstanding this prohibition, a respectable Lodge having continued to meet privately at Amsterdam, intelligence was communicated to the magistrates, who arrested all the members and brought them before a court of justice. Before this tribunal, in presence of all the magistrates of the city, the Masters and Wardens boldly defended themselves, and declared upon oath that they were loyal subjects, faithful to their religion and zealous for the interests of their country; that Free Masonry was an institution venerable in itself and useful to society; and that, although they could not reveal the secrets and ceremonies of their Order, they would assure them that they were contrary to the laws neither of God nor of man, and that they would willingly admit into their Order any individual in whom the magistrates could confide, and from whom they might receive such information as would establish the truth of their statements. In consequence of these declarations, the Brethren were dismissed, and the town secretary was requested to become a member of the Fraternity. After initiation, he returned to the court of justice, and gave such a favorable account of the principles and practice of the society that all the magistrates became Brethren of the Order and zealous patrons of Free Masonry.

After Free Masonry had thus honorably triumphed over her persecutors in Holland, she had to contend in France with prejudices equally inveterate, though less impregnable. Although many persons of distinction defended the Fraternity, and expostulated with the court on the impropriety of severe measures, their assemblies were abolished in 1737, under the common pretence that beneath their inviolable secrets they might cover some dreadful design hostile to religion and dangerous to the kingdom. But when those derelictions of party spirit and private malice had subsided, the prohibition of government was gradually forgotten, and the Fraternity in France recovered their former prosperity and splendor. In Germany the tranquillity of the Order was interrupted by the malice of ignorant women. A few German ladies who were anxious to discover the secrets of Free Masonry, having been baffled in all their attempts upon the fickleness of their husbands and the fondness of their admirers, converted their curiosity into revenge, and attempted to influence the mind of the Empress Maria Theresa against the Lodges in Vienna. Their attempt was in some measure successful, as they persuaded her to issue an order for surprising all the Masons in the city when assembled in their Lodges. This plan, however, was frustrated by the intervention of the Emperor, Joseph I., who, being himself a Mason, declared his readiness to answer for their conduct, and showed the ladies and their friends that the charges which they had brought against the Order were false and defamatory.

When the flame of persecution is once kindled, its devastations are seldom confined to the country where it originated. The example of one nation is urged as an excuse for the conduct of another; and, like the storm on the sandy desert, its effects are ruinous in proportion to its progress. In Holland and France the hostility of the legislature against Free Masonry was in a short time disarmed. But when the flame reached the ecclesiastical states of Italy it broke out in ungovernable rage; its effects were more cruel and its direction more lengthened. In the year 1738, a formidable bull was issued from the Vatican, not only against Free Masons themselves, but against all those who promoted or favored their cause, who gave them the smallest countenance or advice, or who were in any respect connected with a set of men who, in the opinion of his Holiness, were enemies to the tranquillity of the state and hostile to the spiritual interests of souls. Notwithstanding the severity of this bull, which threatened excommunication to every offender, no particular charge, either of a moral or political nature, was brought against a single individual of the Order. It was merely stated that the Fraternity had spread far and wide and were daily increasing, that they admitted men of every religion into their society, and that they bound their members by oath to preserve with inviolable secrecy the mysteries of their Order. These circumstances, indeed, were sufficient grounds for exciting the Church of Rome to oppose a system so contrary to their contracted views of religion and government.

This bull was followed by an edict, dated 14th January, 1739, containing sentiments equally bigoted and enactments equally severe. The servitude of the galleys, the tortures of the rack, and a fine of a thousand crowns in gold, were threatened to persons of every description who were daring enough to breathe the infectious air of a Masonic assembly.

About a month after this edict was issued, a decree was emitted by his Holiness, condemning a French book, entitled "An Apology for the Society of Free Masons," and ordering it to be burnt, by the ministers of justice, in one of the most frequented streets of Rome.

In consequence of these enactments at Rome, the Catholic clergymen of Holland attempted, in the year 1740, to enforce obedience to the commands of their superiors. It was customary among the divines of that country to examine the religious qualifications of those who requested a certificate to receive the holy sacrament. Taking advantage of their spiritual power, they concluded their examination of the candidates by asking if they were Free Masons. If they were, the certificates were refused, and they were expelled forever from the communion-table. After the priests had exerted their authority in the expulsion of several respectable characters, the subject excited general attention; and when many pamphlets had been published in defence of both parties, the States-General interfered, and prohibited the clergy from asking questions that were unconnected with the religious character of the individual.

ASSOCIATION OF THE MOPSES.

Several Free Masons of distinction in Germany, though steady friends to the Church of Rome, disapproved highly of its proceedings against the Fraternity, and were anxious to preserve the Order from that ruin which it was fast approaching. In order to effect this, they instituted a new association, formed upon the same principles and proposing to itself the same object as Free Masonry. The members were denominated Mopses, from the German word mops, denoting a young mastiff, which was deemed a proper emblem of the mutual fidelity and attachment of the Brethren. But, that they might preserve the mysteries of Free Masonry from those members of the new association who were not Masons, they rejected from their ritual all the Masonic ceremonies, words, and signs; and, that they might escape the vengeance of the Roman Church, they softened all those parts of the institution which had a tendency to give offence to narrow and superstitious minds.

Instead, therefore, of binding the members by an oath, they took their word of honor that they would never reveal the mysteries and ceremonies of the Order.

It is well known to every person acquainted with the history of Masonry, that the exclusion of ladies has been a fertile source of calumny against the Brethren. It was supposed that actions were performed in the Lodges inconsistent with the delicacy of the female sex, and, as in the case of the Templars, that the most unnatural crimes were perpetrated and authorized. In order to avoid this ground of defamation, the Mopses admitted women into their Lodges, who were allowed to hold any office except that of Grand Mopse. The association of the Mopses was patronized by some of the most illustrious characters in Germany; the Lodges consisted of the most respectable members of the community, and several of the princes of the empire were Grand Masters of their Order. The admission of Protestants or heretics into the Masonic Lodges in Catholic countries gave great offence to the Church of Rome, and was one of the causes which prompted the severity of their proceedings. Aware of this circumstance, the Mopses resolved to initiate none into their mysteries but the steady friends of the Catholic communion. This, however, was merely a pretence to deceive his Holiness; for they admitted into their Order, without the smallest scruple, men of every religion and every country.

As the bulls of the Pope had no authority in Switzerland, Free Masonry flourished in that republic until the year 1745, when a most unaccountable edict was issued by the Council of Berne, prohibiting, under the severest penalties, the assemblies of Free Masons. No reasons were assigned by the Council for their conduct; and no charges were advanced against any of the Brethren. The Council of Berne were terrified by secret association; and on this account, forsooth, they must persecute and destroy. More intolerant in their bigotry and more cruel in their conduct than the Church of Rome, they were not satisfied with abolishing all the Lodges in the republic. Every Free Mason in Switzerland was compelled to accuse himself before the magistrates of the district, to renounce his obligations of secrecy, and swear, in the presence of the great God of heaven, to trample upon those engagements which before the same Being he had vowed to revere. Such an instance of tyranny over the minds and consciences of men is a remarkable fact in the history of a republic where the Reformed religion had been protected from its infancy, and where Free Masons had always conducted themselves with exemplary propriety.* The severe treatment, therefore, which they experienced must have originated in some private quarrel between the members of the Council and the Fraternity. It could be prompted by no patriotic motive, by no regard for the welfare of the state or the safety of individuals. Notwithstanding these persecutions, Free Masonry was afterwards revived in Switzerland and practised without molestation, though with less eagerness and success than in the other states of Europe.

* Free Masonry seems to have been directly imported into Switzerland

During these various persecutions, of which we have only given a general account, many individuals of the Fraternity underwent the severest treatment; and in their relief that practical benevolence was strongly exemplified which Free Masons are taught to exhibit to the distressed Brethren of their Order. In 1739, after Pope Eugenius had issued his bull against Free Masonry, one Crudeli, a Free Mason, was imprisoned at Florence by the Inquisition, and suffered the most unmerited cruelties for maintaining the innocence of the association. When the Grand Lodge of England was informed of his miserable situation, they, recollecting that a Brother, whatever his rank and however distant his abode, had a claim upon their sympathy, transmitted to him twenty pounds, for procuring the necessaries of life, and exerted every nerve for effecting his liberation. A Brother confined at St. Sebastians in Spain experienced from the English Masons the same attention and generosity. At Lisbon, in the year 1742, James Mouton, a French artist, and John Coustos, a native of Berne in Switzerland, were imprisoned by the Inquisition. They were accused of belonging to a society by which sacrilege and sodomy were allowed, and were requested to discover to their persecutors the true design of Free Masonry. After defending the institution as useful and innocent, they were extended on the rack, in expectation that a confession would be extorted by its torments. Force, however, had no control over a mind conscious of integrity. Coustos, having maintained his innocence after having been thrice stretched on this instrument of agony, was at last sentenced to walk in the procession of the Auto-da-Fe, and to serve in the galleys for four years. At the instance of the English Masons, however, George II. authorized the British minister at Lisbon to demand, in his Majesty's name, from the King of Portugal, the liberation of Coustos; which was granted in 1744, after a dreadful confinement of two years and a half.

from Great Britain; as a deputation was granted by the Grand Lodge of England for erecting a Lodge at Lausanne, in the canton of Berne, in the year 1739. It could not, therefore, in so short a time be corrupted by those offensive innovations which were superinduced upon it in France.

From such scenes of inhuman barbarity it is pleasing to turn to examples of real benevolence and generosity. As the consideration of these is always gratifying to a humane mind, they certainly deserve to be recorded in a History of Free Masonry. In the year 1748, Monsieur Preverot, a gentleman in the navy, and brother of the celebrated M. Preverot, doctor of medicine in the faculty at Paris, was unfortunately shipwrecked on an island whose viceroy was a Free Mason. Along with his ship M. Preverot had lost all his money and effects. In this destitute condition he presented himself to the viceroy, and related his misfortune in a manner which completely proved that he was no impostor. The viceroy made the Masonic signs, which being instantly returned by the Frenchman, they recognized and embraced each other as Brethren of the same Order. M. Preverot was conducted to the house of the viceroy, who furnished him with all the comforts of life, till a ship bound for France touched at the island. Before his departure in this vessel, the viceroy loaded him with presents, and gave him as much money as was necessary for carrying him into his native country.

In the battle of Dettingen, in 1743, one of the king's guards, having his horse killed under him, was so entangled among its limbs that he was unable to extricate himself. Whilst in this situation, an English dragoon galloped up to him, and, with his uplifted sabre, was about to deprive him of life. The French soldier having with much difficulty made the signs of Masonry, the dragoon recognized him as a Brother, and not only saved his life, but released him from his dangerous situation. He was made a prisoner by the English dragoon, who was well aware that the ties of Masonry cannot dissolve those of patriotism.

A Scottish gentleman in the Prussian service was taken prisoner at the battle of Lutzen, and was conveyed to Prague along with four hundred of his companions-in-arms. As soon as it was known that he was a Mason, he was released from confinement, invited to the tables of the most distinguished citizens, and requested to consider himself as a Free Mason, and not as a prisoner of war. About three months after the engagement, an exchange of prisoners took place, and the Scottish officer was presented by the Fraternity with a purse of sixty ducats, to defray the expenses of his journey.*

The persecutions which Free Masonry encountered were hitherto confined to the continent. The tide of religious frenzy, however, now rolled to the shores of Britain. In the year 1745. the Associate Synod, consisting of a few bigoted dissenters, attempted to disturb the peace of the Fraternity. In the beginning of this year an overture was laid before the Synod of Sterling, stating that many improper things were performed at the initiation of Masons, and requesting that the Synod would consider whether or not the members of that Order were entitled to partake in the ordinances of religion. The Synod transmitted this overture to all the kirk-sessions under their inspection, allowing them to act as they thought proper. In 1755, however, they directed all their kirk-sessions to examine every person who was suspected to be a Free Mason, and to demand an explicit answer to any question which they might ask concerning the administration of the Masonic oath. In the course of these examinations, the kirk-sessions discovered (for they seem hitherto to have been ignorant of it) that men who were not architects were admitted into the Order. On this account the Synod, in the year 1757, thought it necessary to adopt stricter measures. They drew up a list of foolish questions, which they appointed every kirk-session to put to those under their charge. These questions related to what they thought were the ceremonies of Free Masonry; and those who refused to answer them were debarred from religious ordinances. The unrighteous oppressions created by these acts outstrip, in many respects, the tyranny and cruelty inflicted on the Fraternity by the Church of Rome and the severe edicts of the Council of Berne, and should be held up to the ridicule and execration of the public.*

* Several striking and curious instances of the extensive benevolence of Free Masons may be seen in Smith's Use and Abuse of Free Masonry, pp. 374, 377, 378, &c.

Notwithstanding these persecutions, Free Masonry flourished and was in the highest estimation in Great Britain, France, Germany, and several other kingdoms of Europe. In 1743, it was exported from Scotland to Denmark; and the Lodge which was then instituted is now the Grand Lodge of that kingdom. The same prosperity attended the first Lodge in Sweden, which was erected at Stockholm in 1754, under a patent from Scotland. In 1765, a splendid apartment was erected at Marseilles for the accommodation of the Brethren. It was adorned with the finest paintings, representing the most interesting scenes which occur in the history of the Old and New Testaments, and calculated to remind the spectator of his various duties as a man, a subject, and a Christian. The representation of Joseph and his brethren, of the Samaritan and the Jew, of Lot and the angels, reminded every Brother of the beauty of charity and forgiveness which are the first principles of Masonry, as they are the first duties of man. The picture of Peter and the apostles paying tribute to Cæsar recalled to every individual Brother his obligations as a citizen to revere and support the constituted authorities; and the representation of Job in his misfortunes lifting up his hands to Heaven, enforced upon the minds of the most inconsiderate the important reflection that fortitude and resignation to the will of God are the duties of all in distress, and that the Divine blessing will ultimately attend those who bear without murmuring the chastisements of their Father, and preserve, amidst the severest trials, their patience and virtue unimpaired.* These observations, apparently trifling, are important in one respect, as they show that the French Lodges had not at that time fostered in their bosom the votaries of skepticism and disloyalty. The other Lodges in France were at this time numerous and magnificent. The Grand Lodge contained about twenty offices, which were all filled by noblemen of the highest rank. They had provincial Grand Masters similar to those of Scotland, and the insignia and jewels of all the office-bearers were as rich and splendid as the Lodge-rooms in which they held their assemblies.

* It is remarkable that the Grand Lodge of Scotland did not deign to take the smallest notice of these proceedings.

FREE MASONRY IN PRUSSIA.

In the year 1749, Free Masonry was introduced into Bohemia, and eagerly embraced by many distinguished persons in the city of Prague. They call themselves Scottish Masons, and are remarkably inquisitive into the character of those whom they admit into the Order.

In the year 1767, a Lodge under an English constitution was established in Berlin, under the appellation of Le Royale York, in honor of the Duke of York, who was initiated into the Fraternity by that Lodge while he was travelling on the continent. In 1768, the Free Masons of Germany were authorized to hold their assemblies by a charter granted by the King of Prussia, the Elector of Saxony, and the Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, and subsequently ratified by the Emperor of Germany. By another charter from England in 1789, a Lodge was erected at Brunswick, which, in 1770, became the Grand Lodge of that part of Germany. Its Grand Master was Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, who, a short time after, received a provincial deputation from England for superintending the Lodges in Lower Saxony. In the year 1773, a compact was entered into between the Grand Lodge of England, under Lord Petre, and the Grand Lodge of Berlin, under the Prince of Hesse-Darmstadt, which had a few years before been duly erected into a Grand Lodge, at a meeting of the Masters and Wardens of twelve regular Lodges. In this compact it was stipulated that the Grand Lodge of Berlin should be acknowledged as the Grand Lodge of the whole Empire of Germany, including the dominions of his Prussian Majesty; that it should exercise no Masonic power out of the Empire of Germany, or within the district under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Brunswick; that the Electorate of Hanover should be free to both Grand Lodges in Germany; and that the contracting parties should unite in their efforts to counteract all innovations in Masonry, and particularly the proceedings of a set of Masons in Berlin, who, under the denomination of Stricte Observantz, had annihilated their former constitutions, erected themselves into a Grand Lodge, and sanctioned very improper innovations upon the principles and ceremonies of the Fraternity. This compact was highly approved of by the King of Prussia, who immediately erected the Grand Lodge of Berlin into a corporate body. In 1777, the King of Prussia was Protector of all the Masons in Germany. Ferdinand, Duke of Brunswick and Lunenburg, was Grand Master of all the United Lodges in Germany; and the other offices were filled by able and illustrious princes of the empire. Under the auspices of those distinguished personages, within the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Berlin and Brunswick, Free Masonry has flourished to the present day.

* For a further account of this building, see Smith's Use and Abuse of Free Masonry, p. 165.

In Germany, Denmark, and Sweden, charity schools were erected by the Lodges for educating the children of Free Masons whose poverty debarred them from this advantage. In the one which was formed at Brunswick they were instructed even in classical learning and various branches of mathematics, and were regularly examined by the Duke of Brunswick, who rewarded the most deserving with valuable gifts. At Eisenach, several endowed seminaries of this kind were established; and in a short time after their institution they had sent into the world seven hundred children instructed in the principles of science and the doctrines of Christianity. In 1771, an establishment of a similar kind was formed at Cassel, in which the children were maintained and educated until they could provide for themselves. In 1773, the united Lodges of Dresden, Leipsic, and Gorlitz erected at Frederickstadt a seminary of learning for children of every denomination in the Electorate of Saxony. The Masonic subscriptions were so numerous that the funds of the institution were sufficient for its maintenance; and in the space of five years above eleven hundred children received a liberal education. In the same year, an extensive workhouse was erected at Prague, in which the children were not only initiated into the first principles of learning, but into those branches of the useful and fine arts which might qualify them for commercial and agricultural situations. It deserves to be remarked that the founders of these institutions, amid their anxiety for the public prosperity, never neglected the spiritual interests of their children. They saw that early piety is the foundation of all that is useful and honorable in life, and that without this speculative knowledge and practical skill are of little avail. How inconsistent are such facts with those fabulous accounts of the German Lodges which have been published in England by a few party men!

Whilst Masonry thus flourished in Germany, the Brethren in Portugal were exposed to the persecution of its bigoted rulers. Major François d'Alincourt, a Frenchman, and Don Oyres de Ornellas Pracao, a Portuguese nobleman, were in 1766 imprisoned by the governor of Madeira for their attachment to the Order. Being afterwards carried to Lisbon, they were there confined for fourteen months, until they were released by the general intercession of the Brethren in that city. In the following year several Free Masons were confined at Naples, but were soon liberated by the intercession of foreign princes and the eloquence of an Italian advocate.

Notwithstanding the persecutions which the Fraternity experienced in Holland, Free Masonry was flourishing in that republic in 1779. At that time a compact was entered into between the Grand Lodge of Holland, held at the Hague, and that of England. In this compact it was stipulated that the Grand Lodge of Holland should be permitted to erect Lodges within her territories, both at home and abroad, and to appoint provincial Grand Masters over each district. In consequence of this accession of power to the Grand Lodge of Holland, Free Masonry flourished under its auspices in the Dutch settlements in India, Africa, and South America.

RISE OF THE ILLUMINATI IN GERMANY.

Let us now direct our attention to a new secret association, which about this time arose in Germany, and which was imagined to have taken its rise from Free Masonry, and to have planned a diabolical conspiracy against every religious and political establishment in Europe. In 1775, the order of the Illuminati was founded by Doctor Adam Weishaupt, Professor of Canon Law in the University of Ingolstadt.

In this association speculative opinions were inculcated which were certainly inconsistent with the principles of religion and social order. But that Illuminism originated from Free Masonry, that it brought about the French Revolution, or ever planned any dangerous conspiracy, are circumstances for which the shadow of a proof has not as yet been adduced. Dr. Robison, indeed, expressly affirms that Illuminism "took its rise among the Free Masons, but was totally different from Free Masonry;" and, by a deceitful anachronism, he presents Weishaupt as an active member in the German Lodges before he acquaints his readers that he was the founder of the Illuminati, for no other reason than to make them believe that Weishaupt was a Free Mason before he planned his new association.* Now, the case was very different indeed. Barruel himself asserts "that it is a fact demonstrated beyond a doubt that Weishaupt became a Mason in 1777 only, and that two years before this, when he established Illuminism, he was totally unacquainted with the mysteries of Free Masonry."†

Here, then, is an important fact, which strikes at the root of all Dr. Robison's reasoning against Free Masonry. Barruel maintains that Weishaupt was not a Mason till two years after the organization of his new institution; and Dr. Robison allows that Illuminism was totally different from Free Masonry. The two institutions were totally unconnected; for the members of the one were never admitted into the Lodges of the other without being regularly initiated into the mysteries of both. Upon these simple facts we would arrest the attention of every reader, and those in particular who have been swindled out of their senses by the exertions of corrupt men.

After Weishaupt had organized his institution, he exerted every nerve to disseminate its principles. For this purpose he became a Free Mason in 1777; and, by means of emissaries, he attempted to circulate his opinions among the French and German Lodges. In these attempts, indeed, he was sometimes successful. But it should be recollected by those who on this account calumniate Free Masonry, that the same objection may be urged against Christianity because impostors have sometimes gained proselytes and perverted the wavering minds of the multitude. These doctrines, however, were not merely circulated by Weishaupt in a few of the Lodges and taught at the assemblies of the Illuminati: they were published to the world in the most fascinating form by the French Encyclopædists, and inculcated with all the eloquence with which some of the most celebrated philosophers on the continent could adorn them. It can only be said of Weishaupt, therefore, that he was not such a determined infidel as Voltaire and his associates. Such is a short and, it is hoped, an impartial view of the origin and progress of the Illuminati.

* Proofs of a Conspiracy, Introduction, pp. 15, 101.

† Memoirs of Jacobinism, part 3, Preliminary Observations, p. xv. and p. 12.

After the French Revolution, which, as Mounier has well shown, arose from other causes than those to which Barruel and Robison ascribe it, the plans of these parties were not carried on in Germany so systematically as before; and, notwithstanding the fabrications with which the Jesuitical Barruel has calumniated the Lodges in that country, Free Masonry prevails to this day, respected by the most virtuous and scientific members of the community, and patronized by the most distinguished princes of the empire.

In Germany, the qualifications for a Free Mason are great and numerous. No person is initiated into the Order without the consent of every member of the Lodge; and it frequently happens that a German is excluded by a single dissenting voice. On this account, the Lodges of that country are filled with persons of the first rank and respectability, and every thing is conducted with the greatest decorum and solemnity. As Masonry is there held in the highest estimation, a foreigner can obtain an easier introduction to the nobility and literati of Germany in a Masonic Lodge than in any other place, and will never repent of having been initiated into the Order of his native country.*

After the publication of the works of Barruel and Robison, the progress of Free Masonry in Great Britain was retarded by an act of Parliament in 1799, for the suppression of seditious societies, in which the Fraternity were virtually prohibited from erecting new Lodges in the kingdom. But this act was not prompted by the calumnies of these writers. It became necessary from the political condition of the kingdom; and the exceptions which it contained in favor of Free Masons are a complete proof that government never credited the reports of these alarmists, but placed the most implicit confidence in the loyalty and prudence of British Masons.

* Dr. Render's Tour through Germany, Introduction to vol. 1, pp. 30, 33. Dr. Render maintains that Free Masonry has greatly improved the manners and dispositions of the Germans. See vol. 2, p. 200, note.

HISTORY OF THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

We have already brought down the history of Scottish Masonry to the institution of the Grand Lodge in 1736, and given a short account of the different circumstances which occasioned and accompanied that important event. We shall now, in as concise a manner as is consistent with the present design, continue the history of the doings of this body down to the nineteenth century. No more will be attempted than to notice so many of their acts as will show to the Craft the pure principles, the excellent order, and the truly Masonic practices which have uniformly characterized the Grand Lodge of Scotland,—the body to whom the Fraternity in America owe much of their origin, order, and success, and for whose future prosperity all true Masons will devoutly pray.

In 1736, the Grand Lodge of Scotland was instituted, in consequences of which almost all the Scottish Lodges applied for and received new charter sand, by a ready and voluntary renunciation of their former rights, evinced the steadiness of their attachment to the Grand Lodge and their unfeigned acknowledgments of its jurisdiction and power.

This year the Grand Lodge ordered that a fee should be exacted of every person who had been initiated into the Order since its organization, or who might afterwards be initiated, and that this fee should make a part of the charity-fund for the relief of the indigent and distressed Brethren, and other benevolent purposes. The same year, the opulent inhabitants of Edinburgh and its environs having resolved to erect an infirmary or hospital for the reception of poor patients, the Grand Lodge proposed to pay, out of their own funds, a certain number of operative masons to assist in building the infirmary, provided that the managers of that institution would allot a particular apartment in the hospital for the reception of a few infirm Masons who should be recommended by the Grand Master.

The Grand Lodge decreed, also, that the annual election should no longer be celebrated on the 24th of June, the birthday of St. John the Baptist, as had been the usage from time immemorial, and that in future, for many important reasons, it should be held on the 30th of November, the birthday of St. Andrew.

On the 2d of August, 1738, the foundation-stone of the New Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, patronized by the Grand Lodge, was laid in due and ample form.

On the 30th of November, 1738, it was reported to the Grand Lodge, by George Drummond, Esq., that the directors of the Royal Infirmary, out of gratitude to the Society of Free Masons for their countenance and aid in building that edifice, had unanimously agreed that preference should always be given to distressed and infirm Free Masons in one of the galleries of the hospital.

From the institution of the Grand Lodge, the principles of the Craft had been so rapidly propagated through every part of the kingdom that it was found necessary this year to appoint Provincial Grand Masters over particular districts, who were employed to hold general meetings, and to take cognizance of every thing relating to Masonry within the bounds of their district.

In the year 1739, the son of an operative mason in Edinburgh, having been left at his father's death in the most friendless and indigent condition, was recommended to the patronage of the Grand Lodge. With a readiness which enhanced the value of the action, they agreed to take him under their own charge, to bind him to an operative mason for eight years, for the freedom of St. Mary's Chapel, and during that time to furnish him with clothes and other necessities. It was agreed, also, if any similar applications were made, the same action should be performed every three years.

During the year 1740, it was proposed and unanimously agreed that a correspondence should be opened between the Grand Lodges of Scotland and England, and that the assistance of the latter in building the Royal Infirmary should be particularly requested.

In the year 1747, the Grand Lodge empowered Alexander Drummond, Esq., Provincial Grand Master of the west of Scotland, who had taken up his residence at Alexandretta in Turkey, and erected several Masonic Lodges in that country, to constitute Lodges in any part of Europe or Asia bordering on the Mediterranean Sea, to superintend the same, or any others already erected in those parts of the world, and to transmit an account of his proceedings to the Grand Lodge.

During the year 1749, the funds of the Grand Lodge were much diminished by numerous donations to indigent Brethren.

In the year 1752, a message was sent to the Grand Lodge, informing them that the foundation-stone of the Royal Exchange was to be laid on the 13th of September, and that a splendid procession of the Grand Lodge, attended by the other Lodges in and about Edinburgh, would take place on that occasion. Accordingly, a plan of the procession was seasonably transmitted to the Brethren by the Grand Master, which was approved and unanimously adopted; and on the day appointed, this ceremony was celebrated in due and ample form.

In the year 1753, the Grand Lodge of Scotland was petitioned by the Scottish Lodge in Copenhagen, requesting a charter of confirmation, and also the liberty of electing a Grand Master, with full power to erect new Lodges in any part of the kingdom. This petition was not answered in the fullest extent; but it was resolved to grant a patent of constitution and erection in the usual form, and a provincial commission to a qualified person, empowering him to erect new Lodges in the kingdoms of Denmark and Norway, and to superintend those which were already erected, provided that this Provincial Grand Master should be always subject to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and that the Lodges which he constituted should recognize and acknowledge her as their superior.

After the election of the office-bearers, in the year 1751, the Brethren, to the number of four hundred, walked in procession from Mary's Chapel to the High School, accompanied with bands of music, and directed by the light of torches. This is the first instance of a procession by torch-light that occurs in the records of this Grand Lodge.

In the year 1755, it was represented to the Grand Lodge that the interests of Masonry would be greatly promoted by the division of Scotland into districts and the appointment of Provincial Grand Masters over each district. This suggestion being taken into consideration, it was resolved to nominate a number of respectable gentlemen who were qualified for the discharge of that important office.

In compliance with the request of the Lodge of Canongate and Leith, the Grand Lodge this year appointed Mr. John M'Clure, Grand Chaplain, to consecrate a new room which was fitted up for Masonic meetings. This ceremony was performed in the presence of the Grand Master and other officers of the Grand Lodge.

In the year 1756, a provincial commission was granted to Colonel John Young, who had been for many years Deputy Grand Master for Scotland, over all the Lodges in America and the West Indies. A patent of erection was also granted for a Lodge at Boston, in New England.

In the year 1757, a charter of constitution was granted to a Lodge at Fredericksburg, Virginia.

In the year 1758, the committee of charity resolved to expend ten guineas in the purchase of clothes and other necessities for the French prisoners confined in the Castle of Edinburgh, giving preference to those who were Brethren of the Order, without neglecting the necessities of such as were uninitiated. This year Mr. John M'Clure was installed Chaplain to the Grand Lodge, and was advanced to the proper rank and precedence in the Grand Lodge.

1759.—This year several Brethren who were Scottish Masons, having instituted a Lodge at Charleston, South Carolina, transmitted five guineas to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, for the use of their poor. Grateful for this unexpected instance of benevolence, the Grand Lodge ordered a charter to be instantly made out and transmitted to them by the first opportunity.

In the year 1761, two French prisoners in Edinburgh Castle who were Free Masons were allowed four guineas from the Grand Lodge.

On the 21st of October, 1763, the Grand Lodge, agreeably to request from the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Edinburgh, met and proceeded to lay the corner-stone of the North Bridge. The same year a Military Lodge was erected in Holland, under the name of the Union Lodge. The Grand Lodge of Scotland granted the constitution, at the request of the chief officers in General Marjoribanks's regiment, in the service of the States-General of the United Provinces.

1764.—In the course of this year two guineas were transmitted to the charity fund by St. John's Lodge in Virginia. Thus we see, in more instances than one, that the wide Atlantic, even, cannot separate the hearts of the Brethren.

During the year 1767, the practice of granting diplomas was introduced into the Grand Lodge.

In the course of the year 1771, the foundation-stone of the Cowgate Episcopal Chapel was laid with the usual ceremonies by His Excellency, Lieutenant-General Oughton, Grand Master-Mason of Scotland, attended by several gentlemen of distinction.

Nov. 30, 1772, the Grand Lodge of Scotland received a communication from the Grand Lodge of England, requesting that a mutual correspondence might be maintained between them, —which request was cordially complied with on the part of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

1775.—Some difference having arisen in the course of this year between the two Grand Lodges of England, those who denominated themselves the Ancients submitted the case to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, who, from motives of delicacy, declined to intermeddle in the affair.

On the 24th of June, 1776, the foundation-stone of the High-School was laid, with great solemnity, by Sir William Forbes, Bart., Grand Master of Scotland, in presence of the Lord Provost and Magistrates, the Principal and Professors of the University, the Rector, Masters, and Scholars of the High-School, and the Masters, Officers, and Brethren of all the Lodges of Free Masons in the city and neighborhood, besides a large concourse of spectators. No ceremony in the city for many years had yielded such heartfelt satisfaction to the inhabitants. The importance of the objects, the dignity of the procession, the number of Brethren, and, above all, the charming exhibition of above three hundred and fifty fine boys, afforded a most animating spectacle.

On the 24th of January, 1778, William Sinclair, Esq., of Roslin, died, at the age of seventy-eight. In consequence of the loss of this amiable man and zealous Mason, the Grand Master ordered a Funeral Lodge to be held on the 14th of February. Above four hundred of the Brethren, dressed in deep mourning, having assembled on that occasion, Sir William Forbes, Bart., as Grand Master, delivered the funeral oration.

1778.—It is remarkable that at this time the Duke of Athol was Grand Master both in Scotland and England.

1781.—Many new Lodges were instituted this year, and much money was distributed among the poor.

In the year 1783, a charter for a Lodge at St. Petersburg, under the name of the Imperial Scottish Lodge of St. Petersburg, was granted upon petition of several Scottish Masons who had been commissioned by the Empress of the Russias to settle in her capital.

During the year 1784, the Grand Lodge granted a confirmation of the Pythagorean Lodge at Antigua.

On the 1st of August, 1785, the foundation-stone of the South Bridge was laid, with great solemnity, by the Right Honorable Lord Haddo, Grand Master of Scotland.

During this same year, a charter of confirmation was granted to the Union Lodge in the island of St. Christopher; and a correspondence was opened between the Grand Lodges of Scotland and Berlin; also, immediate relief was granted to a distressed Turk, who, upon examination, was found to be a Brother of the Order.

In the course of the year 1786, a charter was granted to a French Lodge at Aix in Provence, under the title of La Douce Harmonie.

1787.—This year a charter was granted to a number of Brethren to hold a Lodge at Rouen, in France, under the title of Ardente Amitié, and another for the city of Marseilles, under the name of the Faithful Friend. Lewis Clavel, Master of the Scottish Lodge at Rouen in Normandy, was appointed Provincial Grand Master over all the Lodges in France which held under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

In the year 1788, it was agreed that gentlemen of the clergy should pay no fees for being initiated into the Fraternity.

In 1799, a new Lodge, under the title of the Mount Olive Lodge, was instituted at St. Christopher, under a patent from Scotland.

During the year 1791, a provincial deputation was granted for the Leeward Caribbee Islands.

1795.—This year the Grand Lodge of Scotland addressed his Royal Majesty on the subject of his escaping from the hands of an assassin, congratulating him, and expressing their sense of the Divine goodness in delivering him from the murderous designs of the most wicked of men.

In the course of the year 1796, a correspondence was opened with the Grand Lodge of Ireland.

In the year 1799, the Parliament of England passed several acts for the more effectual suppression of societies established for seditious and treasonable purposes; and although provisions were made in these acts favorable to all those societies which could prove themselves truly Masonic, yet they operated to the embarrassment of many Lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Scotland; and although the Grand Lodge was conscious that those acts were the result of unfounded jealousies and in a degree oppressive, yet they immediately acquiesced in all the proscriptions of Parliament, and exerted themselves to carry those acts into full effect with the greatest possible expedition: thus at once evincing their loyalty and their readiness to submit to the most rigid scrutiny which government deemed it necessary to institute.

1800.—A charter was this year granted to the officers of the 51st regiment, stationed in the island of Ceylon, to hold a Lodge, under the denomination of the Orange Lodge.

On the 14th of May, 1801, the foundation-stone of the Wet

Docks at Leith was laid by the Grand Master, in due and ample form, in the presence of about twelve hundred Brethren and a splendid concourse of citizens.

UNION BETWEEN THE GRAND LODGES OF SCOTLAND AND ENGLAND.

In the general history of Free Masonry we have already given an account of the schism which took place in the Grand Lodge of England by the secession of a number of men who, calling themselves Ancient Masons, invidiously bestowed upon the Grand Lodge the appellation of Moderns. These Ancient Masons, who certainly merit blame as the active promoters of the schism, remained without acknowledging a superior, or being acknowledged an independent body, from the year 1739 to the year 1772, when they chose for their Grand Master, in connection with the Grand Lodge of York, his grace the Duke of Athol, who was then Grand Master elect for Scotland, and from that time they were acknowledged as a component part of the Grand Lodge of York.

From this circumstance, more than from any predilection on the part of the Grand Lodge of Scotland for the Ancient Masons, a friendly intercourse has always subsisted between the two Grand Lodges; but as the Scottish Masons, from their union with the Ancients,—that is, the York Masons and those of London who seceded from the Grand Lodge of England,—imbibed the same prejudices against the Grand Lodge of England, under the Prince of Wales and Lord Moira,—arising merely from some trifling innovations in ceremonial observances which the Grand Lodge of England had inconsiderately authorized,—they never cherished that mutual friendship which, by the principles of Free Masonry, they were bound to preserve. Such was the relative condition of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and that of England under the Prince of Wales, when the Earl of Moira appeared before the Grand Lodge of Scotland, at the celebration of the festival of St. Andrew, A.D. 1803.

At this meeting an opportunity was offered for the discussion of this subject, and the Earl of Moira, in an impressive and eloquent speech, related at considerable length the conduct of the Grand Lodge of England to the Ancient Masons. He stated that the hearts and arms of the Grand Lodge had ever been open for the reception of their seceding Brethren, who had obstinately refused to acknowledge their faults and return to the bosom of their mother-Lodge; and that, although the Grand Lodge of England differed in a few trifling observances from that of Scotland, they had ever entertained for Scottish Masons that affection and regard which it is the object of Free Masonry to cherish, and the duty of Free Masons to feel. His Lordship's speech was received by the Brethren with reiterated applause,—the most unequivocal mark of their approbation of its sentiments.

From this period we may date the origin of the union between the Grand Lodge of Scotland and that of England, and which was finally consummated in the year 1813, under the Grand-Mastership of the Duke of Sussex.

FREE MASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

In the year 1729, the Duke of Norfolk, Grand Master, constituted and appointed R. W. Daniel Cox Provincial Grand Master for New Jersey.

In 1733, Lord Viscount Montacute, Grand Master of England, granted a charter to the St. John's Grand Lodge at Boston, Massachusetts, in which R. W. Henry Price was designated Grand Master for North America, with full power for forming a Grand Lodge and constituting subordinate Lodges.

In the same year, this Grand Lodge granted a charter to St. John's Lodge at Boston, and in the following year granted a charter for a Lodge in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Of the latter, Benjamin Franklin was the first Master.

About the same time, Lord Aberdour, Grand Master of Scotland, granted a charter to St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 82, at Boston.

In 1769, the Massachusetts Grand Lodge—the descendant of the Grand Lodge of Scotland—was regularly constituted and established.

Much feeling having arisen among the Fraternity in consequence of having two Grand Lodges in the same jurisdiction, on the 19th of June, A.D. 1792, the Massachusetts Grand Lodge and the St. John's Grand Lodge were happily united.

In 1735, Free Masonry was introduced into South Carolina, and in 1754, the Marquis of Carnarvon, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England, issued his warrant for constituting a Provincial Grand Lodge in that province, in which Chief-Justice Leigh was designated Provincial Grand Master.

In 1787, a Grand Lodge of Ancient York Masons was also established at Charleston; and in 1817, these two grand bodies were united under the title of the "Grand Lodge of Ancient Free Masons."

In 1764, the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania was constituted under a warrant issued by the Grand Lodge of England.

In 1771, the Grand Lodge of North Carolina was constituted.

1778.—Grand Lodge of Virginia established, and in 1781, the Grand Lodge of New York was regularly constituted.

Shortly after the close of the Revolutionary War the several Grand Lodges of the United States threw off their allegiance to the Grand Lodges of Scotland and England, and became independent State organizations, and were soon after recognized by the parent bodies, and fraternal relations established with them and the Masonic bodies of continental Europe.

Until the year 1797, no Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons was organized in America. Previously to this period a competent number of Companions of that degree, possessed of sufficient abilities, under the sanction of a Master's Warrant, proceeded to exercise the rights and privileges of Royal Arch Chapters whenever they deemed it expedient. This unrestrained mode of proceeding was subject to many inconveniences and productive of many irregularities. Sensible of the existence of these things, a convention of delegates from several Chapters in the Northern States assembled at Masons' Hall, in Boston, on the 24th of October, 1797, to deliberate upon the propriety and expediency of forming and establishing a Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, for the government and regulation of the several Chapters within the said States.

On the fourth Wednesday in January, 1798, the delegates met at Hartford, in Connecticut, and, after several days' deliberation upon the subject, they formed and adopted a constitution for the government of Royal Arch Chapters; and having elected and installed their Grand Officers, the Grand Chapter became completely organized.

The long-desired and necessary authority for correcting abuses and regulating the concerns of Royal Arch Masonry being thus happily established, the Order soon became flourishing and respectable. The second meeting of the General Grand Chapter took place on the 9th of January, 1806, at Middletown, Conn. (septennial). The casualties of war having prevented the septennial meeting which was to have been holden in 1812, after the return of peace the General Grand Chapter was convened in New York City, on the 6th of June, 1816.

The Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Massachusetts was formed in 1798; that of Rhode Island, in 1798; of Connecticut, in 1798; of New York, in 1798; of Vermont, in 1806; of South Carolina, in 1812; of Ohio, in 1816; of Kentucky, in 1816; of New Hampshire, in 1819. The remaining Grand Chapters came in after this time.

After the Grand Lodges of the several States had declared themselves free and independent, and the General Grand Chapter was formed and organized in 1798, it was deemed advisable to adopt a regular and uniform mode of Lecturing and Work for the whole; and in order to accomplish this great desideratum, the expert workmen from various parts of the country met together. The work was completed and adopted fully by the year 1810. Taking the "Ancient York Rite" for a standard, they selected from the "Scottish Rite" those things which approximated to the former, and out of the two systems formed a complete set of Lectures, which are, beautiful in themselves, and have been preserved entire to the present time.

The General Grand Encampment of the United States of America was formed and established on the 21st of June, 1816, at New York City, and was composed of the following Grand Encampments:—

Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Louisiana, and Pennsylvania.

The Grand Encampment of Pennsylvania was first formed on the 12th day of May, 1797, and was composed of four Encampments.

The Grand Encampment of Massachusetts and Rhode Island was formed on the 6th day of May, 1805, and was composed of five Encampments, viz.:—

Encampment of K. T.	-	-	Boston.
"	"	-	Newburyport.
Council of K. R. C.	-	-	Portland.
St. John's Encampment,	-	-	Providence.
Encampment of K. T.	-	-	Newport.

The Grand Encampment of the State of New York was formed June 18, 1814, and was composed of the following Encampments:—

Old Encampment,	-	-	New York City.
Jerusalem Encampment,	-	-	"
Columbian	"	-	"
Temple	"	-	Albany.
Montgomery	"	-	Stillwater.

The Lectures and Work of the Encampment were under the same efficient supervision and arrangement as in the Lodges and Chapters. There are now Grand Encampments in almost every State of the Union.

A LIST OF GRAND LODGES AND GRAND CHAPTERS,

THEIR ANNUAL PLACE OF MEETING, WITH THE NUMBER OF SUBORDINATE LODGES AND CHAPTERS.

MAINE.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Portland.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Portsmouth.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ Concord.

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 66. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Masonic Temple, Boston.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 23.

RHODE ISLAND.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Providence.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 21. Number of Subordinate Chapters,

CONNECTICUT.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held alternately at New Haven and Hartford.

Grand Chapter—Annual Convocation held alternately at New Haven and Hartford.

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 64. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 27.

VERMONT.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Montpelier.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 52. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 13.

NEW YORK.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held in the city of New York.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 453. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 174.

NEW JERSEY.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Trenton.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 52. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 12.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Philadelphia.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 328. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

DELAWARE.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Wilmington.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

MARYLAND.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Baltimore.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 106. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 20.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Washington.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 11. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

(Under the Grand Chapter of Maryland.)

VIRGINIA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Richmond.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 180. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 50.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Raleigh.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 000. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Charleston.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 91. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 22.

GEORGIA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Macon.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 230. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 45.

FLORIDA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Tallahassee.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 45. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 15.

ALABAMA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Tuscaloosa.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 230. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 72.

LOUISIANA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at New Orleans.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 156. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 25.

MISSISSIPPI.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Natchez.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 229. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 63.

ARKANSAS.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Little Rock.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 128. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 25.

MISSOURI.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at St. Louis.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 31.

TENNESSEE.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Nashville.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 270. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 43.

KENTUCKY.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Lexington.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 350. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 82.

INDIANA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Indianapolis.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 252. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 47.

ILLINOIS.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Jacksonville.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 422. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 61.

OHIO.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Columbus.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 339. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 87.

MICHIGAN.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Detroit.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 107. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 27.

WISCONSIN.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Madison.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 117. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 22.

IOWA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Iowa City.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 102. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 28.

TEXAS.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Washington.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 65.

CALIFORNIA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Sacramento.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 144. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 34.

OREGON.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at Salem.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 24. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 00.

MINNESOTA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at St. Paul.

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 28. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 6.

CANADA.

Grand Lodge—Annual Communication held at

Grand Chapter— “ Convocation “ “

Number of Subordinate Lodges, 00. Number of Subordinate Chapters, 25.

MASONIC SONGS,
ANTHEMS, AND ODES.

24

277

MASONIC SONGS.

ENTERED APPRENTICE'S SONG.

Just straight from his home, See yon candidate come, Pre-

Just straight from his home, See yon candidate come, Prepared for the time and oc - casion; Of all that can harm, We

pared for the time and oc - casion; Of all that can harm, We

His eyes cannot search
 Out the way of his march,
Nor yet where his steps he must place on :
 When him we receive,
 He cannot perceive
How he came to be made a Free Mason.

Then he'll danger defy,
 And on Heaven rely
For strength to support the occasion ;
 With the blessing of prayer
 He banishes fear,
And undaunted is made a Free Mason.

When he makes his demand,
 By the master's command,
To know if he's fit for the station,
 Around he is brought,
 Ere he get what he sought
From a free and an accepted Mason.

When girded with care,
 By the help of the square,
The emblem of truth and of reason,
 In form he is placed,
 While to him are rehearsed
The mysteries of a Free Mason ;

Then full in his sight
 Doth shine the grand light,
To illumine the works which we trace on ;
 And now, as his due,
 He's clothed in full view
With the badge of an accepted Mason.

Now hark ! we enlarge
On the duties and charge,
Where his conduct and walk he must place on :
Then our rites we'll fulfil,
And show our good will
To a free and an accepted Mason.

FELLOW CRAFT'S SONG.

Andante.

When earth's foun - da - tion first was laid By the Al - migh - ty Artist's hand, 'Twas then our perfect, our perfect laws were made, Establish'd by his strict command.

CHORUS.

Hail! mys - te - rious, Hail, glo - rious Ma - son - ry,
Hail! mys - te - rious, Hail, glo - rious Ma - son - ry,
Hail! mys - te - rious, Hail, glo - rious Ma - son - ry,
Hail! mys - te - rious, Hail, glo - rious Ma - son - ry,

That makes us ev - er great and free.
That makes us ev - er great and free.
That makes us ev - er great and free.

In vain mankind for shelter sought,
In vain from place to place did roam,
Until from Heaven, from Heaven he was taught
To plan, to build, to fix his home.

Illustrious hence we date our art,
And now in beauteous piles appear,
We shall to endless, to endless time impart
How worthy and how great we are.

Nor we less famed for every tie
By which the human thought is bound;
Love, truth, and friendship, and friendship socially,
Join all our hearts and hands around.

Our actions still by Virtue blest,
And to our precepts ever true,
The world admiring, admiring shall request
To learn, and our bright paths pursue.

MASTER'S SONG.

Andante.

BY A BROTHER.

1. In har - mo - ny the so - cial band Are met a-round the fount of light, To spend beneath the

Mas-ter's hand, In de-cent joy, the fes - tive night:

Let each in truth and ho - nor bright Be present at the se - cret hall, And on his heart in si-lence write The sa-cred Word that binds us all.

Beneath the blue and starry zone
 Whose arch high swelling girds the pole,
 The Master on his orient throne
 Unfolds to view the mystic roll;
 At once the pure fraternal soul
 Bends to the sign with sacred awe,
 And reads upon the letter'd scroll,
 In words of light, the unutter'd law.

Let us our hearts and hands entwine
 And form one perfect wreath of love,
 Then, kneeling at the voice divine
 That spake to mortals from above,
 Put on the meekness of the dove,
 And the white robes of charity,
 And in unerring wisdom prove
 Our brethren with the single eye.

Be there no darkling scowl of hate
 Upon the calm unruffled brow,
 But each in innocence elate
 To Virtue's brightness only bow:
 Blest guardian of all pleasures! Thou
 Be ever at our Master's side,
 And mark with radiant finger how Thy words can be our only guide.

By thee conducted, we ascend
 The steps that lead alone to Heaven,
 And where the mounting arches end
 To each the sign of worth is given;
 Then mantled by the shades of even
 We meet beneath the unclouded sky,
 And bind the links no power hath riven,
 In which we swear to live and die.

Let us these favored hours employ,
 These moments of the social night,
 To sing the silver song of joy,
 And make the chain of union bright.
 So may we even here unite
 To spend the hours in mercy given,
 Led by the tokens which invite Alone to happiness and Heaven.

MASTER'S SONG.

BY BROTHER T. S. WEBB.

SOLO. Moderato.

I sing the Mason's glo - ry, Whose pry-ing mind doth burn, Un - to com-plete per - fec - tion, Our mys - te - ries to learn; Not those who vi - sit

Lod - ges To eat and drink their fill, Not those who at our meetings Hear lectures 'gainst their will,

DUETT. Mezza Voce.

But on-ly those whose pleasure At ev'-ry lodge can be T'improve themselves by lectures In glorious Masonry.

TRIO. CHORUS.

f
Hail! glorious Mason-ry! Hail! glorious Mason - ry!

T'improve themselves by lectures In glorious Mason - ry.

The faithful worthy brother,
Whose heart can feel for grief,
Whose bosom with compassion
Steps forth to its relief;

Whose soul is ever ready,
Around him to diffuse
The principles of Masons,
And guard them from abuse;

CHORUS.

These are thy sons, whose pleasure,
At every lodge, will be
T'improve themselves by lectures
In glorious Masonry.
Hail! glorious Masonry!

King Solomon, our patron,
Transmitted this command:—
"The faithful and praiseworthy
True light must understand;
And my descendants, also,
Who're seated in the East,
Have not fulfill'd their duty
Till light has reach'd the West."

CHORUS.

Therefore our highest pleasure,
At every lodge, should be

T'improve ourselves by lectures
In glorious Masonry.
Hail! glorious Masonry!

The duty and the station
Of master in the chair
Obliges him to summon
Each brother to prepare,
That all may be enabled,
By slow though sure degrees,
To answer in rotation,
With honor and with ease.

CHORUS.

Such are thy sons, whose pleasure,
At every lodge, will be
T'improve themselves by lectures
In glorious Masonry.
Hail! glorious Masonry!

THE MASON'S ADIEU.

WORDS BY BURNS.

A - dieu, a heart-warm, fond a - dieu, Ye bro-thers of our mys-tic tie, Ye favor'd and en--

Oft have I met your social band,
To spend a cheerful, festive night,
Oft, honor'd with supreme command,
Presiding o'er the sons of light;

And by that hieroglyphic bright,
Which none but craftsmen ever saw,
Strong mem'ry on my heart shall write
Those happy scenes when far awa'.

May freedom, harmony, and love
Cement you in the grand design,
Beneath th' Omniscient Eye above,
The glorious Architect divine:
That you may keep th'unerring line,
Still guided by the plummet's law,
Till order bright completely shine,
Shall be my prayer when far
awa'.

And you, farewell, whose merits claim
Justly that highest badge to wear:
May Heaven bless your noble name,
To Masonry and friendship dear:

My last request permit me, then :
When yearly you're assembled a',
One round—I ask it with a tear—
To him, your friend that's far
awa'.

And you, kind-hearted sisters fair,
I sing farewell to all your charms:
Th'impression of your pleasing air
With rapture oft my bosom warms.

Alas! the social winter's night
No more returns while breath I draw,
Till sisters, brothers, all unite
In that Grand Lodge that's far
awa'.

ODE FOR GRAND VISITATION.

WORDS BY R. T. PAINE, ESQ.

Allegro ma non presto.

Sweet Min - strel, who to mor-tal ears Canst tell the

Sweet Min - strel, who to mor-tal ears Canst tell the

Sweet Min - strel, who to mor-tal ears Canst tell the Art which guides the spheres, Blest Masonry, all hail! With nature's

Art which guides the spheres, Blest Masonry, all hail! With nature's

Art which guides the spheres, Blest Masonry, all hail! With nature's

Art which guides the spheres, Blest Masonry, all hail! With nature's

The musical score consists of four systems, each with a vocal line (treble clef) and a bass line (bass clef). The key signature is one sharp (F#). The first system includes a dynamic marking 'p' (piano) above the vocal line. The lyrics are repeated under each system.

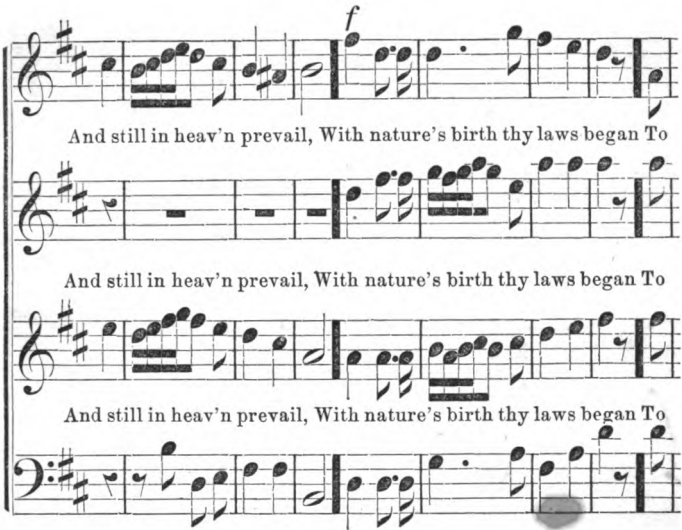

birth thy laws be - gan To rule on earth fra - ter - nal man, birth thy laws be - gan To rule on earth fra - ter - nal man,

birth thy laws be - gan To rule on earth fra - ter - nal man,

birth thy laws be - gan To rule on earth fra - ter - nal man,

The musical score consists of four systems, each with a vocal line (treble clef) and a bass line (bass clef). The key signature is one sharp (F#). The lyrics are repeated under each system.

And still in heav'n prevail, With nature's birth thy laws began To

And still in heav'n prevail, With nature's birth thy laws began To

And still in heav'n prevail, With nature's birth thy laws began To rule on earth frater-nal man, And still in heav'n prevail.

rule on earth frater-nal man, And still in heav'n prevail.

rule on earth frater-nal man, And still in heav'n prevail.

O'er matter's modes thy mystic sway
 Can fashion Chaos' devious way
 To Order's lucid maze;
 Can rear the cloud-assaulting tower,
 And bid the worm, that breathes its hour,
 Its humble palace raise.

From nascent life to being's pride,
 The surest boon thy laws provide,
 When wayward fate beguiles;
 The tears thou shedd'st for human woe,
 In falling shine like Iris' bow,
 And beam an arch of smiles.

Come, Priest of Science, truth-array'd,
 And with thee bring each tuneful maid,
 Thou lov'st on Shinar's plains;
 Revive Creation's primal plan,
 Subdue this wilderness of man,
 Bid social virtue reign.

HYMN FOR CONSECRATION.

Hail! u - ni - ver - sal Lord, By Heav'n and

Hail! u - ni - ver - sal Lord, By Heav'n and earth a-dored, All hail, great God! Be-fore thy throne we bend, To us thy grace extend, And to our pray'r at-tend! All hail, great God!

to our pray'r at-tend! All hail, great God!

Oh, hear our prayer to-day,
 Turn not thy face away,
 O Lord our God!
 Heaven, thy dread dwelling-place,
 Cannot contain thy grace;
 Remember now our race,
 O Lord our God!

God of our fathers, hear,
 And to our cry be near,
 Jehovah, God!

The heavens eternal bow;
 Forgive in mercy now
 Thy suppliants here, O Thou
 Jehovah, God!

To thee our hearts do draw,
 On them oh write thy law.
 Our Saviour, God!
 When in this Lodge we're met,
 And at thine altar set,
 Oh, do not us forget,
 Our Saviour, God!

ODE FOR DEDICATION.

BY J. H.

Andante. tr

Al-might - y Fa-ther, God of Love! Sa-cred, e-Bassoon.

ter - nal King of kings! From thy ce - les - tial courts a - bove, Send beams of grace on se - raphs' wings; Oh, may they, gilt with light di - vine, Shed on our hearts in - tr pp Espressivo. tr

spir - ing rays; While, bend - ing at this

Lento. Cres. Ad lib. 3

sa - cred shrine, While bending at this sa - cred shrine,

A tempo. tr

We of - fer mys - tic songs of praise.

Faith! with divine and heav'nward eye,
 Pointing to radiant realms of bliss,
 Shed here thy sweet benignity,
 And crown our works with happiness;
 Hope! too, with bosom void of fear,
 Still on thy steadfast anchor lean,
 Oh, shed thy balmy influence here,
 And fill our breasts with joy serene.

And thou, fair Charity! whose smile
 Can bid the heart forget its woe,
 Whose hand can misery's care beguile,
 And kindness' sweetest boon bestow,

Here shed thy sweet soul-soothing ray;
 Soften our hearts, thou Power divine!
 Bid the warm gem of pity play,
 With sparkling lustre, on our shrine.

Thou, who art throned midst dazzling light,
 And wrapp'd in dazzling robes of gold,
 Whose flowing locks of silv'ry white
 Thy age and honor both unfold,
 Genius of Masonry! descend,
 And guide our steps by thy strict law;
 Oh, swiftly to our temple bend,
 And fill our breasts with solemn awe.

GLEE.

Allegro ma non presto. p Cres.

Hail! mys-terious, glorious science, Hail! mysterious,

Hail! mys-terious,

f

glorious science, Hail! mys-terious, glo-rious science,

glorious science, Hail! mys-terious, glo-rious science,

Which to dis - cord bids de - fi - ance! Har - mo - ny a -

Which to dis - cord bids de - fi - ance! Har - mo - ny a -

This musical system consists of three staves in G major (one sharp). The top staff is a treble clef, the middle is an alto clef, and the bottom is a bass clef. The melody is written in the top staff, with the lyrics 'Which to dis - cord bids de - fi - ance! Har - mo - ny a -' underneath. The middle and bottom staves provide harmonic accompaniment.

lone reigns here, Har - mo - ny a - lone reigns here.

lone reigns here, Har - mo - ny a - lone reigns here.

This musical system continues the previous one with three staves in G major. The melody in the top staff concludes with a double bar line. The lyrics 'lone reigns here, Har - mo - ny a - lone reigns here.' are written under the staves.

Mezzo forte.

Come, let's sing - - - - -

Come, let's sing to Him that raised us

This musical system begins with the dynamic marking 'Mezzo forte.' in bold. It features three staves in G major. The top staff has a long note on the first staff line, followed by a rest. The lyrics 'Come, let's sing' are under the first staff, followed by five dashes. The middle and bottom staves have rests for the first measure, then enter with the melody for 'Come, let's sing to Him that raised us'.

p

To the light that

From the rug-ged path that mazed us, To the light that

This system contains three staves of music in A major (three sharps). The first staff begins with a treble clef and a whole note, followed by a half rest. The second staff begins with a treble clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The third staff begins with a bass clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The lyrics are written below the staves.

f

we re - vere, To the light that we re - vere.

we re - vere, To the light that we re - vere.

This system contains three staves of music in A major. The first staff begins with a treble clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The second staff begins with a treble clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The third staff begins with a bass clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The lyrics are written below the staves.

p

Hail, mys-terious, Hail, mys-terious

Hail! mys-te-rious, glorious science, Hail! mys-te-rious

This system contains three staves of music in A major. The first staff begins with a treble clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The second staff begins with a treble clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The third staff begins with a bass clef and a quarter note, followed by a half note and a quarter note. The lyrics are written below the staves.

f

Hail, mys - te - rious, glorious science,

glo - rious science, Hail, mys - te - rious, glorious science,

p

Which to dis - cord gives de - fi - ance! Har - mo - ny a -

Which to dis - cord gives de - fi - ance! Har - mo - ny a -

f

lone reigns here, Har - mo - ny a - lone reigns here.

lone reigns here, Har - mo - ny a - lone reigns here.

ODE TO CHARITY.

(Music, see page 281.)

OFFSPRING of Heav'n, mankind's best friend,
Bright Charity, inspire the lay;
On these celestial shores descend,
And quit the realms of cloudless day:
CHORUS.—To Thee our constant vows are paid,
Thy praise we hymn, Angelic Maid.

When Vulcan rages unconfined,
And Neptune mourns his baffled power;
When flames, aspiring with the wind,
To Heaven's high arch resistless tower,
CHORUS.—'Tis thou our hearts with pity's glow
Inspir'st to feel for human woe.

The house a dismal ruin lies
Where mirth late tuned her lyre of joy;
And tears of anguish fill your eyes,
Poor orphan girl and houseless boy :—
CHORUS.—But thou, sweet maid, with pity's glow
Inspir'st each heart to soothe their woe.

Come, then, all-bounteous as thou art,
And hide thee from our sight no more;
Touch ev'ry soul, expand each heart,
That breathes on freedom's chosen shore:
CHORUS.—Columbia's sons with pity's glow
Inspire to feel for human woe.

CHARITY.

A HYMN.

Andante. Mezza forte.

O Cha - ri - ty! thou heavenly grace, All ten - der,

O Cha - ri - ty! thou heavenly grace, All ten - der,

soft, and kind, A friend to all the hu - man

soft, and kind, A friend to all the hu - man race, To all that's good and kind. The man of race, To all that's good and kind. The man of cha - ri - ty ex - tends, To all his lib' - ral

cha - ri - ty ex - tends, To all his lib' - ral

f hand; His kin - dred, neigh - bors, foes, and

hand; His kin - dred, neigh - bors, foes, and friends His pi - ty may com - mand.

friends His pi - ty may com - mand.

He aids the poor in their distress—
 He hears when they complain;
 With tender heart delights to bless
 And lessen all their pain:
 The sick, the prisoner, poor, and blind,
 And all the sons of grief,
 In him a benefactor find;
 He loves to give relief.

'Tis love that makes religion sweet,
 'Tis love that makes us rise,
 With willing mind and ardent feet,
 To yonder happy skies:
 Then let us all in love abound,
 And charity pursue:
 Thus shall we be with glory crowned,
 And love as angels do.

MASONIC HYMN.

First Voice.

Andante.

Great Ar-chi - tect, su-preme, di - vine, Whose wisdom

Second Voice.

Great Ar-chi - tect, su-preme, di - vine, Whose wisdom

Bass.

plann'd the grand de-sign, And gave to na - ture

plann'd the grand de-sign, And gave to na - ture birth! Whose word with light adorn'd the skies, Gave birth! Whose word with light adorn'd the skies, Gave mat - ter form, bade or - der rise, And mat - ter form, bade or - der rise, And

CHORUS.

bless'd the new-born earth; Till love shall cease, till

bless'd the new-born earth; Till love shall cease, till or - der dies, To Thee Ma-son - ic praise shall rise.

or - der dies, To Thee Ma-son - ic praise shall rise.

Oh, bless this love-cemented band,
 Form'd and supported by thy hand,
 For Charity's employ;
 To shield the wretched from despair,
 To spread through scenes of grief and care
 Reviving rays of joy.

CHORUS.—Till love shall cease, till order dies,
 To Thee Masonic praise shall rise.

The lib'ral Arts, by Thee design'd
 To polish, comfort, aid mankind,
 We labor to improve;
 While we adore Jehovah's name,
 Pour on our hearts the melting flame,
 And mould our souls to love.

CHORUS.—Till love shall cease, till order dies,
 To Thee Masonic praise shall rise.

FUNERAL HYMN.

MUSIC BY HANDEL.

Adagio.

Un-veil thy bo-som, faith-ful tomb,

Un-veil thy bo-som, faith-ful tomb,

Take this new trea-sure to thy trust, And

Take this new trea-sure to thy trust, And give these sa - cred re - lies room To slum - ber

give these sa - cred re - lies room To slum - ber

in the si - lent dust, And give these sa - cred

in the si - lent dust, And give these sa - cred

re - lies room To slumber in the si - lent dust.

re - lies room To slumber in the si - lent dust.

Nor pain, nor grief, nor anxious fears,
 Invade thy bounds; no mortal woes
 Can reach the silent sleepers here,
 And angels watch their soft repose.

So Jesus slept; God's dying Son
 Pass'd through the grave, and bless'd the bed;
 Rest here, dear Saint, till from His throne
 The morning break and pierce the shade.

Break from his throne, illustrious Morn!
 Attend, O Earth, his sovereign Word!
 Restore thy trust, a glorious form,
 He must ascend to meet his Lord.

MOST EXCELLENT MASTER'S ODE.

MUSIC BY A. BROWN.

All things in darkness lay, The Word went forth, Up sprung celestial day, At nature's birth ; The heavenly Arch sublimely bent a - bove, And on the key-stone blazed E - TER-NAL LOVE.

Heaven's favorite, man, was made
 In beauty fair,
 Crime changed blest Eden's shade
 To black despair ;
 Love from the sacred Arch came gently down,
 Raised man from death to an immortal crown.

Love, then, in chorus sing!
 Hail, Love divine!
 Masons, your Cassia bring
 To deck his shrine;
 Christians, unite, while Angels join in song,
 All Earth and Heaven, the glorious strain prolong.

ROYAL ARCH SONG.

BY A COMPANION.

MUSIC BY J. WHITAKER.

Joy! the sacred Law is found! Now the Temple stands complete, Gladly let us gather round, Where the Pontiff holds his seat. Now he spreads the volume wide, Opening forth its leaves to day,

And the Monarch by his side Gazes on the bright dis-play.

Joy! the secret vault is found!
 Full the sunbeam falls within,
 Pointing darkly under ground,
 To the treasure we would win.
 They have brought it forth to light,
 And again it cheers the earth;
 All its leaves are purely bright,
 Shining in their newest worth.

This shall be the sacred mark
 Which shall guide us to the skies,
 Bearing, like a holy ark,
 All the hearts who love to rise;
 This shall be the corner-stone
 Which the builders threw away,
 But was found the only one
 Fitted for the arch's stay.

This shall be the gavel true,
 At whose sound the crowd shall bend,
 Giving to the law its due;
 This shall be the faithful friend;
 This the token, which shall bring
 Kindness to the sick and poor,
 Hastening on, on angel's wing,
 To the lone and darksome door.

This shall crown the mighty arch,
 When the temple springs on high,
 And the Brethren bend their march,
 Wafting incense to the sky.

Then the solemn strain shall swell
 From the bosom and the tongue,
 And the Master's glory tell
 In the harmony of song.

Here the exile, o'er the waste
 Trudging homeward, shall repose;
 All his toils and dangers past,
 Here his long sojourning close.
 Entering through the sacred veils,
 To the holy cell he bends;
 Then, as sinking Nature fails,
Hope in glad fruition ends.

ROYAL ARCH SONG.

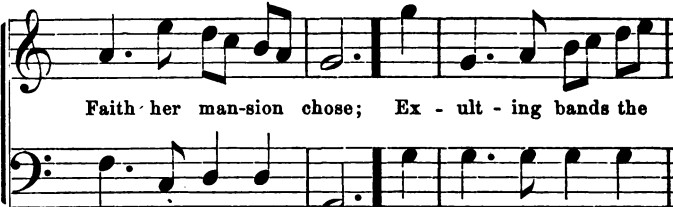

Andante Pomposo.

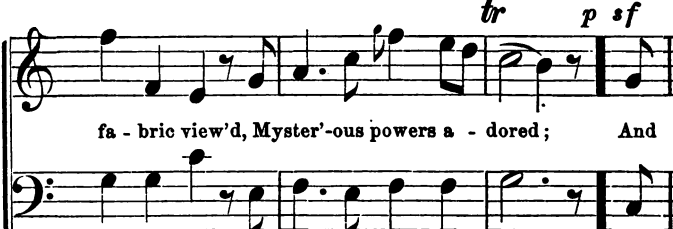

When or'-ent Wisdom beam'd serene, And pillar'd Strength arose; When Beau-ty tinged the glow-ing scene, And Faith her man-sion chose; Ex - ult - ing bands the fa - bric view'd, Myster'-ous powers a - dored; And high the Tri - ple U - nion stood, And high the Tri - ple

Union stood, That gave the mystic word, - - - - That

Pale Envy wither'd at the sight,
And, frowning o'er the pile, Call'd Murder up from realms of
night,
To blast the glorious toil.
With ruffian outrage join'd, in woe
They form'd the league abhorr'd;
And wounded Science felt the blow
That crush'd the Mystic Word.

Concealment, from sequester'd cave,
On sable pinions flew,
And o'er the sacrilegious grave
Her veil impervious threw.
The associate band, in solemn state,
The awful loss deplored;
And Wisdom mourn'd the ruthless fate
That whelm'd the Mystic Word.

At length, through Time's expanded sphere,
Fair Science speeds her way;
And, warm'd by Truth's refulgence, clear
Reflects the kindred ray.
A second fabric's towering height
Proclaims the sign restored;
From whose foundation, brought to light,
Is drawn the Mystic Word.

To depths obscure, the favor'd
Trine
A dreary course engage,
Till, through the Arch, the ray divine
Illumes the sacred page.
From the wide wonders of this blaze,
Our ancient sign's restored;—
The Royal Arch alone displays
The long-lost Mystic Word.

ROYAL ARCH SONG.

Andante Moderato.

Al-might-y Sire, our heavenly King ! Before whose sa-cred name we bend, Ac - cept the praises which we sing, And to our hum-ble prayer attend ; Thou, who didst Per-sia's king command A pro-cla-ma-tion to ex-tend, That Israel's sons might quit the land, Their holy Temple to attend.

CHORUS.

 f

All hail! great Ar - chi - tect di - vine! This

All hail! great Ar - chi - tect di - vine! This u - ni-ver-sal frame is thine, This u - ni-ver-sal

u - ni-ver-sal frame is thine, This u - ni-ver-sal

Slow.

frame is thine, This u - ni-ver-sal frame is thine.

frame is thine, This u - ni-ver-sal frame is thine.

That sacred place, where Three in One
Comprised thy comprehensive name;
And when the bright meridian Sun
Was seen thy glory to proclaim,
Thy watchful eye, a length of time,
The wondrous circle did attend;
The glory and the power be thine,
Which shall from age to age descend.

CHORUS.

All hail! great Architect divine!
This universal frame is thine.

On thy omnipotence we rest,
Secure of thy protection here,
And hope hereafter to be blest,
When we have left this world of care.
Grant us, great God, thy powerful aid
To guide us through this vale of tears;
For where thy goodness is display'd,
Peace soothes the mind, and pleasure cheers.
All hail! &c.

Inspire us with thy grace divine;
 Thy sacred law our guide shall be,
 To every good our hearts incline,
 From every evil keep us free.
 Our glad hosannas, Sovereign King!
 Thy welcome here shall e'er proclaim,
 And heaven's eternal arches ring
 With thy revealed, holy Name:
CHORUS.—All hail! great Architect divine!
 This universal frame is thine.

SELECT MASTER'S SONG.

BY A COMPANION.

HUNGARIAN.

The vault arch-es o'er, and night broods a - round, Not a whis-per is heard through the depth of the cave; All hearts, in the si-lence of se-cre-cy bound, Are read-ing the words the Great Ar-chi- tect gave. U - ni - ted they lis - ten the voice of the Law, The guide to our rea-son, the spur of the soul, And they feel in the sounds a sweet mystery draw Their hearts to the Spi-rit who ut-ter'd the whole.

Now the work is completed, and all are combined,
 To close in the secret and deep-hidden cell
 The words which are treasured as light to the mind,
 Like the waters of truth in their close-cover'd well.
 Here safely secured they shall live on the rock,
 When the storm rages o'er it and levels the wall,
 And still in the rage of the conqueror's shock
 The arches shall neither be shaken nor fall.

We have laid in its secret and silent retreat
 The treasures that kings shall exult to behold;
 And the pilgrim shall hasten with ardor to meet
 This gift, valued higher than jewels or gold:
 Ages roll on their way, and no foot shall be heard
 In search of this roll to enlighten the world,
 But a hand shall be found to recover the Word,
 And then shall the standard of truth be unfurled.

We are seated in silence, and nothing can find
 Its way to our distant and mystical cave:
 And the watchman who guards not, our mandate shall bind
 In the deeper concealment of death and the grave;
 Be faithful and true, ever firm to your trust,
 In the lesson we give in the council of light,
 And the herald shall summon you forth from the dust,
 Above in the meeting of souls to unite.

SELECT MASTER'S ANTHEM.

(Music, see page 304.)

"LET there be light," th' Almighty spoke;
 Refulgent streams from chaos broke,
 T' illumine the rising earth!
 Well pleased the great JEHOVAH stood;
 The Power Supreme pronounced it good,
 And gave the planets birth.

CHORUS.—In choral numbers, Masons, join,
 To bless and praise this light divine.

Parent of light, accept our praise,
 Who shedd'st on us thy brightest rays,
 The light that fills the mind:
 By choice selected, lo! we stand,
 By friendship join'd, a social band,
 That love, that aid mankind.

CHORUS.—In choral numbers, &c.

The widow's tear, the orphan's cry,
 All wants our ready hands supply,
 As far as power is given;
 The naked clothe, the prisoner free,
 These are thy works, sweet Charity,
 Reveal'd to us from heaven.

CHORUS.—In choral numbers, &c.

SONG.

WRITTEN BY N. H. WRIGHT.

Allegretto. Mezza Voce.

Ah! why should the heart be de - press'd, When its fond - ness is treat - ed with scorn? The couch that with ro - ses is dress'd In its soft - ness con - ceals a rude thorn, In its soft - ness con - ceals a rude thorn, In its soft - ness con - ceals a rude thorn, The couch that with ro - ses is dress'd In its soft - ness con - ceals a rude thorn.

The bright eye of Beauty may beam
With a light like the meteor glare;
But her victim may wake from his dream,
And hope may be changed to despair.

Like the rainbow which shines from the cloud,
Her allurements a while may deceive,
Till joy is enwrapp'd in a shroud,
And the mourner is left but to grieve.

But Friendship has charms which endure;
Its birth was in regions above;
'Tis a passion, like heaven, most pure;
For it sprang from the fountain of love.

Then let not the heart be depress'd,
If one treat its fondness with scorn;
It may find in a Brother's warm breast
The rose that conceals not a thorn.

MASONIC ODE.

EMPIRES and kings have pass'd away
 Into oblivion's mine,
 And tow'ring domes have felt decay,
 Since auld lang syne.

But MASONRY, the glorious art,
 With wisdom's ray divine;
 'Twas ever so, the Hebrew cries,
 In auld lang syne.

Behold the occidental chair
 Proclaims the day's decline:
 Hiram of Tyre was seated there
 In auld lang syne.

The South proclaims refreshment nigh,
High twelve's the time to dine;
 And beauty deck'd the southern sky,
 In auld lang syne.

Yes, Masonry, whose temple here
 Was built by hands divine,
 Shall ever shine as bright and clear
 As auld lang syne.

Then, Brethren, for the worthy three
 Let us a wreath entwine,
 The three great heads of Masonry
 In auld lang syne,

Remembering oft that worthy one,
 With gratitude divine,
 The Tyrian youth,—the widow's son
 Of auld lang syne.

EPILOGUE.

As lately, Brethren, from the Lodge I came,
 Warm'd with our royal order's purest flame,
 Absorb'd in thought, before my ravish'd eyes
 I saw the Genius MASONRY arise:
 A curious hieroglyphic robe he wore,
 And in his hand the sacred volume bore;
 On one side was divine Astræa placed,
 And soft-eyed Charity the other graced;
 Humanity, the gen'ral friend, was there,
 And Pity, dropping the pathetic tear;

There too was Order; there, with rosy mien,
 Blithe Temperance shone, and white-robed Truth was seen;
 There, with a key suspended to his breast,
 Silence appear'd; his lips his finger press'd;
 With these, soft warbling an instructive song,
 Sweet Music, gayly smiling, tripped along.
 Wild Laughter, clam'rous Noise, and Mirth ill bred,
 The brood of Folly, at his presence fled.
 The Genius spoke:—"My son, observe my train,
 Which of my order different parts explain.
 Look up: behold the bright ASTRÆA there:
 She will direct thee how to use the Square.
 PITY will bid thee grieve with those who grieve,
 Whilst CHARITY will prompt thee to relieve,—
 Will prompt thee every comfort to bestow,
 And draw the arrow from the breast of woe;
 HUMANITY will lead to honor's goal,
 Give the large thought, and form the gen'rous soul,—
 Will bid thee thy fraternal love expand
 To virtue of all faiths and every land.
 ORDER will kindly teach her laws of peace,
 Which discord stop, and social joys increase;
 TEMPERANCE instruct thee all excess t' avoid,
 By which fair fame is lost, and health destroy'd;
 TRUTH warn thee ne'er to use perfidious art,
 And bid thy tongue be rooted in thy heart;
 SILENCE direct thee never to disclose
 What'er thy Brethren in thy breast repose;
 For thee shall MUSIC strike th' harmonious lyre,
 And, whilst she charms the ear, morality inspire.
 These all observe; and let thy conduct show
 What real blessings I on man bestow."
 He said, and disappear'd;—and, oh, may we
 Who wear this honor'd badge, accepted, free,
 To every grace and virtue temples raise,
 And by our useful works our Order praise!

THE END.

24

366.1
C884m

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

wils

366.1 C884m

Cross, Jeremy L., 1783-1861.

Cross' Masonic chart: revised : containi

3 1951 002 310 480 U

WILSON ANNEX